COHN URGED STEVENS TO GET SCHINE CIA JOB 'TO SAVE EMBARRASSMENT'

SENATOR'S AID ALSO PREDICTED 'CRISIS' OVER LOYALTY BOARD

Hot Argument Ensues Over Phone Calls Between Army Head, Drafted Ex-Assistant to Red Hunter.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP) —Roy M. Cohn suggested to Secretary of the Army Stevens just a week before G. David Schine was drafted last fall that it might "save embarrassment all around" if Schine got an assignment with the Central Intelligence Agency.

In the same conversation last Oct. 27, Cohn also told Stevens he saw a "crisis" coming over Senator McCarthy's insistence that Army loyalty board members be produced for questioning by the McCarthy subcommittee.

This was brought out in the McCarthy-Army hearings today with the introduction in evidence of transcripts of telephone talks between the Secretary and Army Iounselor John G. Adams on the one hand, and Senator McCarthy and the Senator's staff.

Accompanying their introduction was a hot argument over whether Stevens or Schine initiated a conversation they had on Oct. 21. Schine testified Stevens called him, directly challenging earlier testimony from Stevens that Schine initiated the call.

Contention by Army Side.

Aids to Stevens testified that Schine had tried to reach the Secretary with a call from New York two days earlier, and left the number of a New York operator to keep the call open. They said Stevens simply was following through on Schine's call.

Schine disputed that. He said he called the Secretary's office on Oct. 19 about subcommittee business and completed the business that day.

The sequence of key calls related to Schine's entering the Army was this:

Oct. 21—Stevens-Schine. Stevens told Schine there was "no appropriate way" for him to avoid basic Army training but that there was an "excellent chance" he could be used in some special capacity after training.

Oct. 27-28 — Stevens-Cohn calls. After Cohn suggested on Oct. 27 that the CIA might use Schine, Stevens told him on Oct. 28 that Allen Dulles, CIA director, had turned that down, saying the CIA had a policy of not taking anyone who faced Army draft.

Nov. 7 — McCarthy-Stevens. McCarthy told Stevens he had had not considered Schine indispensable to his subcommittee but that he didn't want Cohn to know he felt that way.

Seven Stevens-Cohn Calls.

A total of seven monitored Stevens-Cohn calls were read into the record. The latest call was dated Nov. 2, the day before Schine was inducted.

In this call, Stevens told Cohn

YOUTH IN DRAFT IN TWO COUNTRIES PICKS U.S. ARMY

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 7 (AP)—Henri Szopokowski has been drafted—by two countries.

Szopokowski, 21 years old, came to Evansville from France 18 months ago to visit his sister. Hard on the heels of an announcement he had been drafted into the French Army for two and a half years, he received another notice—to report for United States Army induction June 17.

Draft officials explained that he could get automatic American citizenship by serving two years in the United States Army. He could leave the country freely by signing an alien affidavit—but he could never come back. Or, he could serve his two years in this country and then go back to France as a French citizen and serve his time there.

Szopokowski chose to enter the United States Army, get his citizenship and stay in this country.

U.S. NAVY SAID TO BE SEARCHING SHIPS OFF GUATEMALA

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, June 7—United States Navy vessels off the coast of Honduras and Guatemala are halting and inspecting ships bound for Guatemala, port officials at Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, said yesterday.

United States Navy officers who arrived here Saturday on an undisclosed mission refused to comment on the report.

The Guatemalan officials said that American naval vessels 15 to 20 miles off the coast are stopping Guatemala-bound ships to inspect passenger lists and cargo manifests.

They said the patrol has been under way since a large shipment of arms arrived at Puerto Barrios about three weeks ago from an Iron Curtain country.

TEEN-AGERS HAND PARENTS SURPRISE ON ATOMIC LORE

HAMMOND, Ind., June 7 (UP) Parents went to the Oliver Perry Morton High School science fair expecting to get a look at typical teen-age tinkerings and inventions, but instead were lectured on the disintegration of radium in connection with the age of the earth and saw a demonstration on how to track vapor trails of alpha particles.

William Mixon, 13 years old, said he had been using a cloud chamber to study gamma rays, thus estimating the age of the earth at 4,600,000,000 years. He scraped the hands of old alarm clocks to get radium for his experiments. A Purdue University professor, Gilbert Rainey, tried to trip up William on his half-hour discourse, but failed.

Robert Dolphin, the 18-year-old tracker of vapor trails, showed how he rigged up a continuous diffusion cloud chamber by hooking a 400-volt transformer to negative and positive plates in a plastic chamber saturated with alcohol vapor. Radon, the product of radium deterioration, was thus scattered on the positive plate while the negative plate attracted the invisible, but trail-making, alpha particles.

RUBBISH PICKUPS HALTED, THIRD TIEUP IN 6 WEEKS

Walkout Follows Breakdown of Talks—Garbage, Street Workers Not Affected.

Rubbish collection was halted today by a strike of 150 refuse collectors, who walked out for the third time in six weeks in a wage dispute with the city.

The walkout, which followed a breakdown last week of negotiations between union representatives and Personnel Director R. Elliott Scearce, was voted yesterday by members of Local 610, AFL Municipal Employes.

City garbage collectors and street cleaners, who joined in the two previous strikes, were not affected today. The three groups are represented by Locals 610 and 722, Municipal Emloyes' Union.

Pickets at Garages.

Picket lines appeared early today at the refuse collection garages, 100 East Grand avenue and 4190 South First street. Each garage houses 25 rubbish trucks. There was no picketing at the garbage collection headquarters, 3834 Forest Park avenue, or at other city properties.

The union has been asking a $35 a month increase for its members, plus changes in working rules. The demand followed enactment of the recent city job classification bill, which provided increases in some jobs and wage reductions in a few others.

Other changes sought by the union were a 40-hour week within five days; elimination of reductions in some salaries brought about by the recent pay bill, and placing of some hourly employes on a monthly basis.

Stand on 5-Day Week.

Adoption of the five-day week is a matter for the department head as is the placing of employes on a monthly basis instead of an hourly basis, Scearce contended. It was the problem of the Civil Service Commission to determine whether salary cuts should be recommended in jobs reclassified downward, Scearce pointed out. He had recommended earlier that no cuts be made for existing employes, but was overruled by the commission.

Members of Locals 610 and 722 met jointly for two hours yesterday at Machinists Hall, and a strike of garbage and street cleaning employes was narrowly averted, it was reported. The meeting of rubbish collectors, at which the strike was voted, followed the joint meeting.

Turn Is Undoing of 'Cowboy' On Horseback Firing at Auto

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 7 (UP)—A gun-slinging "one-man posse" bit the dust as he pursued an automobile through city streets on horseback.

Hospitalized for head injuries and still unconscious was Paul W. Roster III, 22 years old, of South Gate, Calif. Police were waiting to question him about the strange event.

Police said Roster, outfitted in true cowboy style, rode hell bent for leather down a street on a rented horse in nearby Montebello Saturday night, firing a frontier model revolver at an automobile.

Roster fired five shots at the car and all missed, officers said. Pedestrians scattered and motorists ducked.

The car turned a corner, so did the horse—but Roster didn't.

SUPREME COURT BROADENS FPC NATURAL GAS PRICE CONTROL

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP) —The Supreme Court today greatly broadened the Government's power to regulate natural gas prices.

By a 5-3 vote, the court ruled that the Federal Power Commission must fix rates for interstate sales of natural gas by companies which produce and gather it.

The specific case before the court directly involved only the Phillips Petroleum Co., but it was generally regarded as an important test case.

Much of the gas-buying Middlewest was arrayed in the legal battle against the gas-producing Southwest.

Bill Vetoed.

A bill to exempt independent producers and gatherers who sell directly to interstate transmission companies was passed during the Truman Administration but ran into a presidential veto.

The gas-producing states said there are more than 2300 such independent producers.

In other cases the court:

Upheld 5-3 the key registration section of the federal lobbying act but declined to rule now on its penalty provisions. Both had been declared unconstitutional by United States district Judge Alexander Holtzoff here.

Removed the last legal barrier to construction by New York state of its half of a $600,000,000 St. Lawrence River power project. The court gave New York the go-ahead by refusing to act on an appeal which contested the state's right to join with the province of Ontario in building the international power project.

Refused to review the perjury conviction of E. Merl Young, former Reconstruction Finance Corporation examiner and buyer of a famed $9450 pastel mink coat. Young was convicted of lying to a Senate subcommittee when he said that as an RFC examiner he had nothing to do with loan applications filed by the Lustron Corp. He faces a prison sentence of four months to two years. The mink coat was worn by Young's wife when she was a White House stenographer. It did not figure in his trial here, but the Senators had questioned him closely about it.

Ruling Overturned.

The natural gas regulation decision overturned a ruling by the commission that Phillips was not a natural gas company within the meaning of the Natural Gas Act and the agency therefore had no jurisdiction over its rates.

Justice Minton delivered the 5-3 decision. He was joined by Chief Justice Warren and Justices Black, Reed, and Frankfurter.

Justices Douglas and Clark wrote dissenting opinions. Justice Burton joined in Clark's dissent. Justice Jackson took no part in the case, which the high court had once refused to review, thus letting stand a circuit court opinion which had overturned the FPC ruling.

Phillips produces and gathers natural gas in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico and carries it to 10 processing plants in Texas and New Mexico. After processing, the gas is carried in pipes for from 240 to 1490 feet and sold in interstate commerce for resale to five pipeline companies.

Majority Opinion.

Justice Minton, for the majority, stated that "regulation of the sales in interstate commerce for resale made on a so-called independent natural gas producer is not essentially different from regulation of such sales when made by an affiliate of an interstate pipeline company."

Justice Minton added:

"In both cases the, rates charged may have a direct and substantial effect on the price paid by the ultimate consumers. Protection of consumers against exploitation at the hands of natural gas companies was the primary aim of the Natural Gas Act. . . .

"Attempts to weaken this protection by amendatory legislation exempting independent natural gas producers from federal regulation have repeatedly failed, and we refuse to achieve the same result by a strained interpretation of the existing statutory language."

Clark's Dissent.

In his dissent, Clark said the majority opinion "brings every gas operator, from the smallest producer to the largest pipeline, under federal regulatory control."

Clark added:

"In so doing, the court acts contrary to the intention of the Congress, the understanding of the states, and that of the Federal Power Commission itself. The Federal Power Commission is thereby thrust into the regulatory domain traditionally reserved to the states."

After the commission ruled it had no authority over Phillips'

BIDAULT CALLS ON MOLOTOV TO SEE IF ANY HOPE OF TRUCE EXISTS

Frenchman Said to Have Modified Position Slightly—Russian to Make Policy Declaration.

By EDDY GILMORE

GENEVA, June 7 (AP)—French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault and Russia's V. M. Molotov were reported by French sources to have had a "useful" exchange of views today on supervisions of the proposed Indochina cease-fire.

The two met for 50 minutes in what was described as "a cordial atmosphere," but were unable to reach an agreement on composition of a commission to police the cease-fire.

The French were reported, however, to have come around to the Soviet position that at least one Communist nation would have to be included in the supervisory agency. Molotov was reported to have insisted on this as a minimum.

French sources said Bidault now believes something can be worked out by taking three Asian nations—possibly India, Paakistan and Ceylon—as a base and adding one Communist country and one western nation to form the commission.

Korean Model Opposed.

Bidault was understood to have told Molotov he was firmly opposed to any commission on which the Communists and non-Communists would be evenly divided, such as the Neutral Nations Supervision Commission in Korea. This body consists of representatives of Switzerland, Sweden, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Bidault also opposed supervision by a mixed French-Vietminh commission, unless such a body is limited to observation roles under control of an international commission.

The French foreign minister and Molotov also talked briefly about steps to speed up the military talks now going on in Geneva between representatives of the two high commands. These talks, dealing with the question of regrouping the rival forces after a cease-fire, were understood to have made no progress.

Bidault plans to leave tomorrow night for Paris after a semi-public session of the Indochina peace conference at which Molotov is scheduled to make a major policy declaration. Bidault will take part in the foreign affairs debate of the French National Assembly and return here Thursday morning.

Bidault's Initiative.

This morning's talk was arranged at the request of Bidault, who was understood to be making a determined effort to find out now whether there is any hope for a negotiated peace in Indochina.

Western diplomats expected to learn the answer to this question within the next 48 hours.

It was generally believed Molotov's attitude, as disclosed to Bidault today and to the conference tomorrow, would go a long way toward determining how much longer the Western powers would be willing to continue the talks.

Another important factor in the Western position is the critical political situation in which the French government now finds itself.

In Paris high political figures predicted that unless the West scores a real success at Geneva this week, Premier Laniel's cabinet will be turned out. Western delegates concede that if the French government falls, the Indochina conference may collapse.

Crisis for Laniel.

One highly placed Western diplomat predicted that Molotov in his speech tomorrow would try to embarrass the Laniel government and bring on its ouster from office.

Laniel appeared certain to demand a confidence vote in the National Assembly if the deputies get too critical in the Indochina debate which opens tomorrow.

Twice last month he won such votes by contending a cabinet crisis would torpedo the Geneva talks. But the second time his margin was only two votes. Observers in Paris doubted that a "save the conference" plea would work with the deputies again unless concrete results in Geneva could be cited.

One strong supporting factor for the Laniel government was the warning voiced by Pierre-Henri Teitgen, president of the Popular Republican Movement, that if opposition parties tried to bring about a change in foreign policy they might have to face a new election.

REDS FROM DIEN BIEN PHU REACH DELTA DEFENSES

French Expecting All-Out Assault in Hanoi Area Before End of June.

HANOI, Indochina, June 7 (AP)—Vietminh troops which crushed Dien Bien Phu have wheeled back into position all around the defense lines guarding the vital Red river delta, the French high command announced today. The rebel forces form a gigantic pincers threatening an all-out assault to drive the French from their North Indochina bastion.

Barring the slim chance the Geneva conference might stop the war by ordering a cease-fire, indications increased that the Communist-led rebels will hit the delta with everything they have before the end of June.

A French Army spokesman said rebel infantry units—estimated at upward of 20,000 men—had completed their movements back to the bases from which they moved to capture Dien Bien Phu. Other rebel troops were reported moving toward the delta area from the southwest.

The French continued to build up their forces in the strategic area with reinforcements from other parts of Indochina and from Europe.

In an all-out assault, the French expect the rebels to try first to isolate Hanoi by severing the road and rail lines linking the city with the port of Haiphong, 64 miles to the east. These routes are the lifeline for continued resistance to the Communists, for they carry the bulk of United States-supplied war material from Haiphong to Hanoi and the fighting fronts.

Vietminh attacks cut the routes nightly, but French patrols and repairmen reopen them for about six hours of traffic daily.

Aware that Hanoi might be encircled and cut off, the French are reinforcing the defenses of the seaport and the Doson peninsula, 12 miles southeast of it. To both these, the French probably could cling a long time if they had to be used as beachheads.

Thousands of Viet Namese living in villages around Haiphong and Doson are being evacuated to make way for new defense preparations.

South and southeastward of Hanoi, deep in the delta, the

NEHRU SAYS WORLD WILL KNOW IN FEW WEEKS IF IT IS HEADED FOR WAR

NEW DELHI, June 7 (UP). PRIME MINISTER NEHRU warned India's state Congress leaders yesterday the world may know within the next two or three weeks whether it is headed for war.

"Issues of vital importance to the future of the world are being debated at Geneva," Nehru said in his monthly circular to the Congress leaders. "During the last few years there have been frequent crises and alarms of war. We managed to survive them.

"Probably the present crisis is a more dangerous one than any we have had before. The next two or three weeks or even less may indicate whether we will go toward some peaceful settlement or toward the great disaster that all have feared."

35 SNOWBOUND AUTOISTS RESCUED NEAR ESTES PARK

ESTES PARK, Colo., June 7 (AP)—About 35 motorists were rescued early today from a summer blizzard which trapped their cars on Trail Ridge road high in Rocky Mountain National Park.

Nine cars were left stalled in drifts. Their occupants doubled up with travelers in the last four or five cars escorted down from the 12,100-foot level by rescuers using snowplows.

Ranger Edward J. Kirk said no one suffered serious effects from being marooned "except for the wear and tear on their nerves." Their names were not learned. Park Service officials said there was a sizable Sunday crowd of cars and they could only guess at the number requiring assistance.

WOMAN FORGOTTEN IN JAIL, HELD 2 YEARS TOO LONG

MEXICO CITY, June 7 (UP) —A beggar woman was released from the federal penitentiary after serving two years, three months and nine days more than her original 10-day sentence.

Gen. Florencio Anitua, director of the penitentiary, said yesterday court clerks apparently "forgot" to order jailers to turn her loose.

FRENCH SAY THEY HAVE PROMISE OF ACTION IF REDS PRESS ATTACKS

Knowland's Call for Showdown in Asia Termed Accurate Statement of Washington's Policy.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1954, Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, June 7—The days just ahead will test the issue of war or peace more gravely than at any time since the end of World War II nearly nine years ago.

Within ten days or two weeks it will be clear whether an armistice in Indochina acceptable to the Laniel government in Paris can be reached. The opinion is growing here that if a reasonable armistice cannot be agreed upon, either in Geneva or in Paris, then the United States will intervene in the war even if this means intervention without the British or other Allies.

High French officials are saying more or less openly that American policy-makers have promised American action if the Communist forces in Indochina press on for the full measure of victory. The French are saying in effect this:

Either the Communists agree to end the war or the United States moves in with air and sea power. Nothing else is now possible and we shall know in 10 days or more how it is to go.

Diplomatic Backing.

Whether the American commitment to France is as final as this cannot be determined from American sources. Even if it were not, there would be no inclination at this point to disavow it since the bargaining power of the French at Geneva would be gravely weakened. That is just what happened during the first week of the Geneva conference when President Eisenhower at his press conference said that it had become necessary to seek an accommodation with the Communists in Asia somewhere between the unattainable and the unacceptable.

Informed observers are now inclined to believe that talk of intervention is not a bluff put out to bolster the position of the West at Geneva. They take as a fairly accurate statement of American policy intentions the remarks of Senator Knowland, Republican majority leader, that the United States must act with military force if it develops that within the next 30 days there is no armistice in Indochina and the Communists push forward to take Hanoi and the rich Red river delta.

Top French officials have passed on to American policy-makers the French estimate that the Vietminh will soon have available in the delta around Hanoi eight full divisions. Even with the recent French reinforcements from elsewhere in Indochina, this Red force is considerably in excess of that at the disposal of the new French commander-in-chief, Gen. Paul Ely.

May Ignore Monsoon.

Whether these eight divisions will be unleashed against French strong points protecting Hanoi and the vital Hanoi-Haiphong communications line is the element of uncertainty.

During the past seven years fighting has been suspended with the onset of the fierce summer heat and monsoon rains. But French estimates do not rule out the possibility that the Communists will this year ignore the weather, pressing forward from the advantage they gained with the fall of Dien Bien Phu so widely heralded around the world as a test of strength.

For the President the situation is distinctly embarrassing. In his campaign two years ago he repeatedly promised to try to end the war in Korea. To students at the University of Illinois, for example, in the heat of the contest he said from the end of his campaign train that Asians should fight Asians and that Illinois farm boys should stay on the farm.

This was a favorite theme of nationalist extremists such as Senator Jenner of Indiana who ran for re-election as a member of the Eisenhower team. With candidate Eisenhower sitting alongside him, Jenner charged the Truman Administration with deliberately sending American boys into the "meat chopper of Korea."

Political Effect.

But not long before the fall of Dien Bien Phu the President at a press conference said that the fall of Indochina would be a disaster to the free world. It is between these two extremes that, if the commitment is finally for action, the President must try to steer a course that

SENATORS CALL FOR FULL REPORT ON LORWIN CASE

Committee, Under Prodding of Hennings, Asks Brownell for Explanation.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7—The Senate Judiciary Committee voted today to ask Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. for a complete report on the effort by the Department of Justice to prosecute Val R. Lorwin, a former State Department employe, for allegedly lying to a loyalty board.

Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), St. Louis, a committee member, said further action by the Senate group would depend on the nature of the reply received from Brownell. He said he expected an answer before next Monday, the regular committee meeting day.

Lorwin was indicted by a federal grand jury on the charge he lied to a State Department review board about Communist party membership. The indictment was dismissed on the motion of Warren Olney III, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division. Olney said the indictment was obtained through "misrepresentations" by a Justice Department trial lawyer.

Hennings has been seeking a Senate investigation on the ground the Justice Department's handling of the case "constituted a miscarriage of justice and an oppression of office."

EXPEDITION GIVES UP SEARCH FOR ABOMINABLE SNOWMAN

CALCUTTA, India, June 7 (AP)—A privately financed expedition searching in the Mount Everest area for an abominable snowman has given up and is returning home, the Katmandu correspondent of the newspaper Statesman said yesterday.

They didn't find a snowman, called a Yeti by the natives, but the correspondent said expedition members are understood to believe that some kind of big animal does inhabit the snowy fastnesses of the Himalayas.

Abominable snowmen have been talked about for more than 30 years and some people claim to have seen one.

Lively Victim of Joke Jolts Undertaker, Upsets Him Gravely

BARNSLEY, England, June 7 (UP)—Harry Hull enjoys a joke as much as anyone, but he said today he wasn't amused Saturday when he came home and found:

1. Workmen piling 7000 bricks on his front lawn.
2. More workmen unloading four tons of potatoes and spreading them in neat rows alongside his garage.
3. Two trucks banking five tons of red shale against the side of his house.
4. A line of trucks waiting to unload three tons of coal, several tons of sand and gravel, a load of drainpipes, a large asbestos sheet and a consignment of used automobile tires.
5. A scrap metal dealer who said he had come to collect two tons of old railroad tracks and a man waiting to collect two used cars.

Hull said the final straw was the appearance of an undertaker to "prepare the body for cremation."

The undertaker was so shocked to see the "body" trying to deal with the milling crowd of tradespeople, Hull said, he needed a shot of brandy to avoid collapsing.

All the contractors said "a man with a husky voice" gave them their orders. Police are searching for the man.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP) —A written plea for barred atom scientist J. Robert Oppenheimer will come before the Atomic Energy Commission — perhaps today—but not the oral arguments his lawyers requested.

A special three-man board ruled last Tuesday that the 50-year-old Oppenheimer — famed as a father of the original United States atomic bomb—was a "loyal citizen." But, in a 2-to-1 decision, it found him too much of a security risk to remove President Eisenhower's order of last Dec. 23 that barred him from access to official secrets.

Oppenheimer's attorneys, headed by Lloyd K. Garrison, immediately asked the AEC to bypass the usual review by the commission's personnel security review board and have the commission itself take the case "under immediate consideration." They requested permission to file a written brief by today and to argue at a later date.

A high AEC official, who asked not to be named, said last night Oppenheimer's lawyers have been told they could file a written brief but not present the arguments. To allow the oral presentation before the commissioners, he said, would set a precedent for all other security risk cases.

Letter to President.

In a related development, 10 scientists yesterday told Eisenhower that more security reviews like that given Oppenheimer would point to a "sure road to national suicide" by eliminating "men of independent mind from our defense establishments."

In an open letter to Mr. Eisenhower, 10 officers and members of the Federation of American Scientists suggested appointment of a special presidential advisory board of leaders in Government, science and law to form a balanced security policy.

Among findings of the special AEC panel Tuesday were that Oppenheimer had contributed to delaying the start of hydrogen bomb development and that he had associated with Communists for years.

The scientists wrote Mr. Eisenhower: "The purge of a loyal scientist for giving frank advice presents a grave peril to our nation. Such a policy, if continued, will eliminate the men of independent mind from our defense establishments. In this age when new weapons repeatedly dwarf the destructive power of their predecessors, this is a sure road to national suicide."

Need to Clarify 'Risk' Term.

The scientists' letter said there is a great need to clarify what is meant by a 'security risk' and the evidence that is relevant to such a determination. We believe a man should be considered a security risk only if there is substantial evidence to indicate he might, either willfully or inadvertely, transmit classified information to unauthorized personnel."

The federation is a national organization of scientists and engineers formed in 1946 to act on public issues in its field. It listed as signers of the letter the following:

M. Stanley Livingston, federation chairman, now at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; James Franck, Institute of Radiobology and Biophysics, University of Chicago; Watson Davis, director, Science Service; Oscar K. Rice, department of chemistry, University of North Carolina; Ernest C. Pollard, professor of physics, Yale University; W. A. Higginbotham, Brookhaven National Laboratory, Upton, Long Island, N.Y.; Arthur S. Wightman, professor of Physics, Princeton University; Lewi Tonks, research associate, Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, Schenectady, N.Y.; John S. Toll, head of physics department, University of Maryland, and David L. Hill, theoretical physicist, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

TEXT OF NOTE ON REFUSAL TO QUIT

PRINCETON, N.J., June 7 (UP) — Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer made public today the text of a letter of last Dec. 22 in which he refused a suggestion of Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lewis L. Strauss that he resign rather than face security investigation.

The letter was made public by Oppenheimer in answer to a published statement attributed to the AEC (in the New York Times) to the effect that Oppenheimer himself suggested the possibility of his resigning.

The letter, addressed to Strauss, read:

"Dear Lewis:

"Yesterday when you asked to see me, you told me for the first time that my clearance by the Atomic Energy Commission was about to be suspended. You put to me as a possibly desirable alternative that I request termination of my contract as a consultant to the commission, and thereby avoid an explicit consideration of the charges on which the commission's action would otherwise be based. I was told that if I did not do this within a day, I would receive a letter notifying me of the suspension of my clearance and of the charges against me, and I was shown a draft of that letter.

"I have thought most earnestly of the alternative suggested. Under the circumstances, this course of action would mean that I accept and concur in the view that I am not fit to serve this government, that I have now served for some 12 years. This I cannot do. If I were thus unworthy I could hardly have served our country as I have tried or been the director of our institute in Princeton or have spoken as on more than one occasion I have found myself speaking in the name of our science and our country.

"Since at our meeting yesterday, you and Gen. Nichols told me that the charges in the letter were familiar charges and since the time was short, I paged through the letter quite briefly. I shall now need to read it in detail and make appropriate response."

By HAL BOYLE

OMAHA BEACH, France, June 7 (AP)—On the beaches of Normandy yesterday, 10 years after D-day, the French people showed they haven't forgotten the Americans who died here. Nearly 10,000 of the dead still lie in St. Laurent Cemetery while other thousands are buried in their homeland.

French tricolors decorated every small town to welcome visitors. More than 25,000 turned out to hear speeches at Utah Beach by Rene Coty and United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., President Eisenhower's personal representative.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins and Gen. Lee T. Gerow, commanders of the two American corps that landed here June 6, 1944, were among the host of high ranking Army, Air Force and Navy officers present from a half dozen countries.

There were bands, lines of marching men, and speeches about unity at a half dozen celebrations in Normandy, but in the end it was the 9485 crosses at St. Laurent, just behind Omaha Beach, that gave the deepest lesson in unity.

Major Cost of Landing.

They presented, row on row, one of the major costs of the Normandy landing, a mighty Allied effort that saw 326,547 men, 54,186 tanks and vehicles and 104,428 tons of material poured across the beaches in six days.

In the first 24 hours of the assault, American forces suffered some 18,000 casualties on Utah and Omaha beaches.

Lt. Col. Russell R. Raab of East Orange, N.J., estimated 95 per cent of the visitors to the cemetery yesterday were French. They are still friendly to Americans, he said. Almost every French family in this area lost someone during the war.

Several veterans who fought on this same beach 10 years ago had returned for the pilgrimage. There also were dozens of Normandy veterans in the special honor guard of about 400 United States troops brought here for the cermeonies.

Sums Up Feeling.

The feeling they seemed to share was expressed by Lt. John J. Moglia of Hempstead, Long Island, N.Y., who said:

"I always wanted to come back to see this piece of terrain under different conditions. Now the places I could never forget are hard to find. If it weren't for the cemetery, the beach would look like a summer resort. Most of the obstacles that were here 10 years ago are gone now."

"Yes," said Lt. Col. Albert H. Smith Jr. of Baltimore, Md., who hit the beach in one of the earliest assault waves, "it's amazing there are so few of the scars of war left. The years have been kind to these hills that we beat up so."

When the speeches and ceremonies were over, the honor guard, still carrying rifles, began to wander among the rows of marble crosses. Each had been decorated with small French and United States flags.

Under the chill, overcast sky, the soldiers walked about among the crosses. Some knelt at the name they had sought and found. Several took out their handkerchiefs and wiped away tears they made no attempt to hide.

One stood with bowedhead, his rifle held downward with both hands, until it was time for the honor guard to go on to Utah Beach and the next ceremony.

The men under the white crosses were alone again—but they had been remembered by men who fought side by side with them 10 years ago. That was more than speeches and blowing music and flying flags.

By the United Press.

The torch which President Eisenhower sent was carried befor the Utah Beach memorial by Master Sgt. Dan L. Pope of Clarksville, Tex. It will journey from there through the towns liberated by American troops from the beachhead to Germany.

Lodge re-read to the crowd Mr. Eisenhower's order of the day June 6, 1944, telling the troops they were embarked "on a great crusade."

"The world may wonder how the men who died in the fighting would feel if they had returned and saw that their sacrifice had not brought lasting peace," Lodge said.

"That they would feel that the battle had been worth fighting is beyond doubt. The mission of the men who are buried here was to preserve for us the ability to go forward—to keep fighting."

Coty drew lively applause when he said:

"For those who after this victory (in World War II) fear the return of the errors which followed World War I, it is a great reassurance to see that this time the alliance of the war survives in the peace. Let us repeat that if the free nations after Nov. 11, 1918, had remained united the last war would not have taken place."

WORLD WAR NOT ANSWER TO REDS, WILSON ASSERTS

'We Must Destroy False Ideas With Truth, Superior Ideas, Sound Philosophy.'

COLUMBIA, S.C., June 7 (AP) —Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said today "a third world war is not the answer" to the problem of stopping the spread of Communism.

In an address at the commencement and 150th anniversary celebration of the University of South Carolina, Wilson declared that "we cannot knock out false ideas with bullets; we must counter and destroy them with the truth, with superior ideas and sound philosophy."

Cautions Against Conflict.

In cautioning against attempting to eliminate the Communist threat by another global conflict, the defense chief said:

"Even a victory in such a war could be purchased only at the cost of such horrible waste and destruction that the course of human progress would be set back many decades. And even after the necessary reconstruction after such a victory in a third world war, the free world would still have the problem of what to do with the vanquished and how to establish conditions of peace in the world."

However, Wilson emphasized that the United States and the free world must remain militarily strong. He said that " I wish I could assure you with confidence that the trend toward Communism had been stopped everywhere and that there was no possibility of general war resulting from the conflict between Russian Communism and the free world."

Three-Pronged Threat.

He said Russian militant Communism is a three-pronged threat:

A "psychological and propaganda" one involving claims that "the Russian version of Communism is a political and social system superior to any other in the world."

An economic threat because the Russian state owns and controls all productive property and attempts to destroy the economic systems of other nations.

A military threat because of the buildup of great power and because the Russians "accept war and internal subversion as proper political instruments to use in doing away with all capitalist and free societies."

"Among the policies that must be subscribed to by all nations to bring the world's economic productivity to the highest possible level are freer exchange of technical knowledge and production know-how, freer access to raw materials in a world market including the active development of natural resources throughout the world, freer exchange of goods and services and the gradual elimination of artificial and political trade barriers. . . .

"The challenge to our nation —and the free world—today is to be strong enough in a spiritual, political, economic and military sense to prevent war."

TIME PRESIDENT SET POLICY ON ASIA, GORE SAYS

He Agrees With Knowland on Urgency, Calls on Eisenhower to Make Up Mind.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP) —Senator Gore (Dem., Tennessee, said today it is time for the Administration to make up its mind about what course it intends to follow in combatting Communism in Indochina and Southeast Asia.

Gore said he agrees with an assertion by Senator Knowland of California, the Republican Senate leader, that the free world has come to a "jumping off place" and cannot afford to let the Reds continue talking at Geneva while they swallow territory in Indochina.

"I agree with Senator Knowland's view, but Congress can't take the lead in this matter," Gore said in an interview. "Before Congress can act at all, the Administration must make up its mind what it is going to do.

President's Indecision.

"We seemed to have assurances previously that the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Secretary of State Dulles had made the decision that we must fight, if necessary, to keep the Communists from overrunning Southeast Asia.

"But last week the President said he hadn't made up his mind about submitting to Congress any proposal for authorizing action in that area. Whom are we to follow: The Joint Chiefs and the Secretary of State, or the President?"

Knowland said in a weekend interview he believes the next 30 days will see one of the decisive turning points in history, with the free world either deciding to act or, by failing to do so, letting Asia slide to the Communists.

He said he thinks the Communists might well take Hanoi and the Red river delta within a month, if the talk continues at Geneva and the free nations make no show of force and indicate their determination to use it if necessary.

On Using Atom Bomb.

Senator Bridges (Rep.), New Hampshire, said yesterday there appears to be little prospect of American involvement in Indochina. "But I think it could come in a subsequent period." Speaking on an NBC radio-television show, "American Forum of the Air," Bridges said he favors use of the atomic bomb in Indochina instead of using American troops. "To save American lives I would use the atomic bomb anywhere," he said.

Appearing on the same program, Senator Magnuson (Dem), Washington, said the Eisenhower Administration has had a "hot and cold" policy and that as a result, "there isn't a man walking in the streets of America that knows what this Administration is going to do about Indochina."

While Knowland suggested that the United States might have to bypass Britain and France and seek what allies it could find in the Pacific, Senator Wiley (Rep.), Wisconsin, said in a speech at Louisville, Ky., yesterday that whatever this country does "we must keep our allies with us."

Wiley, who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he believes the time has come "when the free nations of the world must take the initiative in bringing the Indochinese situation before the United Nations for appropriate action."

For a Pacific NATO.

"Some people are afraid to put Indochina before the U.N. because it may weaken the organization," he said. "What a concept! We don't keep our muscles strong by not using them. The U.N. will wither and die if we don't give it a chance to meet the kind of problems it was created to handle."

But Wiley said this country ought to go beyond that action to "exert every effort to secure something in that nature of a NATO pact for the Pacific area." He predicted that India and other countries will lose their "neutralism" as Communist advances continue in Asia.

President Reported Ready to Bar Inquiry Into CIA by McCarthy

Said to Have Assured Director of Agency He Would Use His Executive Powers to the Limit.

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)— The New York Times says today President Eisenhower is determined to use his executive powers to the limit, according to informed sources, to prevent an investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin.

A Washington dispatch to the Times by Anthony Leviero reports:

"Allen W. Dulles, director of the agency, is understood to have received assurances to this effect after the Senator charged last week that the CIA presented an even more serious situation of Communist infiltration than did Fort Monmouth, N.J."

The Times story continues:

Dulles, a brother of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, went to see President Eisenhower and pointed out to him the harm that could result from an indiscriminate airing of affairs in the CIA.

The position of Allen Dulles is that CIA's global operations can thrive only if it is discreet and secretive. He believed it could be practically wrecked if it is embroiled in public hearings.

The CIA, which grew out of the needs of World War II, depends extensively on the intelligence systems of friendly nations for much of its data. Dulles fears that the co-operative arrangements could be wrecked in many instances if the CIA were subjected to recurring public inquiries. It is understood that representatives of some countries already have expressed concern over such a possibility.

It was learned that Dulles, as a result of the latest attack on the CIA by McCarthy, was not nearly so adamant as formerly against the idea of a joint congressional committee to look after the agency.

Some proponents of such a group have argued that a special committee could protect the CIA while discreetly overseeing its affairs in the way the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy works with the Atomic Energy Commission.

G.I. AND GENERAL, ENEMIES IN WAR, ARE NOW IN-LAWS

MARBURG, Germany, June 7 (AP) — Cupid was a stowaway when the Allies invaded Normandy 10 years ago.

Jim Dew, American G.I. fighting among the hedgerows, did not know he would marry the daughter of German Gen. Guenther Blumentritt, who was busy issuing orders for counterattacks from the enemy's western command headquarters, where he was chief of staff.

Jim and the former Anneliese Blumentritt live now at Omaha, Nebr. They met in this old university town, while he was on occupation duty. They have a daughter, Nancy. Dew left the Army last year after 15 years service.

The general, commanding an army at the age of 53 when the war ended, is on the inactive list in Germany, but he has won regard as one of Europe's most authoritative and objective military historians. He is the author of a biography, "Von Rundstedt: The Soldier and the Man," and is currently writing special studies for the United States Army's historical division on combat operations of German units.

FCDA ASSUMES FOE WOULD RAID 70 TARGET AREAS

Agency Plans for Knockout Attacks, Use of Atomic, Biological Weapons.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP) —The Federal Civil Defense Administration assumes for planning purposes that if and when this country is attacked, the enemy will attempt a knockout blow using atomic and some hydrogen bombs on 70 critical target areas.

The agency said yesterday that it also assumed "that high explosive and incendiary bombs would be used, that sabotage would be employed, and that biological and chemical weapons would be used before or after atomic attack."

The FCDA said it based its assumptions for the coming 12 months on officially known or estimated Russian capabilities for attacking the United States. The assumptions are prepared periodically to help provide a national planning base from which civil defense plans can be developed.

FCDA emphasized that "the assumptions do not predict such an attack."

They are similar to those prepared for a special civil defense exercise June 14-15, when 41 American cities will be targets of a hypothetical atomic attack. Plans for this exercise were announced Friday night.

Although extension of radar networks and other measures are reducing chances of a surprise attack, FCDA said, the possibility of surprise will never be entirely absent. It is assuming that some time before July 1, 1955, an actual target city can expect at least one hour's warning in advance of a bombing attack.

In that time, it said, most of the people in concentrated areas could be moved at least two miles toward the suburbs. While they might be caught without much shelter on the way, FCDA said, "it is estimated that the casualty total would still be considerably less" than if no dispersal were attempted.

Among its assumptions were that traffic control plans would be ready by next year, emergency communications could be maintained, and some type of shelter would be available from those who are required to stay behind.

CITY WITHDRAWS INDORSEMENT OF METROPOLITAN PHONE SYSTEM

St. Louis Asks Commission to Consider Its Position Open With Right to Object to Features of Plan.

The city of St. Louis today withdrew its indorsement of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s metropolitan service plan, which has drawn many complaints from subscribers, particularly St. Louis county residents.

Announcement of the change was made by Associate City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris Jr. at a public hearing at Clayton City Hall before the Missouri Public Service Commission.

Ferris, disclosing withdrawal of the indorsement, asked the commission to consider the city's position as open, "with the understanding that the city reserves the right to oppose and object to any features of the company's plan it deems proper."

Comment on Protests.

Referring to the fact that, in the spring of 1953, a previous city administration had indorsed and approved the plan, Ferris said:

"However, shortly after the plan became effective, widespread opposition developed and many protests were filed because of increased bills, restrictive service and for other reasons and the commission therefore quite properly reopened the matter for further investigation and study.

"At the hearing the other week, in this reopened proceeding, I did state on behalf of the city of St. Louis, that the city was still of the opinion that the company's metropolitan service plan was beneficial and decidedly advantageous, and words to that effect, to the people of St. Louis as a whole.

"I should not have made that statement, at least at that time. It now seems obvious, from evidence so far developed at the new hearings, that this statement and indorsement of the plan was premature and that I should have withheld any statement of the city's position until all the evidence was in, and until it could be properly evaluated."

Aldermen Critical.

A resolution adopted by the Board of Aldermen Friday, severely criticizing the city administration for failing to protest against the metropolitan service plan, was introduced at the hearing today.

A memorandum outlining the city's position will be submitted at the close of the hearing and after all evidence is in, Ferris said.

Today marked start of presentation by the company of evidence in support of its position.

Although the telephone company once estimated the new plan would reduce its revenue by $370,000 annually, C. R. DeWitt, chief supervisory accountant, testified a new study indicated an annual $190,000 increase would result. However, he warned that an accurate figure could not be given until the plan, which went into effect Dec. 5, had been in operation one year.

Denies Plan Is Unfair.

DeWitt maintained that the plan was not designed to make money for the company. He asserted that it affected no group of customers unfairly, while, at the same time, giving benefits to a high percentage of subscribers.

A sampling of 11,981 subscribers in the metropolitan area, representing 3.3 per cent of the total 364,580 in the area, showed 34 per cent had no change in telephone costs after the plan began operation, DeWitt said.

On the other hand, based on the sampling, 36 per cent of the subscribers in the metropolitan area, or an estimated 130,126, received lower monthly bills, the witness declared. Increases, he said, were felt by 30 per cent, or 109,498.

Of the higher bills, 70 per cent were less than $1 higher a month, 20 per cent were $1 to $2 higher and the remaining 10 per cent were more than $2 higher, DeWitt told the commission. He said the average increase was 91 cents.

Among subscribers whose bills were lower, 79 per cent had reductions of less than $1, 16 per cent of $1 to $2, and 5 per cent of $2 or more. The average decrease was 61 cents, DeWitt said.

Subscribers whose bills are higher under the new plan include 68,361 in St. Louis, with an average increase of 64 cents; 28,019 in the first tier (Ferguson, Ladue, Mehlville, Overland, Riverview, Sappington and Webster), with an average increase of $1.08, and 13,118 in the second tier (Creve Coeur, Florissant, Kirkwood, Oakville, Pattonville, Spanish Lake), average increase, $1.97.

In St. Louis, bills of 96,608 customers were reduced under the plan, DeWitt said. The average decrease was estimated at 39 cents.

In the first tier, there were reductions, averaging $1.27 each, for 29,552 customers, while the second tier had 3966 subscribers who received lower bills, averaging $1.05 less, the company witness declared.

Since start of the hearing May 24, a total of 71 individuals and representatives of organizations has testified against the plan. Most have been from St. Louis county.

The telephone company, in presenting its evidence, is attempting to show that the complainants represented only a very small minority of subscribers in the area.

It contends that customers on the whole would benefit by the new plan, which purportedly would eliminate annually 14,000,000 interzone charges in the St. Louis area.

The plan sets up a new system of suburban service tiers, which the company said would greatly increase the number of customers who could make calls without incurring inter-zone charges.

While rates for some subscribers would be increased, the company stated, the over-all effect would be reduction in revenue, offset by reduced expenses in ticketing and billing suburban calls.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

By HARRY WILENSKY
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 7—We are living in an emotional age in which "insinuation replaces evidence and vilification supplants logic," Chief Justice Earl Warren of the United States Supreme Court declared here yesterday.

Delivering the commencement address at MacMurray College, he urged graduates of the college for women to help bring about an era of understanding and good will in the United States.

"I assure you it is badly needed," he said. "Until it is accomplished, we lose stature both at home and abroad."

Duty to Seek Truth.

Citizens have a duty to avoid hasty conclusions and seek the truth in forming opinions, Chief Justice Warren emphasized, declaring:

"In this turbulent world of bitter ideologies, our peace-loving Republic can be guided to its destiny only by the light of truth. That truth in order to prevail must find lodgment in the hearts and minds of every American citizen, because only the truth can keep us free.

"That truth cannot be acquired merely from the 'spot news' of the day, or through the gossip of the cocktail hour, or in any easy or ephemeral manner. It requires effort—daily effort. Above all, it calls for a habit of serious reading to learn the lessons of the past which, after all, are the best guides for conscience in solving the problems of this or any other day."

"Its form is easily counterfeited," he warned, "but its spirit either lives or dies according to existing standards of civic intelligence and social morality."

Educational institutions play a major role in providing these high standards, he continued.

"Nowhere do we find people of greater devotion to the principles and ideals of our nation than in the faculties of our American colleges and universities," he said. "They are a dedicated group, and they must always have access to truth and the right to pursue it, unrestricted by government and uninfluenced by passing waves of prejudice or passion."

Aim of College Training.

The jurist said college training is designed to enable students to detect "the difference between history and gossip, between evidence and rumor." Observation of these differences should be cultivated until it becomes a habit of mind, he declared, adding:

"Its possession is an indispensable requisite for exercising responsible judgment—for translating into daily practice a citizen's duty of truth-seeking and tolerance and justice.

"It cannot be acquired easily, because we are living in an emotional age when most of the reported news of the day is not only controversial but bitter. We receive an abundance of information, but it is difficult to separate the wheat from the chaff. We are flooded with charges and counter-charges as a substitute for proof. Insinuation replaces evidence, and vilification supplants logic. Epithets, slogans and catchy phrases abound until too often we become lost in a maze of rhetorical bitterness."

Awarded Degree.

The Chief Justice, a towering black-robed figure crowned by a shock of white hair, spoke with great earnestness to an assembly of more than 3000 persons on the Ann Rutledge Quadrangle. His address was rebroadcast last night over the Columbia network.

MacMurray College awarded the jurist an honorary degree. It had planned to give him a doctorate of laws, but since he already has LL.D.s from eight schools, he was given the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters instead.

Three other honorary degrees were awarded. Donald T. Forsythe of Carthage, Ill., president of Kiwanis International, received the Doctor of Humane Letters degree; Robert E. Ortmayer, Nashville, Tenn., editor of religious periodicals, Doctor of Divinity, and Mrs. Ruth Painter Randall, Urbana, Ill., Lincoln biographer, Doctor of Literature.

NARCOTICS CASE DISMISSED

An indictment charging Edward Thomas, living in the 2600 block of Madison street, with violation of the federal anti-narcotics law, was dismissed today by United States District Judge George H. Moore.

Thomas, a Negro, was charged as a seller of narcotics in the indictment, which was returned by the federal grand jury here March 10.

WHISKY THEFT CASE DUE TO GO TO JURY TODAY

Arguments Begun Following Brief Rebuttal Testimony by Government Witnesses.

The case of five men charged with participation in the theft of a $50,000 interstate shipment of whisky in St. Louis county Nov. 10, 1952, was expected to go to a jury in the United States District Court late today following arguments by counsel and the court's instructions.

Arguments began shortly before noon, following brief rebuttal testimony by four Government witnesses. Each side was allotted two hours for arguments. The time will be divided by four defense attorneys and two Assistant United States Attorneys.

Defendants are: Paul H. Hulahan, AFL Building Laborers business agent, who is under a 12-year prison sentence for labor racketeering; Wilbur Don Tripp, former St. Louis county tavern operator; Melvin E. von Behren, operator of a salvage yard on Lucas-Hunt road, where the stolen whisky was recovered; John Anselmo, now serving five years in the Missouri penitentiary for robbery, and Joseph Camarata, a steamfitter living in St. Louis county.

At the conclusion of the rebuttal, defense attorneys moved to dismiss the charges against their clients. Judge Roy W. Harper overruled the motions with reference to Hulahan, Tripp, Von Behren and Cammarata, each of whom is charged in four counts of an indictment. Three counts were dismissed in the charge against Anselmo, named in Government testimony in connection with the alleged conspiracy to steal the whisky, but not in the actual execution of the plan.

Two other men, Ross Longo, driver of a truck for Gallatin Truck Lines, Inc., from which the whisky was removed and John Gagliano, an ironworker, entered pleas of guilty before the trial began. They will be sentenced June 18.

Longo, of Robertson, named Von Behren, Hulahan, Tripp, Gagliano and Cammarata as the men who unloaded the whisky at Von Behren's salvage yard and carried it into a frame building where it was stored. The whisky was discovered more than a month later by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and deputies of Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley. Handling of the whisky investigation is a principal complaint in the Attorney General's ouster suit against Mosley.

Von Behren testified he rented a section of his building to a "John Russo," who, he told the jury, "brought the whisky in there." Tripp, Hulahan and Cammarata denied participation in the theft.

The trial was resumed today following a three-day recess. Assistant United States Attorney Wayne Bigler Jr., who presented the opening argument for the prosecution, told the jury: "The question here is who took the whisky, and was there a conspiracy to steal the shipment?" Bigler referred to Hulahan, who formerly operated a tavern in Pine Lawn, as "the moving spirit behind this conspiracy."

Maximum punishment on conviction is 10 years in prison on each of three counts of the indictment, stealing, receiving and possession of the whisky, and five years on the conspiracy charge, a total of 35 years.

NEW PLEA MADE BY EISENHOWER FOR HIS PROGRAM

President Presented Honorary Degree at Washington College, Re-Lists Major Aims.

CHESTERTOWN, Md., June 7 (AP) — President Eisenhower called today for enactment of his legislative program and cautioned that Americans must keep watch constantly to make sure people in Government do not become "merely busybodies."

The President made the dual appeal in a 10-minute ifnormal talk at commencement exercises at Washington College. He spoke after receiving an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Eisenhower told his news conference last week that from then on he was going to devote—as put it—his exclusive attention to getting his legislative program through Congress.

The President is known to be concerned about lack of conclusive action in Congress so far on many phases of the program.

Lists Issues.

Today he told an audience of about 2000 persons at the outdoor commencement exercises that programs have to be defined in such fields as social security, farm legislation, tax revision, slum clearance and housing.

Action in all of those fields by the Federal Government falls within a proper sphere of Governmental action, the President declared.

But he cautioned then "it is up to all of us to see that all that service is limited to what must be and need be."

It is imperative, he added to make sure that Government does not overstep "and does not get into something where they are merely busybodies."

He said that "at this moment there is before Congress a whole series" of the proper kind of proposals to define, "the line between government and fields it should not invade."

Drives 40 Miles.

Mr. Eisenhower came here after landing at Dover (Del.) Air Force Base. He drove 40 miles to the campus.

The President was greeted enthusiastically in the small eastern shore towns between Dover and Chesterton. He drove most of the time in a convertible with the top down, accompanied by Maryland's Republican governor, Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin.

Schools in the area were closed for the day and the Presidtnt slowed before several to give the flag-waving children a special salute.

Tucker Says Public Housing Is Vital to the United States

Mayor Tells of Rehabilitation Efforts in St. Louis in Talk Before Conference in Washington.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 7—Without public housing there can be no hope of full rehabilitation of St. Louis, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker told the opening session of the conference of the National Association of Housing Officials today.

Speaking at Hotel Statler, Mayor Tucker gave an emphatic "yes" to the question whether public housing is needed in this country, and he expressed the hope Congress would heed President Eisenhower's request for a continuance of the public housing program.

"Public housing plays a key role in our efforts to rebuild a great city," he told the conference. "One of its most important functions is that of providing housing for the low-income groups we must move from slum areas scheduled for redevelopment."

Describes Efforts Here.

Describing efforts now in progress in St. Louis to replace thousands of filth-breeding slum blocks "with the first decent housing ever made available to many of our citizens," he told how private capital and public funds were working hand in hand to clear blighted areas for housing as well as for industrial use.

"However," he said, "our hopes for the future are indeed dim if we lose any one of the vital components for our great programs of progress. Public housing and urban redevelopment are two of those vital components.

"In St. Louis we feel that children with the advantage of sound family life in a community environment conducive to clean living have the best initial training our young citizens can obtain. Public housing gives these advantages.

"I firmly believe that such family life and training is an essential background to making an entire nation strong spiritually, economically and physically. Our people will know from their own home life how great democracy is and how highly it should be cherished and safeguarded."

Declaring the housing program should not be dropped until there is sound assurance of adequate replacement, Mayor Tucker said he was a bit weary of "non-constructive criticism by those who take great delight in being against everything, but offering nothing as a substitute."

Turning to what he called some of the shortcomings of public housing, he said something should be done about payments in lieu of taxes and something should be done about the inadequate amounts being spent for maintenance.

He charged that many local public housing officials had not "played ball" with the mayor and city council of the various cities.

Officials Often in Dark.

"One of the greatest faults is not keeping elected municipal officials currently advised of developments in your respective programs," he said.

Pointing out that the vast majority of citizens do not understand the intricacies of the various lines and limits of government responsibilities and therefore look to the mayor or their city council for the solution to every municipal problem, Mayor Tucker said:

"By failing to work closely with your mayor and city council, many of you have created awkward situations not only for yourselves but also for other public officials. From the standpoint of developing a good housing program with wide public support, it would be much better to avoid such situations. After all, conscientious city officials are as interested as you are in the betterment of their city."

CHANCES FOR COOL SUMMER 7 TO 3 IN EXPERT'S BOOK

The chances now are 7 to 3 in favor of a cool summer in the St. Louis area, and if June continues cool, the odds will soar to 4 to 1, Edward M. Brooks, professor of geophysics and geophysical engineering at St. Louis University, said today.

Brooks, a weather authority, based his forecast on this year's unusually cool May. In 1952 and 1953, he accurately predicted scorching summers on the strength of warm Mays. Statistics of the last 50 years are used.

Promising a pleasant summer of average or below average temperatures meant a revision of Brooks's gloomy statement of early May, when he took a look at April, shook his head and said that odds were 3 to 2 in favor of another hot, dry summer.

"There will be some hot days," he says now, but he added that over the stretch 1954's summer ought to be on the cool side. Summer, in the weather expert's definition, includes July, August and September.

GRANITE CITY YOUTH DROWNS IN CANAL

Friends Swimming With Him Fail in Rescue Efforts.

Charles Everett Wilson, 19 years old, of Granite City, drowned yesterday, despite efforts of two companions to rescue him, while swimming in the Chain of Rocks Canal.

Wilson had been swimming only a few minutes in the canal, a navigational channel of the Mississippi river north of Granite City, when he began thrashing about in the water.

His companions, Ronald Easley, 2908 Myrtle avenue, and Jack Ritchie, 2802 Marshall avenue, both of Granite City, swam to his assistance. But they were unable to save him as he kept pulling them under the water. He finally disappeared.

The body was recovered about an hour and a half later. Wilson, an unemployed factory worker, was the son of Basil Wilson, 2800 Marshall.

GRAND JURY TO GET RECORD OF VENDING MACHINE FIRM

A stipulation, in which John Gazzoli, vice president and treasurer of the Star Novelty Co., 4151 Delmare boulevard, agreed to produce financial records of the vending machine company's operations for the federal grand jury, was entered today in United States District Judge George H. Moore's court.

However, both Gazzoli and his attorney, Wilbur A. Sale, reserved the right to immunity in appearing before the jury. Attorneys in the case indicated some private records kept by Gazzoli of a partnership, which existed before the company became a corporation Oct. 1, 1952, would not be made available for the inquiry.

Max H. Goldschein, special assistant attorney general had sought to obtain all financial records of the corporation and the partnership. Hearings were held last Thursday and Friday.

Admits Dismembering Body.

STOCKHOLM, June 7 (AP)—Police said today a former butcher foreman had confessed shooting an unidentified man in a dispute about a harmonica, cutting up his body and stuffing it into two suitcases. The suitcases were found last night.

LEARNING ON DECLINE, RABBI ISSERMAN SAYS

Warns Revival of Religion May Be Revival of Belief in Magic.

The tradition of learning is on the decline in the United States, and what many people feel to be a revival of religion in modern times may in truth be only a revival of belief in magic, Rabbi Ferdinand Isserman of Temple Israel said yesterday at Washington University.

Speaking at the university's annual baccalaureate service, Rabbi Isserman said religion must be re-allied with learning if it is to prove the salvation of humanity. That was his challenge to the graduating class.

"The wane of learning," he declared, "is to be seen in the popularity of sneers against the intellectuals, in the ridicule cast against a candidate for public office because of his cultured background, in the general lack of appreciation for the man of learning, unless that learning can be reduced to dollars and cents."

Rabbi Isserman warned that religion without wisdom and education may become fanaticism, bigotry and superstition. It may bless segregation, he observed, whereas enlightened religion will lead to brotherhood of man under God.

"An excellent example of the marriage of the tradition of learning and of faith can be seen," the speaker said, "in the Supreme Court's decision outlawing segregation. The institutions of religion have long proclaimed the brotherhood of man, the equality of all men made in God's image.

"These religious doctrines were substantiated by modern anthropological science which pointed out that there are no superior and no inferior races, but backward and advanced people, and backward peoples by a change in environment may become advanced."

Rabbi Isserman reminded his audience that the great religions wrote the great books and fostered education, nourishing the tradition of the cultivated mind. Today, he said, people are enamoured of gadgets which make for comfort, but not for wisdom.

"Our national heroes have become athletes, comedians and motion picture actors and actresses," he said. "They have become the authorities whose opinions count most, and are quoted by hucksters who thus seek to vend their wares."

Despite the threat of nuclear warfare, young people now entering adult life will not properly be called a lost generation, Rabbi Isserman said, unless they are afraid to state their convictions, and to stand by them and die for them if need be.

He urged the graduating class to man the ramparts against anti-intellectualism. He said: "If you will cherish high religion over and against superstition and magic, if you will live the noble life . . . by resolutely being unafraid of opposition, then perhaps you, too, and the rest of your generation will lay the foundation for a new era in human life."

U.S. SAID TO HAVE ATOM DEVICES TOO PERILOUS TO TEST

WATERBURY, Conn., June 7 (AP) — Representative James T. Patterson (Rep.), Connecticut, a member of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, said last night the United States has two nuclear "devices" which are too dangerous to be tested.

Questioned before he addressed a banquet, Patterson said President Eisenhower had ordered only "limited" development of the devices on the advice of scientists.

"I call them devices," he said. "I won't call them bombs."

He declined to discuss the so-called devices further for security reasons. He told the banquet later:

"These are troubled times. I say that because of my position on the Atomic Energy Committee and the House Armed Services Committee, I know what could happen. If another war should start it would mean the destruction of all of us."

7 AMERICAN FLYERS LOST IN TWO FAR EAST CRASHES

TOKYO, June 7 (AP)—The United States Navy reported last night that one body has been recovered and four other airmen are presumed dead after a JD-1 utility plane crashed in the Inland Sea Sunday.

The search was resumed today. The customary investigation was ordered to determine cause of the crash.

SEOUL, June 7 (UP)—Two American soldiers were killed today when an H-19 Army helicopter developed engine trouble and crashed into a building five miles east of Seoul. The pilot and co-pilot were seriously injured.

MARSHAL NOMINATION VOTED

TCP increases acceleration up to 15% within 400 miles

Shell-discovered additive, TCP, blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, breaks through power barrier set up by pre-ignition and spark plug "miss"*

It is the greatest gasoline development in 31 years

WHETHER yours is a new car barely past the 2000-mile mark—or an "old faithful"—it's almost certain that you're getting less response than you should when you step down on the accelerator—as much as 15% less.

The power barrier

There's a wall between you and full engine power. It is caused by lead and carbon deposits that glow red hot in combustion chambers to pre-ignite fuel before the piston is in proper firing position.

These same deposits form on spark plugs and act as electrical conductors to short-circuit them. Then your spark plugs misfire.

These twin power thieves, pre-ignition and misfiring, are most active when you need power most, during acceleration or on hills.

TCP, the unique Shell-discovered fuel additive, corrects both pre-ignition and misfiring. It "fireproofs" deposits in the combustion chamber, prevents them from glowing red hot to pre-fire fuel. It makes the deposits on spark plugs nonconductive, and ends misfiring.

TCP breaks through barrier—fast

So quickly does Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP go to work that you'll feel the difference—up to 15% more power, more acceleration—by the time you've driven 400 miles. But engine deposits accumulate constantly. Continued use of TCP additive is necessary to maintain your power and performance gains.

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is the greatest gasoline development since the discovery of tetraethyl lead. It is available at all Shell Dealer Stations.

Cohn Urged Stevens To Get Schine in CIA

arrangements had been made for Schine to be assigned to temporary duty with the First Army in New York, so he could continue working for the McCarthy subcommittee for two weeks.

If anything should go wrong with that arrangement, Stevens said, Cohn should get in touch with him immediately. This arrangement was cancelled by McCarthy after about a week, and Schine began his basic training.

A series of calls between Army Counselor Adams and Francis P. Carr, staff director for the McCarthy subcommittee, also went into the record. But they were months after Schine went into the Army and after the controversy developed between Stevens and McCarthy.

However, Schine's name came into the Adams-Carr talks. In calls between Carr and Adams on March 2, 3 and 4, Adams was asking about a "new investigation" by the McCarthy subcommittee, in relation to a subpena for an Army witness.

Carr replied this was a "secret" and he could not discuss it over the phone, but it did not "in any way affect the Army." Carr said he would tell Adams about it in person.

Adams asked if "Roy" was in town and was told that Cohn was around but was not in the office. The two agreed it would be best for them to meet in the subcommittee office.

Adams suggested the nearby Methodist building. Carr said that would be a good place — "nobody goes there."

'Are You Recording This?'

In a monitored March 5 call, Adams asked: "Are you recording this conversation." Replied Carr: "There is no use of both doing it."

Adams asked Carr whether he was making any headway "on what we discussed at lunch." Carr said, "Generally, yes."

Adams told Carr that Schine was being considered for "leadership school" after he finished his basic training, and said this could lead to a warrant officer's rating.

But, Adams said, "For God's sake don't tell Roy."

Adams added that Cohn "almost blew the roof off the building" on a previous occasion over the length of Schine's basic training. He told Carr there was no firm commitment that Schine would go to the leadership school.

When Adams said four weeks at leadership school "does not make a general," Carr agreed but said, "Don't tell Roy."

This conversation developed that Schine was being "discreet." He quit using his Cadillac and bought a second-hand Chevrolet.

In the same call, Carr told Adams he saw signs of "general progress" but did not state specifically whether this was a reference to relations between the Army and McCarthy or Cohn. Carr told Adams, "keep the Indians working and you will be ahead."

A March 9 call pictured Carr as acting somewhat in the role of a peacemaker between the subcommittee and the Army. Carr at one point said he had "gone to great lengths" and was "a little disturbed" because Adams did not appear to want to come up and talk to him.

Adams denied any reluctance but said he had been "working myself to the bone."

Carr: "I thouhgt I was working with you."

Adams: "I have hoped we were working on the same problem."

Adams then promised to see Carr soon.

There were five Cohn-Stevens talks which had no mention of Schine. It developed there were two versions of Schine's Oct. 24 phone talk with Stevens, which was monitored by John Lucas, an aid to Stevens.

One is Lucas's own transcript which the Army has. The other is one which a stenographer for McCarthy's Senate Investigations subcommittee typed last May from dictation Lucas gave her from his notes. This Lucas dictation was for the benefit of the hearings subcommittee.

In the Lucas-dictated version, at one point there is a reference to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson as agreeing with Stevens on Schine. Lucas, in the witness chair, said that was an error. But other references to Wilson's approval of Stevens's stand on Schine are in both versions.

Lucas insisted also that records show Schine tried unsuccessfully to call Stevens on Oct. 19 and that the Oct. 21 call by Stevens was in response to it.

Stevens had testified Schine called him on Oct. 21.

Schine testified today the Oct. 19 call was about another matter altogether—a planned visit by the McCarthy subcommittee staff to Fort Monmouth, N.J. He said he concluded the business of that call by talking with an aid to Stevens.

McCarthy's monitored calls to Stevens pointed up a stand by McCarthy last fall, when Schine was drafted, that the Senator did not view Schine as indispensable to his subcommittee but didn't want Cohn to know he felt that way.

In a monitored McCarthy-Stevens telephone call of Nov. 7, read today, McCarthy was quoted as saying: "For God's sake, don't tell ..... He would go right back and tell Roy."

This line was not included in the transcripts of his calls which McCarthy himself released for publication over the weekend. McCarthy, in giving his transcripts of three McCarthy and Stevens phone calls to three wire services, stipulated he was not to be named as the source. He was named as the source later, however, by the New York Times.

It never was disclosed who the person was that McCarthy was cautioning Stevens not to tell.

Name Kept Secret.

Senators conducting the hearings looked at the transcript, but decided the person mentioned by McCarthy was not connected with the present controversy, and that his name had just as well be kept secret.

McCarthy's comment that the unnamed person "would go right back and tell Roy" came after McCarthy told Stevens that Schine "is one of the few things" he had seen Cohn, "completely unreasonable about."

McCarthy had said that Cohn "thinks Dave should be a general and work from a penthouse of the Waldorf."

Schine was technically drafted Nov. 3 but did not actually report to training camp until Nov. 10. He was given a week after technical drafting in which to work on McCarthy subcommittee business.

Special counsel Ray H. Jenkins read the McCarthy-Stevens transcripts and did a bit of editing in the process.

Jenkins read the statement thus: "Why don't you drop over here about 5:00 and we will go across the street and have some refreshments together."

In the transcript of the call released by McCarthy himself over the weekend, the line read ". . . and we will go across the street and have a drink."

At another point today, Jenkins read a statement by McCarthy thus, after a pause: "I don't care whether an officer is a general or what he is. . . ."

In the transcript released by McCarthy, this line read: "I don't give a damn whether an officer is a general or what he is. . . ."

Among other transcripts going into the record were those of three talks between Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkanas, and Stevens. In one of these, McClellan advised Stevens that, since McCarthy was talking of subpenaing Stevens, the Secretary should "beat him to the punch" by asking to be heard by the McCarthy subcommittee.

McCarthy argued briefly with Lucas about the meaning of one part of the Nov. 7 call with Lucas. The portion dealt with these words by McCarthy:

"From my desk today I can

pick up letters from perhaps a half-dozen letters from mothers whose boys are in worse shape than Dave; and it would be embarrassing if held to me. If he (Schine) could get off weekends—Roy—it is one of the few things I have seen him completely unreasonable about."

McCarthy asked Lucas if the two dashes before and after the name of "Roy" did not indicate something had been omitted. Lucas said they did not, that it merely meant a pause or an incomplete sentence.

McCarthy said it was his recollection that something had been omitted concerning his statement that he had "differed" with Cohn over the need for Schine to be off weekends to work for the committee.

(When McCarthy's turn came to question the stenographers, the United Press related, he said he wanted to raise a question about one of the subcommittee members. Mundt said he wanted to get all of the telephone records read first.

(McCarthy said he wanted to make it clear that he intended to make two motions about Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, and one about Clark Clifford, once White House counsel of former President Truman. McCarthy presumably meant that he wanted to "suggest" the motions, because he could not make them himself, having given up his membership on the subcommittee for the duration of the hearings.

(McCarthy previously had demanded that Symington disqualify himself from membership on the committee and testify under oath because of the disclosures in Symington's telephone conversations with Stevens. He also had asked that Clifford be called to testify because Symington had suggested that Stevens retain Clifford as his lawyer in the dispute with McCarthy.)

After Schine began Army training at Fort Dix, N. J., the McCarthy subcommittee made a number of requests for special passes for him. Stevens had agreed Schine could help with subcommittee work on weekends if it did not interfere with his training.

Stevens-Schine Call.

Jenkins read into the record also an apparently friendly conversation between Stevens and Schine on Oct. 21.

The hearings revolve around Army charges that McCarthy and his aids brought improper pressure for favors for Schine; and McCarthy charges that the Army used Schine as a "hostage" to try to "blackmail" the subcommittee into dropping an investigation of the Army.

In the Oct. 21 call, Stevens told "Dave" that he (Stevens) and Secretary Wilson had reviewed the situation "at considerable length" and felt there was no appropriate way for Schine to avoid basic training in the Army.

After basic training, Stevens told Schine, the Army hoped to give Schine an assignment that would make use of his "knowledge and ability in certain fields . . . (an assignment) useful to the country and to yourself."

Stevens then told Schine he (Stevens) was going to California but would be "delighted to hear from you at any time."

Stevens suggested Schine call his office at the Pentagon if he wanted to get in touch with him.

Schine wished Stevens a "nice trip" and said they probably would have to talk over the question again at a later time. Stevens said he would be glad to discuss it further.

Schine was called to the hearing room to be present for the reading of this telephone call. He sat by McCarthy and Cohn.

Cohn complained that Lucas, who monitored the Schine call, was "trying to create the impression that Mr. Schine called Mr. Stevens instead of the other way around."

"It is very clear from the text of that call that it was Stevens who called Schine," Cohn asserted.

Says Schine Called First.

Lucas said Schine had initiated the call two days before when he called Stevens, but did not get to speak to him. At that time, Lucas said, Schine left a New York operator's number which Stevens eventually called.

James St. Clair, an attorney for the Army principals in the dispute, read from the records of the New York Telephone Co. This showed, St. Clair said, that Schine called Stevens from New York at 1:37 p.m. on Oct. 19.

Lucas said Stevens was out of the city the following day,

Schine then testified his Oct. 19 call dealt with arrangements for a trip to Fort Monmouth, N.J., and was a completed call in that he talked with an aid to Stevens. He said Stevens called him Oct. 21.

"If Mr. Stevens was returning a call of mine he would have asked me what I was calling about," Schine said. The text shows, Schine commented, that Stevens "did most of the talking and I did most of the listening."

St. Clair said he will offer records later to show that Schine on Oct. 19 asked that Stevens call him back.

Cohn insisted, however, that the record is clear that Stevens, and not Schine, initiated the Oct. 21 call.

It developed that the McCarthy camp earlier got a version of the transcript by getting Lucas to dictate from his notes to Mrs. Frances Mims of the McCarthy subcommittee staff.

Discrepancy on Calls.

Cohn contended that Lucas himself had said in an interview at which the McCarthy camp got its version of the transcript that his notes indicated Stevens had placed the call. He said Lucas stated that "it was very clear" this was true. Lucas insisted Stevens was returning a Schine call.

The McCarthy camp's version contained a phrase that "it is Mr. Wilson's and my conviction" that there existed the "excellent chance" mentioned in the text. Lucas said it should read "it is my honest conviction."

Jenkins said this and some "minor discrepancies" elhewhere were the result of misunderstandings in dictation of the notes to a stenographer.

Cohn and McCarthy brought out that Stevens had testified Schine called him on Oct. 21. Lucas agreed, under questioning by Cohn, that Stevens actually had called Schine on Oct. 21.

McCarthy commented "there is something very rotten" about conflicting records of the telephone call.

Under close questioning by McCarthy, Lucas stuck to his story that the version the witness had before him—that Stevens was returning a call made by Schine on Oct. 19—was prepared before he dictated the varying version that Jenkins had read to the committee.

Solis Horowitz, an associate committee counsel, testified under oath that the version dictated to Mrs. Mims was dictated early in May and did not carry any "return" call reading.

Horowitz testified also that Lucas dictated from his shorthand notes in the presence of attorneys, and the opening words were "Secretary Stevens called Mr. Schine."

Stevens had telephoned McClellan to discuss his clash with McCarthy over alleged abue of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker by McCarthy.

Stevens told McClellan he had talked with McCarthy, who was in Albany, N.Y., at the time, and told him he was consulting with McClellan and other members of the McCarthy Senate Investigations subcommittee.

McCarthy "hopped on me pretty hard," Stevens said, when the Secretary told McCarthy he was not going to allow Zwicker to come back before the subcommittee.

McCarthy told Stevens over the phone at that time that he was under subpena to testify the following Tuesday.

Stevens told McClellan he was willing to go before the McCarthy subcommittee at the "appropriate time," but was undecided whether the following Tuesday was that time.

Zwicker, commander of Camp Kilmer, N.J., had been questioned on Feb. 18 by McCarthy at a one-man subcommitte hearing behind closed doors in New York City about the honorable discharge of Maj. Irving Peress, a New York City dentist whom McCarthy has described as "a Fifth Amendment Communist."

In a second call from Stevens to McClellan, on Feb. 21, Stevens said "I certainly appreciate the way you, Senator (Stuart) Symington and Senator (Henry M.) Jackson have viewed this thing." (McClellan, Symington of Missouri and Jackson of Washington are the Democrats on the McCarthy subcommittee.)

Stevens on Nov. 20 said he did not want to appear to be requesting an appearance before the McCarthy subcommittee on the Zwicker issue, but he would be glad to appear if asked.

Stevens said he hoped sessions could be deferred until Senator Symington returned from a trip to Europe. He said also he felt any hearings on the controversy should be public.

Stevens pictured Mundt as "very much distressed" over reports of abuse of Zwicker. Stevens added Mundt was anxious to see the record of the Zwicker hearings.

Stevens in the conversation, said parts of the record of the Zwicker hearing had been deleted. McClellan suggested that Stevens ask the official reporter for a full record. Stevens said he had affidavits as to what happened, but wanted to give them to the subcommittee and not the press.

Record of March 1 Call.

Also read into the record was another monitored call between McClellan and Stevens, March 1, in which McClellan said he was "surprised when you got off over there with that gang without anybody with you."

This appeared to be a reference to the now famous "chicken luncheon" between Stevens and Republican members of the McCarthy subcommittee at which a memorandum of understanding was reached.

McClellan also told Stevens he took the position that it was "a Republican quarrel."

Stevens, Army Counselor John G. Adams and Cohn are the only principals to have taken the witness stand at length so far. This was the twenty-eighth day of the hearing.

(Before the day's session began, McClellan told the United Press he thinks it "quite possible" that the subcommittee of four Republicans and three Democrats will not be able to agree on one report at the end of the hearings.

(He said he would favor making whatever report, or reports, are indicated immediately after the hearings wind up, without waiting for any action by the Department of Justice, which is studying the transcripts carefully for evidence of perjury or other law violations.)

Statement by Mundt.

Acting Chairman Mundt said Friday the telephone evidence throws new light on the affair, but did not amplify on his remarks.

While the subcommittee planned to bring into the record today more from the file of Army-monitored talks between Secretary Stevens and subcommittee members and Stevens and McCarthy side principals, a number of reported phone transcripts between Stevens and the McCarthy camp found their way into public print over the weekend.

Yesterday the Chicago Tribune published what it said was the text of a call between Stevents and Schine before Schine was inducted as a private.

Stevens-Schine Call.

In the Stevens-Schine call, the Chicago Tribune said, Stevens phoned Schine at his New York office 12 days before Schine was to be inducted into the Army and told him "there was no appropriate way to avoid basic training."

It said that in the conversation—dated Oct. 21, 1953—the Army Secretary addressed the future private as "Dave" and outlined to him in friendly fashion how he would be treated when he went into the Army.

"I personally would like to arrange it in such a way that you would come into this Army or military establishment in such a way that you could use the knowledge and ability you have in certain fields," Stevens was quoted as saying, "but I won't discuss it over the phone."

Stevens 'Surprised.'

Stevens, at Raleigh, N.C., yesterday to receive an honorary degree from North Carolina State College, said he was "greatly surprised" to hear of McCarthy making public the phone transcripts over the weekend outside of the subcommittee proceedings. "It is something I would not do," Stevens said.

McCarthy said in an interview at Milwaukee yesterday that while the executive branch of the Government has the responsibility of enforcing the law, "Congress is charged with making certain it is done."

"There is no point beyond which the activities of the executive department" in cases of suspected wrongdoing "cease to be the interest of Congress," he said. "Only the method of investigation need be kept private."

COUNTY POLLING PLACES TO BE OPEN TOMORROW FOR VOTER REGISTRATION

THE 415 polling places of St. Louis county will be open tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. for an intermediate registration of voters. Unregistered persons who fail to register tomorrow will have until June 28 to register at the Clayton courthouse Election Board office if they wish to be eligible to vote in the Aug. 3 primary.

Voters who have moved within the county must transfer their registration before July 13. This may be done in person or by mail.

Any person is eligible to register and vote if he will be 21 years old before Aug. 3, and if he has lived in the state more than a year and in the precinct where he now lives for 60 days.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TO VISIT RUSSIA FOR MAGAZINE

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 7—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt will visit Russia next month on an assignment for Look magazine, the magazine disclosed yesterday.

Mrs. Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, N.Y., confirmed that she will make the trip, but would not comment about it. She referred all questions about the trip to the magazine.

In Washington, the State Department said Mrs. Roosevelt has a diplomatic-type passport. Such documents are issued to former Presidents and their wives as a courtesy.

State Department officials said Mrs. Roosevelt notified them of her plans, in line with United States Government requirements that passports be especially validated for any travel in Russia or the Iron Curtain countries.

At the Soviet Embassy, a spokesman said a visa to Russia was issued to Mrs. Roosevelt two weeks ago.

MAN FOUND HANGED ON FARM

The body of Edumund W. Schirmer, 46 years old, was found today hanging from a rope attached to a rafter of a storage building on his farm at Gumbo, the St. Louis county sheriff's office reported.

His brother, Ernest Schirmer, said he had suffered from a nervous condition. An inquest will be held.

rates, the case was taken to the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, which decided the Commission did have regulatory power.

Phillips, the FPC, and Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico then appealed to the Supreme Court to uphold the commission's ruling. Wisconsin, Michigan, Detroit, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Mo., and Wayne County, Mich., intervened to urge that Phillips was a natural gas company which made interstate sales that should be regulated by FPC.

The Supreme Court on Nov. 30, 1953 refused to review the case. Phillips urged the court to reconsider, saying it was an important test case. The high trihunal last Jan. 18 reversed itselt and agreed to hear the case. Arguments were made before the court last April 6 and 7.

In the ruling upholding the lobbying act, Chief Justice Warren delivered the 5-to-3 decision.

Dissenting Opinions.

The ruling was given on an appeal by the Justice Department from District Judge Holtzoff's finding, which the Government said had the effect of knocking out the entire act.

The lobbying law requires the registration and filing of financial reports with Congress by persons who try to influence the passage or defeat of legislation. Penalty provisions include a fine, imprisonment, or both—plus a bar for three years from further lobbying activities.

Holtzoff said the registration and filing provisions were unconstitutional. He declared the three-year lobbying bar on violators was repugnant to freedom of speech and of petition.

Defendants in the case are Robert M. Harriss a New York commodity broker; Ralph W. Moore, a commodity trader here, Tom Linder, a former Georgia agricultural commissioner, and the National Farm Committee.

WRITERS' SEMINAR OPENS TONIGHT, SPEAKERS LISTED

Harold C. Hand, professor of education at the University of Illinois, will speak tonight at the first meeting of a five-day writers' seminar, sponsored by the National Association of Educational Broadcasters. The seminar will be held at studios of Station KSLH, the Board of Education's radio station at 1517 Theresa avenue.

Miss Gertrude McCance, supervisor of school broadcasts in Winnipeg, Manitoba, will be speaker at the session tomorrow.

The writers' seminar is financed by Kellogg Foundation funds. Twenty-two writers of in-school radio and television programs from educational stations in various sections of the country were awarded fellowships to the seminar.

ANTI-RED MOVEMENT AIDED BY LIONS CLUB

Speaker Here Says Group in Philippines Played a Major Role.

The Lions International organization played a major role in discouraging Communism in the Philippine Islands by a program of constructive action, Harold P. Nutter of Camden, N.J., a past international president, said here today.

Nutter, who headed the organization in 1952, addressed the thirty-second annual convention of Lions International of Missouri at Hotel Jefferson. The meeting began yesterday and will end tomorrow.

The Philippines's new president, Ramon Magsaysay, is a "very active Lion," Nutter declared, and the Lions organization in the islands was responsible for a plan which induced thousands of landless peasants to embrace democracy.

Nutter said the program, called the Economic Development Corps, involved offering the pro-Communist Huk (Hukbalahap) membership immunity and land if they would lay down their arms and come down from the hills.

Lions clubs of California and other states helped by donating more than 100 tons of second-hand machinery which was sent to the Philippines, Nutter said. He described such assistance as "action instead of lip-service" in the anti-Communist cause.

The speaker, who last year toured the 33 foreign countries in which the organization has chapters, also told of having presented the first charter to a club in Germany. He will deliver another address at a district governor's banquet tonight. About 1200 persons are attending the convention.

NEGROES USE SWIMMING POOL FIRST TIME IN ST. JOSEPH, MO.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 7 (AP)—Negroes appeared at the Uptown Municipal Swimming Pool for the first time in its 29-year history Saturday and were admitted. There was no untoward incident.

It was the opening day of the season for the St. Joseph pools. About 35 of the approximately 250 who went to the Uptown pool were Negroes.

No Negroes went to the other municipal pool, which is in the south side.

City Recreation Manager George Markley said he had never heard of a Negro being barred from either pool but that none had ever sought admittance before today.

HAILE SELASSIE ARRIVES IN DETROIT FOR VISIT

DETROIT, June 7 (UP)—Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia arrived here from Canada today for visits to Detroit, Ann Arbor and Lansing.

The monarch, who is touring the United States, Canada and Mexico, landed at Windsor, Ont., Sunday night after a flight from Montreal in a Royal Canadian Air Force plane.

He rode across the Ambassador Bridge in a motorcade, accompanied by an official party of 18 which included his third son, Prince Sahle Selassie Haile Selassie; a granddaughter, Sebla Desta Selassie, and State Department officials. Mayor Albert E. Cobo met them at the City Hall steps.

12 SCIENTISTS SAID TO QUIT DUE TO PROBE

Resignations at Fort Monmouth Laid to Charges Against Their Colleagues.

CHICAGO, June 7 (UP)—A group of atomic scientists says "roughly a dozen" top scientists are quitting their posts at the Fort Monmouth (N. J.), radar laboratories because of security charges against their colleagues.

The group, the atomic scientists of Chicago, said last night that the resignations were a "serious repercussion" of recent investigations of Fort Monmouth.

The investigations were started by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, and have figured prominently in the current Army-McCarthy hearings.

The Chicago group, composed of leading nuclear scientists here, added that "adverse" decisions, presumably calling for dismissal, have been made against four out of 21 persons under suspension at Fort Monmouth.

"Roughly a dozen who have been implicated in no way with the suspensions have expressly indicated that the conditions described here have been responsible for their decision to leave," the Chicago scientists said.

"Four of these have occurred in the last week," they added.

The scientists' statement was contained in an announcement that they are reprinting the results of an independent investigation at Fort Monmouth sponsored by the Federation of American scientists.

The report, which was originally released April 25, said it found no evidence of espionage at Fort Monmouth.

The Chicago scientists said they decided to offer the report to the general public because of the "current television focus" placed on Fort Monmouth by the Army-McCarthy hearings.

In view of the federation report, the scientists said, it was "disturbing" that Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens "permitted such grossly distorted charges" to go into the hearing record.

CHINA AND BRITAIN TO TRADE BUSINESS MISSIONS, REDS SAY

GENEVA, July 7 (UP)—The Chinese Communist delegation here announced today that China and Britain will exchange missions in an effort to boost trade between the two countries.

The announcement said a nine-member trade delegation will go first to Britain. Later a British mission will visit Red China.

Informed sources here and the British Federation of Industries in London had said last week that the Chinese mission would visit Britain following talks here between British industrial representatives and the Chinese delegation.

British newspapers have welcomed the prospects of a trade expansion.

Trade, however, would be in non-strategic products. The United Nations' embargo list of goods which may be sold to Red China still applies.

NARCOTIC SELLER ORDERED TO NAME SOURCE OF SUPPLY

Marc S. Kaplan, a seller of narcotics, today was ordered by United States District Judge George H. Moore to name the sources of narcotics he purchased and resold last year.

Kaplan, member of a ring handling large quantities of heroin, was placed on probation for five years after pleading guilty last April 8. He was brought into court today by Special Assistant Attorney General William K. Stanard II, who said Kaplan refused to reveal his sources of supply, although instructed last week by the court to do so. The transcript of Kaplan's appearance before teh jury showed he collected a total of $750 in six sales of heroin to an addict late last year. He told Stanard he feared for the safety of his family if he revealed the source of the drug.

Two other members of the narcotics ring, Robert D. Stratton and Ervin Klearman, are under prison sentences. They entered guilty pleas before Judge Moore last Friday. A fourth member of the ring, Jeffrey Taylor, a Negro, was murdered March 28, after he pleaded guilty and was released after paying a small fine.

UNIDENTIFIED SUBMARINE REPORTED OFF BAHAMAS

NASSAU, Bahamas, June 7 (AP) — The United States destroyer escorts Willett and Haas left Nassau today to investigate the sighting of an unidentified submarine 30 miles north of Nassau, the Nassau Tribune reported.

The newspaper said the submarine was spotted about 1:45 p.m. yesterday by a Bahamas Airways plane and submerged when the plane approached.

TWO ROBBERS STEAL $30,000 IN COPACABANA RECEIPTS

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Two men robbed Hotel Fourteen early today, bound two hotel employes with baling wire, stole about $30,000 in Copabanca night club receipts and fled.

The robbers missed another $20,000 belonging to the club.

The night club is in the hotel building. The robbers apparently knew the club kept its weekend receipts in the hotel safe pending the Monday morning bank opening.

Red Chinese Ship Claimed Sunk.

TAIPEH, Formosa, June 7 (AP)—The Interior Ministry's Tatao News Agency today credited seaborne Nationalist guerrillas with having sunk a 500-ton Chinese Communist supply craft off southern Kwangtung province May 26.

EISENHOWER SAID TO HAVE BACKED UP ONCE ON WAR

Planned to Ask Congress for Authority April 26 but British Balked, Paper Reports.

WASHINGTON, June 7 (UP) — The Washington Post and Times Herald said today President Eisenhower was prepared to ask Congress April 26 to permit United States air intervention in Indochina but the plan fell through because the British would not agree.

The White House and State Department declined to comment on the report.

"President Eisenhower was prepared to go to Congress Monday, April 26, to ask for passage of a joint resolution to permit American intervention," the newspaper said in a signed story by its chief diplomatic correspondent, Chalmers Roberts.

Roberts said the British cabinet turned the proposed "united action" air strike down April 25 after an extraordinary Sunday session at which the British Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed it would not save Dien Bien Phu. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden was quoted as personally opposing the move on the ground that it would require ground troops within 48 hours after an air strike.

Radford's Plan.

The story said Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, first presented the plan to Congressional leaders of both parties on April 3. It said Radford told the group the proposal did not have the approval of the other chiefs of staff.

The President himself did not discuss the proposed intervention with either the bipartisan Congressional leaders or the ambassadors of Allied nations, leaving that to Secretary of State Dulles and Radford, the paper said.

If Congress had agreed to the proposed plan, the story added, 200 United States Navy planes from two aircraft carriers and land-based Air Force planes from the Philippines would have carried out an air strike against the Communist forces.

The paper said the purpose of the air strike would have been to relieve the besieged French fortress of Dien Bien Phu, and that April 28 had been set as the tentative date for the air strike. The Geneva conference in Indochina and Korea opened April 26.

'Turned Back in Midair.'

Senator Smathers (Dem.), Florida, said in a speech May 23 that this country "actually took the leap" toward active intervention in Indochina "but turned back in midair." He added the step was canceled "after the intercession of three or four American patriots." He did not elaborate.

Asked about the Post and Times Herald story today, Smathers said he stood by his previous statement but that he had received it from "highly confidential" sources and did not care to elaborate.

He added, however, that he did not think this country "turned back" because of British refusal to participate.

"I think a more accurate story is that some of our own people said we shouldn't take this step," he said.

Representative Price (Dem.), Illinois, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, said at the time of Smathers' original statement that he himself had reliable information that the Administration wanted to intervene directly in Indochina before the fall of Dien Bien Phu but was blocked by lack of support from the British and distaste for such action by Republican Congressional leaders.

ELECTED BY CHIROPRACTORS

Julius W. Bechtold, 7325 Forsyth boulevard, University City, was elected a vice president of the Missouri State Chiropractors Association at a meeting in Joplin, it was announced today. J. C. Schlepper, St. Louis, was named district representative.

State Furniture Says Damage 'Complete'; 3 Alarms Sounded

Pictures, Pages 12, 16.

Fire Tuesday afternoon leveled one-third of the State Furniture Company Store, 101 South Fourteenth Street, and severely damaged the rest.

The store had occupied three buildings.

A civilian and nine firemen were injured, most of them when the east and south walls of the south building collapsed at 4:20 p. m., nearly an hour after the blaze was discovered.

CONTRACT BRIDGE WINNERS

U.S. Expected to Intervene Unless There Is Quick Truce

will not seem too openly to repudiate what is already in the record.

While the public memory is notoriously short, the way in which the Korean casualties were exploited by the Republicans in the 1952 campaign has not been forgotten.

Certainly in the beginning intervention would be announced on the basis of air and sea power. The impression gained by the British military chiefs from Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was that Radford believed the tide could be turned without the use of ground forces.

This was one of the sharpest cleavages between the British and the American view. At Geneva Foreign Minister Anthony Eden made no secret of the British conviction that ground forces at least as large as those employed in Korea at the hegiht of the war would be necessary in Indochina and then the outcome would be doubtful. To several delegates Eden said that if six divisions could be landed immediately—and those divisions are not currently available—it would make no essential difference in the outcome.

That goes back to the British view that the chance of military success has been dissipated by a series of political mistakes during the seven and a half years the French have tried to put down the rebellion. As a result of those blunders the possibility of putting together a strong and truly loyal Viet Namese force that would eventually take over the major burden of the conflict has been reduced to zero.

Because of their skepticism on this score, the British took a dim view of Radford's claim that in from six to nine months Gen. James Van Fleet, who successfully trained Korean divisions, could put together a trained and fighting army of Viet Namese.

President Eisenhower would be extremely reluctant to go to Congress with a request for authorization to intervene in the long and bitter jungle war. He has several times shown more caution than either Radford or Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. At last week's press conference he was asked about statements made by two Senators to the effect that he would shortly go to Congress with a resolution empowering him to act. He replied that nothing like a firm decision in this respect had been taken.

But the previous acts and deeds of the chief members of the Eisenhower military-diplomatic team, plus developing circumstances in the Indochinese struggle, may leave him with no alternative. The attack pressed on Hanoi with eight Vietminh divisions would imperil a considerable civilian population in that outpost.

A rising tide of sympathy for the plight of those civilians would underwrite the conviction of American military chiefs, and conspicuously Radford, that intervention is imperative to American security.

So in the days and weeks ahead the United States will be on the edge of the abyss.

BRITISH OPINION: U.S. TO INTERVENE

By ERNIE HILL

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1954.

LONDON, June 7 — Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden has advised Prime Minister Churchill and the cabinet that the United States plans intervention in Indochina this summer, it is reported on high authority.

The United States is believed ready to call the Geneva conference a failure if it is still deadlocked on July 1.

The United States will send air and naval support for French troops in Southeast Asia if Congress and the American public approve. President Eisenhower, it is stated, will ask Congress for authority to intervene.

Churchill reportedly has told the cabinet the American public is deeply opposed to entering the Indochina war at this time—but that Mr. Eisenhower probably can change public thinking with two television appeals.

Eden returns to Geneva tomorrow prepared to spend the next two weeks pressing the Communists for a cease-fire similar to that arranged in Korea. He has reported that the United States is giving him little help in trying to get a cessation of hostilities, it is stated.

British newspapers are full of speculation that the United States means to go ahead with intervention.

The British public is drastically opposed to sending air, naval or any units to Indochina now. It is understood the government will co-operate in Southeast Asia defense talks in Washington hoping the war can be stalemated.

If the Communists continue to show gains, the British public then will be softened up for limited intervention. If peace talks are stalemated by July 1 and President Eisenhower makes a public appeal for intervention, Britain will go along reluctantly.

Reliable Congressional sources said today they do not think the Administration ever had sufficient agreement among its own high officials to make a concrete suggestion to Congressional leaders for an air strike in Indochina.

EXTRA LAUGHS PUT IN PARK OPERA BY A BROKEN ZIPPER

An extra ration of laughs came Municipal Opera-goers' way last night early in an otherwise polished performance of "Call Me Madam" when Elaine Stritch suffered a hitch. Momentarily the star went into unscheduled eclipse.

She plainly was having zipper trouble as she entered for her first big scene attired in a gorgeous gown. Below, there was a flowing white skirt with gold brocade and a long train; then a zipper broke.

"Keep your seats, everybody; I'll be back," said the woman diplomat, with aplomb. Three mere males were left to hold the fort.

They were Vincent Vernon, Dick Bernie and Russell Nype, with enough night club work behind them to exploit the situation for some of the laughs it was worth.

Wearing a purple silk dress originally scheduled for use in a later scene, Miss Stritch reappeared after three minutes to sing, appropriately, "The Hostess With the Mostes' on the Ball."

STASSEN CALLS EISENHOWER 2ND-TERM DRAFT 'CERTAIN'

SYRACUSE, N.Y., June 7 (UP)—Harold E. Stassen, director of the Foreign Operations Administration, said today he was "certain" President Eisenhower would be drafted for a second term.

In an interview Stassen, who fought Gov. Dewey in 1948 for the presidential nomination, also said he believed the Governor would be drafted for a fourth term as New York state's chief executive.

Stassen was in Syracuse to deliver an address.

TRUCK DRIVER DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

John L. Williams, a truck driver, died yesterday at Barnes Hospital of injuries suffered Saturday night when his automobile ran off Highway F and overturned near Pacific.

His brother, Ralph Williams, 2807 Henrietta avenue, who was riding with him, said Williams was blinded temporarily by bright lights of an approaching automobile. He lost control, went off the road, and the machine turned over three times.

Williams, 25 years old, was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Washington, Mo., and later transferred to Barnes Hospital. He lived at 1042 Hickory street. Ralph Williams suffered only minor injuries.

Eight in Family Hurt.

Eight persons, including six members of a St. Louis family, were injured yesterday in a collision of two automobiles on U. S. Highway 40 near Kingdom City, Mo. Kingdom City is about 100 miles west of St. Louis.

Most seriously hurt were Ruben O. Cannon, 4614 North Broadway, and Glen R. Doolin, Kansas City, Kan., drivers of the two automobiles. Cannon, a punch press operator, suffered a crushed chest, and Doolin a crushed chest and multiple lacerations.

They were taken to Callaway Hospital at Fulton as were Mrs. Cannon, who suffered lacerations and abrasions; Mrs. Doolin, chest injury and lacerations, and Gary G. Cannon, 6 years old, brain concussion. Three other Cannon children, James R., 12; Allen W., 7, and Debra Dianne, 2 months, were given medical treatment and released. Terry D. Cannon, 2, was uninjured.

Blowout Causes Crash.

The Missouri State Patrol said the left rear tire of Cannon's machine blew out, causing him to swerve into the path of Doolin's machine. Both automobiles were demolished.

Irene Wright, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Wright, 1014 North Leonard avenue, was injured seriously last night when she was struck by a taxicab at Leonard and Easton avenues.

The driver, Phillip Riggins, 4809 Fountain avenue, told police he was driving east in Easton and the girl dashed in front of his machine. His vision was obscured by another automobile, he said. The girl, who suffered fractures of the right leg and pelvis and a head injury, was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital. She and Riggins are Negroes.

RED CONQUERORS OF DIEN BIEN PHU MENACING DELTA

French are constricting their entire defense network. They are leaving to the Vietminh most of the small defense posts that have been changing hands frequently.

The French are holding, and say they intend to defend such road junction points and rice and industrial areas as Phu Ly, Nam Dinh and Thai Binh, within an area 30 to 55 miles south and southeast of Hanoi.

Also on the "hold" list is the Phat Diem sector, 75 miles southeast of Hanoi and the home of 600,00 0Catholics.

Rebel Positions.

The rebel pincers appear hinged on the town of Phu Tho, 65 miles northwest of Hanoi. From there, Vietminh units are moving almost due east to draw a line of attack upon Hanoi from positions 40 miles north of this key city.

The southern arm of the pincers at the moment appears to extend from Phu Tho southeast to Son Tay, 35 miles northwest of Hanoi. From there the rebel line runs to Hoa Binh, on the Black river 40 miles southwest of the city, and then southeast to Ninh Binh, 60 miles due south of Hanoi.

(The United Press said the Communists seized two more outposts in the Red river delta today. It reported that the French high command said Dong Lay, near Son Tay about 25 miles west of Hanoi, and Hiep Son, 10 miles north of Haiphong, were captured by the Reds.)

French and Viet Namese troops drove across the Day river to push Vietminh besiegers back from encircled Phu Ly, 30 miles south of Hanoi. The action relieved, at least temporarily, Vietminh pressure on Phu Ly, whose fortifications form an important bastion in the southern sector of the delta area.

In Saigon Gen. Henri Navarre said a French attempt to recapture a long strip of coastal plain in central Annam has failed. He declared this had more possibilities of danger for his successor than in the Red river delta. Navarre spoke to newsmen at a farewell cocktail party. He is being succeeded by Gen. Paul Ely as commander in chief of Indochina.

Navarre said his French Union forces had tried without success to conclude the operation launched in January to take the coastal strip from the Vietminh. As a result, he added, these rebel forces could now strike south from the Kontum plateau in central Annam.

U.S. ENVOY CALLED HOME

TEL AVIV, June 7 (AP) — United States Charge d'Affaires Francis Russell left Israel by air yesterday for Washington. Russell received a summons from the State Department two days ago to come home for consultations.

First Trans-Europe TV Network From Rome to London a Success

Eight Nations on Hookup—Main Obstacle for Show Was Language—Pope Gives Blessing From Vatican.

LONDON, June 7 (AP)—Television viewers of eight European nations tuned in simultaneously on the same programs yesterday, and the technical experiment was pronounced a success.

Viewers watched as gaily-dressed Swiss paraded and threw confetti at each other at Montreux's Fete des Narcisses, commonly known as the "Battle of Flowers."

Then cameras and microphones moved to Vatican City where Pope Pius XII broadcast an apostolic blessing, and spoke in French, Italian, German, English and Dutch.

The link, Rome to London, was giving the engineers the greatest concern, but reception here was surprisingly good.

"I am delighted, it was a most encouraging start," said Cecil McGivern, television controller of the British Broadcasting Corp., who helped set up the complicated relay system.

The confusion of languages was one of the obstacles to setting up a West European network. The biggest engineering hurdle was to blend the varying technical systems in the different countries.

The link involved setting up four conversion points, at which signals were adjusted to suit various types of receivers. The programs were broadcast by 46 transmitters and boosted along by 80 relay stations. Distances between transmitters was about 2000 miles.

Yesterday's programs were the beginning of a daily series to last a month. Countries in the network are Britain, Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Holland, Italy and Switzerland.

RADIO PANEL SAYS ST. LOUIS FAILS TO BOAST ABOUT SELF

St. Louis has much to boast of, but—in comparison with such places as Texas and California—is hiding its light under a bushel.

This was the consensus of a radio panel discussion broadcast yesterday over station KWK. Participants cited St. Louis's traditional diversity of industry and the city's recent gains as matters to be proud of.

Those taking part in the program, part of the "Operations Progress" series, included William E. Kramer, assistant in the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce industrial division; Paul J. Kaveney, counsel for the St. Louis Housing authority; Walter Heren, Union Electric Co. director of advertising and public relations; Robert E. Hillard, public relations man, and Justin L. Faherty, program moderator.

TRANS-ATLANTIC CALL SAVES WOMAN'S LIFE

Mrs. Elizabeth Evans, Former St. Louisan, Recovering in California Hospital.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BURLINGAME, Calif., June 7—Mrs. Elizabeth Evans, former St. Louisan whose life was saved by a trans-Atlantic telephone call, was in serious condition today from an overdose of sleeping pills. Her name was removed from a hospital "critical list," however.

Police who forced their way into Mrs. Evans's apartment Saturday found her unconscious. They said she had put on her wedding ensemble after writing a suicide note addressed to John Hurd, an airline representative, in London.

Mrs. Evans had telephoned Hurd in London after receiving from him a letter in which he announced he had decided to call off divorce proceedings and go back to his wife, Police Chief R. C. Theuer reported. The bad connection was interrupted by a thud, and Hurd became alarmed when he called back and learned that Mrs. Evans's receiver was off the hook.

Hurd then telephoned his wife in Burlingame, and she notified police. Mrs. Hurd said her husband had met Mrs. Evans last year, when he was separated from his wife.

Mrs. Evans, the former Miss Marion Elizabeth Caulk, was a special maid of honor at the Vieled Prophet ball in St. Louis in 1933. In 1938 she married William H. Evans of Pittsburgh. After divorcing him in 1941, she married his cousin, August Evans. This marriage likewise ended in divorce.

She is the daughter of Mrs. John R. Caulk, who lives at Clayton and Ballas roads in St. Louis county. Her late father, a widely known urologist, taught surgery at Washington University Medical School.

INDONESIANS SAY FEAR OF RED CHINA GUIDES DIPLOMACY

JAKARTA, June 7 (UP)—Indonesian diplomats sought today to allay American concern over a proposed non-aggression pact among Indonesia, India, Burma and Communist China.

Foreign Ministry sources said such an agreement was proposed not because Indonesia wants a closer alignment with Red China but because it realizes the possibility of Communist attack.

"Let's face it," one top Indonesian diplomat said. "A non-aggression pact is designed as a guarantee against armed attack. Is Indonesia going to attack India or Burma? Hardly. Are India and Burma going to attack Indonesia? Hardly. That leaves China."

The source said Indonesia didn't want a non-aggression pact with the United States "because we don't fear an attack by the United States." Indonesia has refused to go along with the anti-Communist defense alliance proposed by Washington.

WOMAN POINTS OUT HOLDUP MAN, HE FLEES UNDER FIRE

Miss Barbara Leonard, who was robbed early yesterday of her purse and $8, pointed out the holdup man to Patrolman Arthur Neely at Washington and Jefferson avenues a short time later. But the robber, who was armed with a knife, escaped as Neely fired four shots at him.

Miss Leonard, a clerk living at 3745 Lindell boulevard, was riding with Airman John Chearenza of Scott Air Force Base when the robber entered the automobile in the 2300 block of St. Charles street, grabbed the purse and ran. Miss Leonard and Chearenza cruised around the neighborhood with Patrolman Neely until she saw the robber.

Earlier, a man answering the same description held up Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boedeker, 4024 Flad avenue, as they were entering their automobile in front of 4 South Twenty-second street. The man held a knife against Mrs. Boedeker and took $25 from her and her husband.

LEGISLATURE CALLED TO AID BANKRUPT LONG ISLAND R. R.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 7 (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey today summoned the legislature into special session Thursday noon to clear the track for a reorganization of the bankrupt Long Island Railroad and to straighten out angles in the 1953 legislative reapportionment law.

In a letter to all members of the legislature, Dewey said today that he was sure a proposal by the Long Island Transit Authority for reorganization of the world's largest commuter road would win the approval of the lawmakers.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy is disturbed over absent-minded pilots who forget to lower their airplane wheels when they land.

Naval Aviation News, a publication of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Bureau of Aeronautics, has expressed this concern in a report on an F-9 F-6 pilot who told an airport tower his landing gear was down and locked, then made a belly landing.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
MONDAY, JUNE 7, 1954, PART TWO DAIRY AND FOOD SECTION

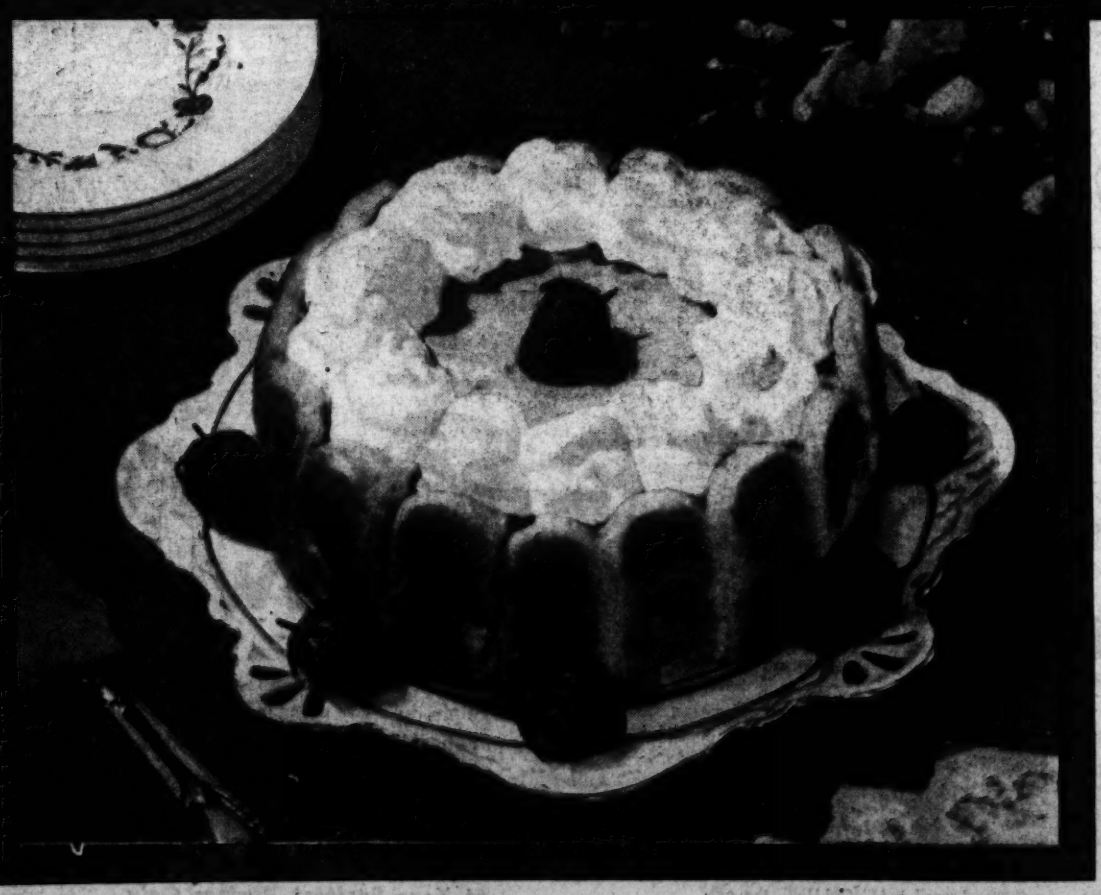
June is Dairy Month

by Dorothy Brainerd
POST-DISPATCH FOOD EDITOR



DAIRY PRODUCTS . . .

Essential for Health and Good Cooking

The next time you are driving down the highway and notice a herd of dairy cows grazing placidly in a pasture, salute them in passing. Of course they won't pay the slightest attention to you, since they neither know nor care whether they receive any recognition for the job they are doing.

But they deserve that salute, because they aren't just taking their ease in a pleasant pastoral setting. That peaceful pasture is their workshop, where they are putting in a full and busy day. Your health, and that of your children, is in no small measure dependent upon them. They are working members of one of the country's most essential industries.

If it were not for them it would not be possible for you to enjoy the rich, creamy butter which adds flavor to so many dishes, the low-calorie buttermilk or versatile cottage cheese. There would be almost no domestic cheese to add zest to your meals, no convenient and economical evaporated milk or dry milk solids.

Can you imagine summer without fresh berries and thick cream, without the sour cream dressing that tops your crisp green salads? Wouldn't you miss a refreshing glass of cold milk on a hot day? And what would you do without frozen dessert or that all-American favorite, ice cream?

Quite aside from these gustatory pleasures, have you considered what would happen to your health and general well-being if your body were deprived of all of the nutritive values found in dairy products? Or how your food budget would suffer if you could not plan menus around these foods which supply so much for so little?

In the pages of this section we have assembled recipes which we believe will add to the pleasure of your meals and help maintain your energy through the warm weather ahead. Surely dairy products, important at all times, play an especially important role in summer menus.

ECONOMICAL MAIN DISH MADE WITH DAIRY PRODUCTS

Here's a fish story that makes cents as well as sense, since it will serve four at a total cost of well under one dollar, so try this budget special which does not cut corners on nutrition or flavor.

Baked Fish Supreme.

Two cups (four slices) bread cubes.
Two tablespoons chopped parsley.
Two tablespoons nonfat dry milk.
One tablespoon grated onion.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon rubbed sage.
One pound fresh or quick-frozen fish fillets.
Two cups water.
Two-thirds cup nonfat dry milk.
Four tablespoons flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.

Combine bread cubes, parsley, two tablespoons nonfat dry milk powder, onion, salt and sage; blend well. Line bottom of (11¾x7½x2-inch) baking dish with bread mixture. Arrange fish fillets over bread mixture. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes, or until fish flakes when tested with fork.

Pour two cups water into top of double boiler. Combine two-thirds cup nonfat dry milk powder, flour, salt and pepper. Sprinkle over surface of water. Beat with rotary beater until smooth. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add shredded cheese. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until cheese is melted. Pour sauce over cooked fish. Serve at once. Yield: Four servings.

Butter Sauces.

Butter or flavored butter sauces served on meat or fish takes these foods out of the realm of the ordinary.

Summer Dessert

Cantaloupe a'la mode is an ever-popular summer dessert. Serve generous scoops of ice cream (any flavor you prefer) in chilled cantaloupe halves, plain or "frilled." For a special touch, sprinkle the ice cream with a cloud of snowy coconut or spoon crushed strawberries over it.

Petite Party Sandwiches

Delectable butter spreads are easy to prepare and are effective when used as fillings for party sandwiches. Variety in both the butter spreads and the shapes of the sandwiches add interest to the assortment.

Spring time is party time with bridal showers, weddings, and the many special occasion days that are in the offing. Dainty sandwiches cut in various shapes and sizes with colorful fillings add to a festive party picture and sandwiches spread with a variety of butter spreads are extra good eating.

From one cup of butter and a few seasonings, four different and delicious sandwich spreads can be made, such as sardine butter, deviled ham butter, liverwurst butter and creole butter.

Vary Shapes of Sandwiches.

The shapes of the sandwiches can be many and varied. Use cookie cutters to cut spade, heart, club and diamond and round shapes out of white or whole wheat bread. Cover with a butter spread, garnish with chopped parsley, olive or pickle slices or pimiento strips.

For the pinwheels with the pickle in the center slice a loaf of uncut bread lengthwise, cut off the crust, spread evenly with Liverwurst butter. Place a pickle at the end and roll it up. Wrap the roll in waxed paper and chill in the refrigerator for several hours or overnight. When ready to serve, slice into pinwheels with a sharp knife.

The cornucopias are made from thinly sliced bread from which the crust is removed. Spread slice with the filling, bring the two opposite corners of the slice of bread together and fasten with a toothpick. Strips of pimiento are added in the center for color. Brush the outside with melted butter and then place under the broiler to toast for several minutes before serving.

Here's a hint worth remembering—to make the bread thin enough to fold nicely—flatten it with a rolling pin.

The ribbon sandwiches are made by alternating slices of whole wheat and white bread, spreading a filling in between and then cutting through.

Storing Sandwiches.

Sandwiches may be made in advance and stored in waxed paper, plastic bags or in a cloth wrung out in cold water. Many types of sandwiches may be frozen. However they should not be stored longer than two weeks. In choosing recipes for freezing sandwiches avoid mayonnaise and boiled salad dressing, hard cooked egg whites, jellies and all crisp salad materials. Most garnishes cannot be frozen—they can be easily added just before serving.

Butter Spreads.

Tangy Butter Spread.

One cup soft butter.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One teaspoon worcestershire sauce.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.

Combine all of the ingredients and beat until light and fluffy. Divide the mixture into fourths and to each part add one of the following, mixing well.

Sardine Butter.

Creole Butter.

One tablespoon finely chopped sweet pickles.
One pimiento, finely chopped.

Liverwurst Butter.

Two slices smoked liverwurst, mashed.

Deviled Ham Butter.

One two and one-fourth ounce can deviled ham.
Two tablespoons finely chopped sweet pickle.

SOUR CREAM ALSO CAN BE USED FOR CANDY MAKING

How do you use sour cream at your house? With vinegar, as a luscious dressing for sliced cucumbers? In beef stroganoff or veal paprika? As a thick tangy topping for anything from borscht to blintzes?

Sour cream is so good these days—smooth, thick, and always of the same flavor and acidity—you're probably using more and more of it. But here's a use you may not have tried—in candy-making.

Sour Cream Panocha.

One cup sour cream.

One tablespoon light corn sirup.

Two tablespoons butter.

One teaspoon vanilla extract.

Combine sugars, baking soda, salt, sour cream and corn sirup in a heavy three-quart saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Boil over moderate heat, stirring gently back and forth until candy thermometer registers 236 degrees (soft ball stage).

Remove from heat. Do not remove thermometer. Add butter and vanilla extract. Do not stir in. Cool, without stirring, until thermometer registers 110 degrees (lukewarm).

Beat with a spoon until mixture loses its gloss and becomes creamy. Quickly spread candy in an oiled 8x8x2-inch pan. Mark into squares. Store in a tightly covered tin. Makes one and one-half pounds.

Cottage Cheese Filling.

Add a few snips of green onion and chopped ripe olives to cottage cheese for a satisfying and delicious omelet filling. Makes good eating for a leisurely breakfast, a luncheon or summer supper meal.

Quickie Dessert.

Serve drained crushed pineapple and quartered marshmallows folded into sweetened and flavored whipped cream with extra crushed pineapple on top. Crisp cookies are good companions.

TIPS ON ARRANGING SNACK CHEESE TRAY

Television and the Cheese Tray go together like Fourth of July and firecrackers, only on a year-round basis instead of just for a day. Nibbling seems the natural thing to do, whether you're watching weather or wrestling, drama or games. And cheese is the handiest and tastiest of nibbles.

There is such a variety of cheese that there's no age group of viewers who can't be pleased. Besides, here's a food that requires no preparation beyond unwrapping or slicing and cheese teams up pleasantly with foods on hand—crackers, fruit or nuts.

Best of all, from the homemaker's point of view, cheese is never a leftover. It just diminishes in quantity, but you never need worry over what is left. Just put it away in its original wrappings or containers, or make use of the waxed and parchment papers, foil, and plastic bags with which we are blessed today.

Cutting Board or Silver Tray.

The Snack Cheese Tray can be built on anything from cutting board to Aunt Sophia's heirloom silver tray. Cheese adapts itself to any setting. But you are lucky indeed if there is a Lazy Susan in the house, that clever turntable invention which revolves at the touch of a finger, bringing in front of you the kind of food you want. These can be quite as simple as a lovely round of polished hardwood. Or they may grow into elaborate affairs with two or three tiers. They are available in china, wood, or combinations of wood and tile, metals such as copper, hammered aluminum, and brass, and silver.

What is used determines in part the arrangement of this popular alliance of foods — cheese, fruit, nuts and a variety of crackers. Fruit and leaves add color and interest well worth the little extra effort involved. Leaves, such as grape and galyx — those dark green beauties with a polished-by-hand look—are two of the most attractive.

The soft cheeses, such as cream, Camembert and Blue, may rest on the leaves with a small cheese server or butter spreader alongside each. Since these call for crackers or crispy Melba toast, it is just as well to have these accompaniments nearby.

The firm cheeses may be sliced, cut in cubes or wedges, to be grouped as "finger foods." These, of course, will include that family favorite, cheddar cheese. Since its flavor ranges from mild to sharp, you may want the two extremes. The same is true of brick cheese, creamy-white in color, with small eyes throughout. Swiss with its lacy network of "eyes" or "holes" to identify it, is always served in thin slices.

Color Scheming.

Edam or Gouda with their gay scarlet coats and spherical shapes offer a chance for "color scheming," and your cheese tray plan may be based on using one of these whole, with a slice cut off the top to permit scooping up from the pale yellow goodness. Provide a cheese knife, scoop, or an ordinary teaspoon for this. A grapefruit knife works very well. Gouda cheese may be sliced into wedges, as is done with an apple. These two cheeses have a mild, nut-like slightly salty flavor which calls for unsalted crackers or crispy shredded wheat wafers. Thin slices of rye or pumpernickel bread and small rounds of Melba toast also are nice accompaniments. It is wise to put a plate of butter on the table for those who wish to butter the bread.

Steal from the fruit centerpiece on the dining table for your snack tray. Grapes, apples, pears are probably the favorites for eating along with cheese, but there are no rules, so add to your cheese tray whatever you have on hand. Walnuts and almonds in the shell pair off nicely with cheese.

Beverages: Take your choice, for most of them go nicely with cheese. Ice-cold milk, tomato juice either hot or cold, cider chilled or spicy hot, carbonated beverages and fruit drinks are possibilities.

From noon to midnight, for family or guests, with television set or radio, there's delightful snacking around the cheese tray.

Extra Delicious.

Creamy yellow butter makes colorful vegetables look and taste extra delicious. And butter combines well with other flavorings to give variety to vegetables.

A Variety for Every Taste

The snack cheese tray is the answer to "something to nibble" at any hour, and the wide variety of cheeses assures one to please every guest. A handsome tray such as this is easily arranged with just a little imaginative planning.

Flavored Milk Drinks

No coaxing will be needed to see that every member of your family drinks his milk if it is served in the form of delicious flavored milk drinks such as these, made with fruit juices or sirups.

SOME FANCY DRINKS WITH MILK AS BASE

It doesn't make a bit of difference whether you eat or drink your milk—just so you get it. And that's where flavored milk, combined with fruits — fruit juice or sirups of one kind or another, comes in. Serve the combination as a long, cold drink or top it off with ice cream and eat your way through part of it. Good either style and good for you—no coaxing needed.

Use as a between-meal refresher, as luncheon along with a sandwich, or paired off with cookies for dessert or an evening snack. The nice part of such a versatile concoction is that, provided with the "makings," each one likes to create his own.

There is practically no end to the variety that can be made. Fruit — bananas, strawberries, raspberries; juices—grape, pineapple; sirups—chocolate, maple; —these are but a few of the many flavors to be combined with milk.

Chocolate Milk Shake—Add two tablespoons or more chocolate sirup to one cup milk. Beat with egg beater. Top with ice cream—vanilla or chocloate.

Frosted Chocolate—Beat into the chocolate and milk mixture a scoop of ice cream. Malted milk may be added.

Maple Milk Shake—Use two to three tablespoons of maple sirup instead of chocolate.

Grape Cooler—Combine equal parts of cold grape juice and milk, stirring the grape juice into the milk. And a "top knot" of slightly sweetened whipped cream. Pineapple juice may be used in the same way.

Banana Flip—Choose a fully ripe banana, flecked with brown Peel, slice into a bowl and beat un,til creamy, using a hand or electric beater. Add one cup of cold milk. Top with sweetened whipped cream with a dash of cinnamon.

Pineapple Crush—Stir together one-fourth cup crushed pineapple with its sirup and one cup cold milk. Good alone or topped with a scoop of ice cream.

Strawberry or Raspberry Crush—Using sweetened crushed berries, combine one-fourth cup of the berries with one cup of milk. Top the strawberry mix with strawberry ice cream; the raspberry with vanilla ice cream. Frozen berries, thawed, may be used.

Good Returns.

Americans spend about one-fifth of their food dollar for dairy foods. In return they get three-fourths of the calcium, one-half of the riboflavin, one-fourth of the protein and fat, and one-fifth of the vitamin A in their food supply.

SAUCE FOR FISH

For lemon butter sauce, cream one-half cup butter, blend in one tablespoon lemon juice and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Heat. Add chopped parsley if desired.

TRY CUSTARD SAUCE WITH DISH OF FRUIT

Fruit is an ever popular summer dessert. But why always serve it plain, when it is so much fun to dress up a dish of fruit with a custard sauce of a special flavor? Custard sauce is so easy to make. And all that is required to come up with a sauce suitable for a particular fruit is to do a quick switch on the flavoring ingredient used. The ingenious homemaker will dream up many combinations to surprise her family.

Mother can be happy in the knowledge that she's serving a nutritious dish when custard sauce is on the menu. The milk in this sauce helps furnish part of the needed supply of three glasses a day. For it doesn't make a bit of difference whether you eat or drink your milk, just so you get it.

Custard Sauce for Fruit.

Two cups milk, scalded.
Two eggs.
One-fourth cup sugar.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.

Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar, then hot milk. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until the custard thickens enough to coat a spoon. Remove from the heat and add salt and vanilla. Mix well. Chill before serving over fresh or canned fruit. Yield: Two cups.

Orange - Cinnamon Custard Sauce: Omit vanilla from basic recipe. Add one stick cinnamon to the milk and scald. Add one-half teaspoon grated orange rind to the beaten eggs. Serve with bananas, strawberries, or raspberries.

Almond Custard Sauce: Omit the vanilla from the basic recipe and add one-half teaspoon almond extract. Serve with bananas, peaches, raspberries, fresh or canned pineapple.

Lemon Custard Sauce: Omit vanilla from the basic recipe and add one teaspoon lemon extract. Serve with strawberries, peaches and fresh or canned pineapple.

Ideal Summer Dessert

Custard sauce can be served in various flavors to provide just the right accent as a topping for your favorite fruit. The combination is a summer dessert which is light but nutritious.

FLAVOR SAFEGUARDED

Both the flavor and flavor-carrying abilities of butter make it the seasoner supreme. This flavor pick-up which makes butter so desirable in cooking and seasoning is also vulnerable.

ICE CREAM PIE A LUSCIOUS DESSERT

Recommended to spark any menu anywhere is Paradise Ice Cream Pie—a dessert designed in the spirit of high food fashion. It's not as hard to make as its handsome appearance might indicate—all it takes is attention to directions in the making of the meringue which serves as the base for vanilla ice cream—and the velvety chocolate sauce which tops the whole confection.

This is a lavish and gracious service for six. Scoop the ice cream generously into the meringue. Let guests help themselves to extra sauce if they will, and they're sure to if you use this new and unusually delicious combination of chocolate, brown sugar and sour cream. The sauce alone is as exotic as a tropical island.

Paradise Ice Cream Pie calls for vanilla ice cream. This internationally famous flavor was never better served than in company with a light-as-air-meringue and a sauce of great character and goodness.

Paradise Ice Cream Pie

Meringue Pie Shell.

One-fourth teaspoon cream of tartar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Two egg whites, warmed to room temperature.

Heat oven to 250 degrees. Mix and sift sugar, cream of tartar and salt. Cover a cookie sheet with piece of clean brown wrapping paper.

Beat egg whites with egg beater or electric mixer until stiff but not dry. Add sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Beat until smooth and glossy. Now turn out all at once onto middle of brown paper. With a spatula smooth out lightly and quickly into the shape of a nine-inch pie shell (hollowing out center and building up edges).

Bake in slow oven, 250 degrees, about one and one-quarter hours, or until crisp to touch, not browned. Cool thoroughly. Gently remove from sheet onto serving dish. One nine-inch shell. Yield: Six servings.

Velvety Chocolate Sauce.

One package semi-sweet chocolate pieces.
One-third cup dark brown sugar.
Three tablespoons water.
Two-thirds cup sour cream.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Dash of salt.

Combine chocolate pieces, sugar and water in heavy saucepan. Place over low heat. When chocolate pieces become soft, stir constantly until mixture is smooth.

Serve warm or cold on ice cream. This velvety sauce may be stored in the refrigerator in a tightly covered jar. Sauce will set upon standing. Just beat gently with a spoon. Yield: One and two-thirds cups sauce.

INFORMATION ON NUTRITIVE FOOD VALUE OF BUTTER

Butter is an important food in our diet today. It gives a high return in energy value because 98 per cent of the butterfat is easily digested by the human body.

Butter is a rich source of natural Vitamin A which is necessary for growth, healthy eyes and skin and maintenance of healthy eyes and skin and maintenance of healthy tissues for resistance to infection. Butter also contains Vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin.

Good cooks know that the use of butter adds flavor to foods, and butter, like all dairy foods, is always full of food value with no trim and no waste.

STORE ICE CREAM PROPERLY SO IT WILL BE AT BEST

To store ice cream for a short period of time in the ice cube compartment of your refrigerator, transfer it to a dry refrigerator tray and cover top with waxed paper.

Keep ice cream in the cartons in your home freezer or frozen food compartment of the refrigerator if you have this new-type equipment. It may need to be softened a little at refrigerator temperature before using.

HONEY BUTTER

To make it, cream one cube of butter until soft and smooth. Gradually beat in one-half cup honey and continue to beat until mixture is light and fluffy.

A Better Sleep

It is a smart man who drinks a glass of milk just before bedtime, since milk relaxes the blood vessels and aids circulation, thus encouraging sound sleep.

LEMON BUTTER A COLD SAUCE WITH MANY USES

One of the most delightful of the cold sauces is lemon butter. It is versatile, too, for it is a topping that gives distinction to broiled meats and chicken as well as to fish and lifts vegetables, such as carrots, broccoli and cauliflower quite out of the ordinary. And, softened, it is a delightful addition for spreading the bread before adding the filling when making sandwiches.

Lemon Parsley Butter Roll.

One-half cup (one stick) butter.
Two tablespoons minced parsley.
Two tablespoons minced chives.
Dash of cayenne, if desired.
One tablespoon grated lemon rind.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.

Let butter stand in bowl until softened. Work with fork or spoon until creamy. Add all ingredients (the lemon juice a little at a time), stirring until well blended. Turn out on wax paper and shape into a roll about one and one-half inches in diameter.

SOME ADVICE ON BEST WAY TO STORE CHEESE

Cover all cheeses tightly in plastic containers or jars, or wrap well in aluminum foil or waxed paper. Packaged cheese may be stored in its own wrapping. Keep all cheese in the refrigerator.

Soft cheese such as cream and cottage are quite perishable but can be kept for several days in tightly covered containers.

Cut off any mold that develops on hard cheese, such as American and Swiss. The cheese underneath is perfectly good. Serve most cheeses at room temperature for best flavor.

Dessert for Youngsters.

Chocolate Cheese Cake

Here is a brand new member of the aristocratic cheese cake family—chocolate cheese cake. The recipe is the result of many years of research in one of the country's outstanding test kitchens. The cake is a delightful blend of flavors, baked gently to firmest custard texture.

Chocolate Cheese Cake New Version of Old Favorite

The Greeks had a word for it, the Romans called it "tyropatina," but it's cheese cake to us. And it is possibly the oldest formal dessert in the world—the recorded favorite of Socrates, Lucullus, Apicius, and gourmets from then until now. The world's very earliest cook-books speak of it, and so exacting had the art of its baking become by the first century A.D. that a special order of pastry cooks, the dulciarius, alone could make it for the first families of the Roman world.

One would think that with all this distinguished history behind it, every culinary secret involved with making cheesecake would long since have been explored—and no more surprises left to it.

But here's an entirely new and exciting member of the aristocratic cheesecake family — the first of its kind — Chocolate Cheese Cake. So exact is this tested and re-tested formula that one needn't be a gifted "dulciarius" to make it to perfection—merely a homemaker with an eye for glamour in food and watchfulness in following directions.

This new variant of the world-famous cheesecake seems destined to become a classic in its own right—a new chapter in the book. Think of the blend of flavors—creamy—sweet—yet — subtly sharp cottage cheese, eggs, sweetening, the richness of chocolate—baked gently to firmest custard texture.

Although it is so glamorous in taste and appearance, the new chocolate cheesecake, unlike most members of its family, does not call for any special baking pan, such as a spring form pan. This one is baked in a regular ovenproof glass baking dish. The fine wafer crumbs which form the crust are pressed on sides and bottom of the dish with the back of a spoon. Takes a little patience to do this, but not too much!

The cottage cheese which is the basis for this dish may be either fine-grained or big-grained. It must be sieved to produce the luscious special texture of the finished product. This too takes a bit of time—but the results are worth it.

Here then is the recipe for the world's first Chocolate Cheesecake, which may well be the most glamorous dessert of the year.

Chocolate Cheesecake.

One five-ounce package vanilla wafers.
Six tablespoons melted butter.
Three cups cottage cheese (sieved).
Three eggs.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
Three tablespoons heavy cream.
One-fourth cup sifted flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-third cup cocoa.

Method:

Roll vanilla wafers into fine crumbs; mix with three tablespoons of the melted butter. Press with back of spoon on sides and bottom of round eight-inch by two-inch ovenproof glass baking dish.

Sieve cottage cheese into large bowl. Add the remaining three tablespoons melted butter; stir until blended.

Beat eggs (yolks and whites together) until thick and fluffy. Add sugar gradually, a tablespoon at a time, beating to blend after each addition. Add this mixture, and flour, salt, vanilla, and cocoa to sieved cottage cheese. Fold in until well blended.

Pour mixture into crust. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees, 45 minutes. Turn off heat. Leave cake in oven 30 minutes longer with door closed. Do not open oven door up to this point.

Now open oven door just a crack. Leave it that way for one hour longer. This helps to prevent falling. Remove cake gently from oven. Continue to cool on a rack, then chill in refrigerator before serving.

Serve cheesecake in the glass baking dish. Just before serving, garnish cake with spoonsful of sweetened whipped cream sprinkled with slivers of unsweetened, semi-sweet, or milk chocolate.

Milk Break

It is a smart girl who takes a milk break in mid-morning or mid-afternoon, since milk is the ideal food around which to build a reducing diet due to the fact that its armored calories are relatively low in fat but an excellent source of digestible low-cost protein, vitamin A, riboflavin and calcium.

CHEESE BALLS AN ACCOMPANIMENT FOR FRUIT SALADS

Cheese balls are perfect to serve with fruit salads, and even better when they have been rolled in candy-coated puffed wheat to give them a crispy coating.

Crispy Cheese Balls.

One package (three ounces) cream cheese.
One-fourth to one-half cup coated puffed wheat.

Form cheese into balls and roll in cereal. Serve with pineapple, orange or other fruit salads. Makes eight balls, about one and one-fourth inches in diameter.

For an attractive salad, center two or three Crispy Cheese Balls on lettuce or salad greens. Arrange fruit sections in swirls around the cheese balls.

POPULAR ICE CREAM CONE IS 50 YEARS OLD IN 1954

How much Americans like ice cream may be judged from the fact that last year they bought more than 600 million gallons—or an average of about 15 quarts a person, according to the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. About seven per cent of the total 1953 milk supply was used in the manufacture of ice cream. In the past 20 years total consumption of ice cream has more than trebled.

This year the industry is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the ice cream cone. Unlike such dairy products as cheese and butter, which were made first in the home, ice cream was developed by caterers, confectioners and bakers to sell at retail. Wholesale commercial production began about 1850.

EXCELLENT LUNCH

An excellent lunch can be prepared quickly for the busy homemaker by using cottage cheese and fruit for a salad.

Add crisp toast or crackers with butter, a glass of milk and you will find renewed energy for the afternoon tasks.

UPSIDE-DOWN SUNDAE

Next time you make ice cream sundaes reverse the procedure. Top the fruit with the ice cream instead of putting fruit over ice cream.

Chill canned cling peach halves very thoroughly. At serving time, heap your favorite ice cream into each peach cup. Sprinkle with chopped walnuts or almonds, and your dessert is ready.

What every Mother should know . . . about ADAMS MILK

A baby cries. Milk, warm and nourishing, gently quiets its sobbing into a contented murmur. And the baby sleeps.

A youngster dashes in from play. Milk, cool and refreshing, keeps him vital, youthful and lively. Yes, a growing family needs milk. This every mother knows.

And every mother should know this. Adams Grade A milk receives Grade A classification because it meets the high standards set by your City Health Department. These standards are among the highest found anywhere. You can pay more . . . but you can't buy better than Adams Grade A Milk. So why pay more at the door when Adams Milk costs less at the store.

Adams Dairy conceived the idea of selling milk in a personalized paper container for less at the store. This marketing idea did away with the old fashioned, hard-to-handle bottles. Now when you buy Adams Milk at the store you are assured of pure, fresh milk . . . in a personalized container that enters only your home, and is used only by your family.

And every mother should know that Adams Milk is "flavor-constant!" Adams Milk is never exposed to the risk of becoming "sunburned" at the door. According to the Army Times, milk left at the door and exposed to sunlight for as little as fifteen minutes stands in danger of losing its flavor and may actually taste "different". The Army Times also reported milk left standing at the door for as little as thirty minutes may also lose much of its nutritional value as well as its taste.

Adams milk, purchased fresh at the store, protects your family's health against "sunburned" milk . . . assures you of finest flavor, highest nutritional value, and still costs you less.

And we are sure every mother knows about the Adams Dairy Wranglers Club television show that entertains your children every day on KSD-TV at 5 P. M. Texas Bruce keeps your children happy. Adams Milk keeps them healthy.

Ice Cream Served Buffet Style

NONFAT DRY MILK USED IN SUPPER DISH

For a delicious and inexpensive luncheon or supper try this recipe for Eggs Confetti served over broiled or plain tomatoes—which are plentiful at this time. Another food on the plentiful list—nutritious nonfat dry milk—is featured in the sauce. Nonfat dry milk, which gives milk nourishment without fat, enriches this recipe because its use in dry form enables the homemaker to pack in an extra amount of milk nutrients. This versatile product, which is liquefied so easily in a jiffy, is used for drinking, cooking, baking, with cereals and even for whipping.

Eggs Confetti.

Four slices lean bacon.
One-fourth cup chopped onion.
One-fourth cup chopped green pepper.
One-fourth cup chopped pimiento.
One and one-half cups water.
Three tablespoons flour.
One-half cup nonfat dry milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon black pepper.
One-fourth pound process cheddar cheese, shredded.
Four hard cooked eggs, sliced.
Four tomatoes, cut in half and broiled.

Cook bacon until crisp and lightly browned. Drain on absorbent paper and crumble. Remove all but one tablespoon of bacon drippings from skillet. Saute onion, green pepper and pimiento until onion is lightly browned. Pour one and one-half cups water into top of double boiler. Combine flour, nonfat dry milk powder, salt and pepper. Sprinkle over surface of water. Beat with rotary beater until blended. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture has thickened.

Stir cheese into sauce and continue to cook, stirring constantly, until cheese melts. Add sauteed onion, green pepper and pimento, eggs and crumbled bacon to sauce; blend well. Serve sauces over broiled tomato slices. Yield: four servings.

Some Ice Cream Sauces For Homemade Sundaes

You will go a long way before you find a dessert as accommodating and well-liked by everyone as ice cream. Good any time of year, as part of the family meal, as a snack, dessert for guests, party dish and for many another occasion, it is the perfect dessert all through the summer season.

There are so many varieties by way of flavor and color that you are sure to find one to provide the right accent to the meal and to fit into your color-scheming. Favorites of the summer season are the fruit flavors, though of course there is an ice cream for every taste. And—if you can't choose—there always is vanilla, to be dressed to fit the occasion with a variety of sauces and a choice of accompainments by way of cookies and cake.

Strange to say, ice cream is seldom served buffet-style, when it is so easy to do. Use the bowl that best fits in with the decorations and table service. Have it chilled and fill it, just before serving, with scoops of ice cream. Better still, if you have a freezer or room in the freezing compartment of the refrigerator, fill the bowl well ahead of the guests's arrival, place it in frigid confinement, to be brought out at the appointed time. Leftover ice cream? If there's any, (which is doubtful) place the ice cream in a refrigerator tray, set the cold control of the automatic refrigerator at the coldest setting. Freeze until firm, stirring occasionally. Return control to normal setting, when the ice cream is firm.

For ice cream, buffet-style, there are so many sauces that may be made days ahead. Of course there are good bottled sauces to be purchased, chocolate, marshmallow and butterscotch being popular ones. Lacking any of these, there are a number of mighty good ones to be made at the last minute using candies.

Tutti-Fruiti Sauce.

(Good anytime on the old standby, Vanilla Ice Cream).

One cup marashino cherries, halved.
One-fourth cup cherry sirup.
Halved green cherries, if desired.
One cup drained canned figs, cut in small pieces.
One cup canned pineapple, cut in bits.
Half cup of pineapple sirup.
Half cup sugar.
Half to three-fourths cup blanched almonds, cut lengthwise.

Pour boiling water over dates and let stand three minutes to soften; drain. Combine all fruits and cherry sirup. Cook together the sugar and pineapple sirup. Boil two minutes. Pour over the fruit. When cold, add the shredded almonds. Chill well before serving.

Melba Sauce—Thaw one package of frozen raspberries, add half cup currant jelly, and bring to a boil. Mix together to a smooth paste one and half teaspoons cornstarch and one tablespoon water; add to raspberry mixture, stirring until thick and clear. Strain and cool. After putting in bowl, just start to stir in a tablespoon of thick cream. This gives an interesting surface swirl effect. Serve cold. This makes about one and third cups. Fresh raspberries (two cups) may be used instead, but add half cup sugar. This is ever so good with peach ice cream, or with vanilla ice cream, served in a peach half.

Maple Cream—Boil together for three minutes one cup maple sirup, two tablespoons butter. Cool and stil in one-fourth cup cream. Serve with pecans.

Hawaiian Delight — Combine one cup drained crushed pineapple, one-half cup honey, one-fourth cup quartered green marashchino cherries, if desired, a few drops each of green coloring and mint flavoring. Chill thoroughly.

Orange-Apple Ice Cream Sauce — Combine two cups canned apple sauce, one-half cup light brown sugar. Heat until the sugar melts. Cool. Add two tablespoons grated orange rind and two tablespoons of orange juice. Chill several hours. Serve over vanilla ice cream with a sprig of mint garnish. Makes two cups sauce.

Chocolate "Bits" Sauce—Heat together in top of double boiler one seven-ounce package of chocolate bits or chips (one and one-fourth cups) and three-fourths cup light corn sirup. Add one-fourth cup cream, one tablespoon butter, one-fourth teaspoon vanilla. Serve hot.

Marshmallow Sauce—Melt together over hot water 32 marshmallows and one-fourth cup heavy cream, stirring frequently until marshmallows are almost melted. When mixture is smooth and fluffy, remove from heat and use at once or keep over hot water until ready to serve. Good on chocolate ice cream. Or use it on vanilla ice cream along with chocolate sauce and a garnish of crushed peppermint stick candy.

Quick Caramel Sauce—Place in top of double boiler one-half pound caramels. Cook, stirring occasionally, until they begin to melt. Add one-half cup cream and mix well. Serve warm or cold with chopped nuts. If sauce thickens on standing, add a little cream and mix well.

Tempt Appetites on Hot Day

Here is a dish to tempt appetites on the warmest summer day. Cottage cheese and salmon are combined in layers to make a main dish that is cool, easy to prepare, and a good nutritious combination. Incidentally, it is handsome on a buffet table.

Have the fishermen in the family not had much luck this summer? Here's a chance for Mom to show them all up and come forth with a catch that will tempt the appetites of the whole family on a warm summer day. It's a cottage cheese and salmon salad, made in a fish form to show those fishermen what can be caught in the kitchen.

Here is a dish that looks beautiful on a buffet table, at a fancy luncheon, or right at home with the family. If a fish mold isn't handy, don't let that stop you from using this recipe—a ring mold or a 9" square pan will do just as well.

Cottage cheese-salmon salad is cool, easy to prepare and a good nutritious combination. The cottage cheese layer is made separately and allowed to become firm in the refrigerator before the salmon layer is added on top of it. After the salmon layer is added it is returned to the refrigerator until set. When serving, use a good sized platter and garnish with a tomato stuffed with cottage cheese and twists of lemon peel which are accented with a whole clove. If a fish mold is used put some strips of pimento to form the tail and olives to make the eyes—it adds a dash of personality.

Accompanied by a vegetable, rolls, butter and cool milk, this cottage cheese and salmon loaf will tempt the appetite on a warm day. Cottage cheese adds protein value as does the salmon, and supplies many of the nutrients found in milk. Here is good food at reasonable cost, for there is no waste in cottage cheese.

Cottage Cheese and Salmon Loaf

Cheese Layer

One-half tablespoon gelatin.
Two tablespoons cold milk.
One-fourth cup hot milk.
Three cups cottage cheese, sieved.
One-fourth teaspoon onion, minced.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Soak gelatin in cold milk and dissolve in hot milk. Combine with remaining ingredients. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Pour into mold. Refrigerate until firm.

Salmon Layer

Two cups red salmon, flaked.
One cup salad dressing.
One-half cup celery, finely chopped.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-half tablespoon gelatin.
Two tablespoons cold water.

Combine salmon, salad dressing, celery and lemon juice. Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes, then dissolve over hot water. Add to salmon mixture. Cool. Pour over cheese layer. To serve, unmold on large platter and garnish with watercress and tomato slices.

TO ADD FLAVOR

You will find that you have added both an interesting flavor and texture contrast.

DO YOU KNOW THAT...

Cheese is a concentrated form of milk; it takes five quarts of milk to make one pound of American cheese.

Cheese contains most of the nutritive value of milk.

Low temperature should be used when cooking cheese dishes.

FREEZE CUSTARD IN HAND FREEZER

Most of us have childhood memories of making hand-turned ice cream, so if you would like to make a sentimental journey into the past and find some delicious frozen custard at the end of the trail, try Frozen Chocolate Custard.

Three and one-half squares unsweetened chocolate.
One and one-fourth cups sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
Five and one-third cups evaporated milk.
Four eggs, beaten.
One and one-fourth teaspoons vanilla extract.

Melt chocolate over hot water in top of a two-quart (or larger) double boiler. Add sugar and salt, and blend well. Then add two and one-half cups of the milk. Continue heating over boiling water to scalding point, stirring occasionally. While mixture is heating, beat eggs well in large mixing bowl. Pour hot mixture slowly over eggs, stirring vigorously to keep smooth. Return mixture to double boiler and cook three minutes over boiling water, stirring constantly. If flecks of chocolate remain, beat with rotary beater until smooth. Add vanilla and remaining milk. Cool. Freeze with eight to one ice-salt mixture. Makes about two quarts.

To freeze custard: Set dasher in ice cream can and put can in place in freezer. Pour cooled chocolate custard mixture in can. Mixture should not fill container more than three-fourths full to allow for expansion in freezing. Place lid securely on can and lock turning device in place.

Pack eight parts ice tightly around container. Add one part salt. Repeat process until ice mixture is about level with top of can. As ice melts during turning, add additional ice and salt in same proportions. When crank can no longer be turned, unlock and remove turning device. Remove ice-salt mixture from around top of can if necessary. Wipe outside of lid thoroughly. Remove lid, raise dasher carefully to avoid moving can. Scrape mixture from dasher and press down in can. Cover top of can with waxed paper. Plug hole in lid with a wad of paper toweling or a cork. Replace lid firmly. Drain water from bucket.

Repack tightly around and on top of can with an eight to one ice-salt mixture. Cover freezer with a heavy cloth or several thicknesses of newspaper. Let frozen custard ripen until ready to serve.

When ready to serve, remove cloth, then ice-salt mixture from around top of can. Wipe lid carefully before removing. Discard waxed paper. If not all frozen custard is used, cover can with fresh waxed paper and replace lid for temporary storage.

Later, remaining frozen custard can be packed in freezer containers or wrapped in heavy aluminum foil and placed in frozen food storage compartment of refrigerator or in a freezer.

Milk in Diet.

To get more milk into the family diet, use liberal amounts of milk on morning cereal. Serve cream soups and vegetables, rice pudding, custards and escalloped dishes often.

CONVENIENT ITEM

Dry milk powder is a mighty convenient item to have on hand. A pound package takes little storage space and can save many an emergency trip to the store when you run out of milk.

The United States Department of Agriculture says a pound package of dry milk will make about four quarts of whole or skim fluid milk.

ALSOP

'Lack of Enthusiasm' Shown By Numerous Business Men, Scientists About Making H-Bomb

Even Strauss Was Slow in Coming Out for Crash Program—Many High in Present Administration Agreed With Oppenheimer at Time.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

SINCE Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer has been judged devotedly loyal, impeccably discreet, and an invaluable public servant, the heart of the case against him is his alleged lack of "enthusiasm" for the hydrogen bomb.

To understand just how astonishing this case is it is necessary to know the hitherto secret history of the origins of the hydrogen bomb project. Here, briefly, are the essential facts.

The debate about the bomb began when Dr. Edward Teller, the great thermonuclear expert, came to Washington immediately after the explosion of the first Soviet atomic bomb in September 1949. His purpose was to gain support for a crash program to make Super, as the purely hypothetical hydrogen bomb was then called. To this end, Teller buttonholed Lewis Strauss, then a member of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Strauss in turn urged the commission and President Truman to give consideration to the kind of program Teller wanted. The problem was thereupon referred to the AEC's General Advisory Committee; and this committee met in late October 1949, in hours-long debate, under the chairmanship of Dr. Oppenheimer.

Opposed Crash Program.

On October 29, 1949, the advisory committee reported to the White House and the AEC. The committee majority opposed a crash program to build Super, at least for the time being, but did not foreclose the idea of such a program in the future. This group was headed by Dr. Oppenheimer, and included Drs. James Bryant Conant and Lee Dubridge (who wrote the majority report); Hartley Rowe of the United Fruit Co., and Oliver Buckley of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Dr. Conant, of course, is now President Eisenhower's ambassador to Germany, and Dr. Dubridge is the President's personal scientific adviser. It is also interesting to note that the "moral objections" to the H-bomb, for which Dr. Oppenheimer has been so much criticized, were quite emphatically shared by the supposedly hard-headed businessmen, Rowe and Buckley.

Minority Goes Further.

The minority of the General Advisory Committee went even further than Dr. Oppenheimer and his fellow-members of the majority. They declared that the H-bomb would be a weapon so horrible it should never be made under any circumstances. They advocated an American pledge never to make it, with the proviso that a Russian hydrogen bomb test, on being detected, would be treated as an act of war.

The two men who took this interesting position were the great physicists, Dr. Enrico Fermi and Dr. I. I. Rabi. Dr. Rabi, whose "lack of enthusiasm" was so much greater than Dr. Oppenheimer's, now holds Dr. Oppenheimer's former place as chairman of the General Advisory Committee. As such, he is Adm. Strauss's chief scientific mentor.

After the advisory committee reports were received, the AEC acted. On Nov. 9, all five members of the AEC sent their views to the President in a curiously tortured document. It said, in effect, that Strauss and Gordon Dean inclined towards an all-out effort to make Super, while Chairman Lilienthal, Sumner Pike, and Dr. Henry Smyth shared the doubts of the scientists. But, it concluded, the final decision was the lonely and terrible responsibility of the President.

Strauss Delayed Report.

Dean, Lilienthal, Pike, and Smyth appended their individual opinions to this over-all report, for some reason Strauss did not. Meanwhile, Truman had ordered special studies of the problem to be made by the State and Defense Departments.

State reported categorically that there was not the slightest hope of achieving control of the new weapons by agreement with the Soviets—and this hope had influenced those who had counseled delay. Defense pointed to most cogent reasons why this country would not risk the Soviet Union achieving the super-bomb first.

In the interval, the substance of the issue had been reported, initially by these reporters, and there was an almost unanimous public reaction in favor of making the bomb. As a result, the whole climate of opinion began to change. In late December, Strauss belatedly sent his individual memorandum to the President, and for the first time came out flatly for Super. By late January 1950, all five commissioners, questioned in executive session by the McMahon committee, also came out for Super. The President then ordered the bomb to be made.

Two Points to Note.

There are two points to note about this slice of history. First, it is certainly true that Strauss performed a useful public service in the debate on Super. But the picture which has been so often painted of Strauss bravely and single-mindedly foiling the nefarious designs of an equally single-minded Oppenheimer, is hardly accurate. Those who have put about this version of events have been, to borrow a phrase from the Gray report, "less than candid." And the chief putter-about has been none other than Adm. Strauss himself.

Second, if "lack of enthusiasm" for the terrible hydrogen weapon is to mark a man as a security risk, who then is secure? Dr. Teller, no doubt, is safe. So, oddly enough, is former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, also a strong advocate of Super from the start. For the rest, certain of this country's most respected business men, and virtually all its leading scientists, must now be marked security risks.

There were cogent technical reasons why so many scientists at first doubted the wisdom of going all-out for the hydrogen weapon. But in almost every case the basic reason was moral. Perhaps this is very reprehensible but scientists are also human beings. Surely these are strange times, when it is a suspicious act to voice hesitations about a weapon which may one day write finis to the history of the human race.

AEC Calls for More Flexible Atomic Laws

U.S. Can't Even Tell Allies if It Detects Red Nuclear Explosion.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP). SECRECY provisions of the 1946 Atomic Energy Act are so tight that the United States can't tell its allies what it learns about Russia's nuclear weapons.

The Atomic Energy Commission is asking Congress to include, in revision of the law, a section specifically to permit exchange of intelligence information on the "evaluation of the atomic capabilities of potential enemies."

A literal interpretation of the atomic law—and the AEC leans over backward in cleaving to both the letter and spirit of an act which contains drastic penalties for violation—is responsible for the curious situation.

The present act, which the commission recommends be amended to allow some exchange of various atomic information with friendly powers, contains a definite bar on communication of "restricted data" to any foreign nation or national. Information gleaned from intelligence sources on the capabilities or intentions of a foreign power is classified as restricted—top secret, secret or confidential.

This means that even information on Soviet atomic tests, picked up by seismograph (recording earth shocks at long range), by analysis of upper air showing traces of radioactivity or by intelligence coming from agent sources cannot be passed on to Britain or other allies unless there is a public announcement by the White House.

Exchange of information is a two-way street. Britain, feeling that the tight provisions of the American Atomic Energy Act have choked off all data coming from the United States, is keeping its own information to itself—including intelligence on Soviet atomic developments.

This is known to be of major concern to those responsible for estimating Russia's progress in nuclear weapons. Exchange of military intelligence with Britain, which operates one of the oldest and most experienced intelligence organizations of world powers, has been a keystone in both peace and wartime collaboration of the two nations.

GALLUP POLL

64 Per Cent of Voters Still Like Eisenhower—Decline of 7 Points

Survey Notes Shift Between February and Now — Number of Disapproving Democrats Is Increasing.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N.J., June 7.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S popularity with the voters, as measured periodically in surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion, is lower than it was a few months ago, but he continues to hold the approval of a substantial majority.

Despite some criticism of the White House for its slow progress in carrying out its program, nearly 2 out of every 3 voters—64 per cent—from coast to coast approve of the way Mr. Eisenhower is handling his job as President today.

This is a drop of four points since the figure of 68 per cent reported by the Institute in March. In February, his popularity index stood at 71 per cent.

Every few months since Mr. Eisenhower's inauguration, a representative cross-section of the voters has been asked an identical question regarding him, as follows:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Eisenhower is handling his job as President?"

Approve	64%
Disapprove	22
No opinion	14
	100%

Here is the trend of Eisenhower's popularity:

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opin.
Feb., 1953	68%	7%	25%
March	67	8	25
April	74	8	18
May	74	10	16
July	71	15	14
September	75	14	11
October	65	20	15
December	60	25	15
Jan., 1954	68	22	10
February	71	19	10
March	68	19	13
TODAY	64	22	14

Political observers will indulge in a good deal of speculation as to possible reasons for the decline in the President's popularity. Many will point to three major problems which have beset Eisenhower since early this year: (1) rising unemployment, (2) the McCarthy-Army imbroglio, and (3) the Indochina dilemma.

The same type of poll was conducted during the administration of President Truman, whose popularity fluctuated sharply with changing events and policies. Truman started with an all-time high of 87 per cent approval shortly after he took office in 1945. His all-time low of 23 per cent came in November, 1951.

At a corresponding point in his term — 16 months after his inauguration — Mr. Truman received a vote of confidence from 43 per cent of the nation's voters, as compared to Mr. Eisenhower's 64 per cent today.

A sizeable defection shows up among Democrats questioned in the latest survey, 44 per cent of whom approve of President Eisenhower today, compared to 51 per cent in March and 54 per cent in February.

The vote among rank-and-file GOP voters stands at 89 per cent — the same as in March —but down from 93 per cent in February.

	Approve	Disapprove	No Opin.
Rep.	89%	5%	6%
Dem.	44	38	18
Ind.	68	17	15

Seventy-three per cent of independent voters gave Mr. Eisenhower a nod of approval in February and 71 per cent approved in March.

While the poll is a good index of general feeling about the way the President is handling his job, nevertheless its results should not be taken to mean that Mr. Eisenhower would poll 64 per cent of the vote if an election were held today.

The fact that a plurality of Democrats are satisfied with the way the President is handling his job does not mean that these same Democrats would vote for Mr. Eisenhower at the next election.

* * *

The British Institute of Public Opinion (British Gallup Poll) has been conducting a test of the popularity of Britain's aging Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill.

Churchill has suffered a loss in popularity in recent months, with the vote today fairly evenly divided, as follows:

"Do you approve or disapprove of Churchill as Prime Minister?"

Approve	48%
Disapprove	44
No opinion	8
	100%

Eisenhower In Trouble on Atomic Bills

Republicans Reluctant to Change Law, Democrats Suspicious.

By DORIS FLEESON
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

THE Eisenhower Administration is skidding on a dangerous slope in the crucial field of atomic energy—a field in which even to stand still is to lose the race. Its proposed new legislation designed to enable atomic development of all kinds to move faster is in jeopardy.

Sharp interrogation at the hearings of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy show:

1. Chairman Lewis Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission does not enjoy the confidence of three out of four of his fellow commissioners. They voiced publicly their private misgivings which have been leaking to the press.

2. Influential Republicans on the joint committee, such as Senator Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa, have severe doubts about the wisdom of exchanging atomic information with our allies. These provisions Secretary of State Dulles defends as "of the utmost importance and urgency. Without them our ability to get indispensable quantities of fissionable materials would be greatly impaired."

3. Democratic members of the committee, increasingly suspicious of the President's public power policies, see in the atomic energy bill an attempt to smooth the way for private monopoly of peacetime use of atomic power. The public's investment in the atom so far is upward of $12,000,000,000.

4. The President's plan for international pooling of fissionable materials is in an inconclusive state.

These developments alone would imperil legislation already sure to be caught in the adjournment rush in an election year, but to them something has been added, the Oppenheimer case.

Dr. Robert Oppenheimer's troubles have angered atomic scientists and confused the public. If the issue cannot be kept out of the Congress, harsh debate sullied by McCarthyism is inevitable. The joint committee, fortunately, has set its jaw, as one man, on McCarthy intrusions into the atomic field, so there is hope from that angle.

DRUMMOND

Eisenhower Backers Must Vote For Men, Not Party, This Year

Record in Congress Shows Support for President's Program Is Not a Partisan Matter.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

THE voters who contributed the decisive margin to President Eisenhower's victory in 1952 are going to have a hard time deciding how they can best support the President in the coming congressional elections.

Mr. Eisenhower's margin of victory, as post-election polls have shown, came overwhelmingly from the switching voters. Specifically, his margin of victory was supplied by voters who had supported President Truman in 1948.

This means that if the Republicans are to have any chance of repairing their precarious hold on Congress, they will have to have candidates who will appeal to the ex-Democratic, independent, middle-of-the-road voter who wanted Dwight Eisenhower to be President.

Dilemma for Independents.

Now, why do these indispensable voters — indispensable to either a Republican or a Democratic victory this November — face a dilemma this fall? The reason is that, on the basis of party votes in Congress, it cannot be said that the simple process of electing more Republican Congressmen will give President Eisenhower more congressional backing.

On the surface, the pro-Eisenhower record of the Republican Congressmen is considerable. Here are some facts compiled by the Congressional Quarterly:

1. Republicans supported President Eisenhower in Congress but Democrats have provided the final push for most of his 1954 victories.

2. The Republican score for supporting the President is 74 per cent — compared to 39 per cent for the Democrats —but 26 of Mr. Eisenhower's 30 Congressional victories so far this year would have been impossible without help from the Democrats.

3. Mr. Eisenhower was defeated in seven of the test votes. In two of the seven, Democrat support was stronger than Republican backing.

No Conclusions Justified.

This over-all record doesn't justify any sweeping conclusion, however. The fact that Democratic votes provided the "final push" for most Eisenhower victories doesn't prove that more Democratic Congressmen would automatically mean more pro-Eisenhower Congressmen. The fact that more Republicans have voted with the President more often than most Democrats doesn't prove that they are standing with him on the most vital legislation and doesn't prove that the election of more Republican Congressmen automatically means more Eisenhower support.

On the issue of public housing, on which the President has taken a strong stand, the Republican House of Representatives has twice voted against him. The latest vote was 211 to 175 to defeat the measure. The vote for the President was made up of 124 Democrats and 51 Republicans; the vote against him, 150 Republicans and 61 Democrats. When the Senate Banking Committee voted favorably on the public housing provision, the only opposition votes were Republican. The overwhelming approval which the House gave to the Eisenhower social security bill was completely nonpartisan but in the committee there were more Republican votes against the provision for increased benefits than for it.

On examination the nearly-unanimous Republican vote against recommending the Taft-Hartley amendments is not as pro-Eisenhower as it might seem. If recommittal had been defeated, major amendments to the amendments, which would have done violence to the Eisenhower views, were waiting on the sidelines with much Republican support.

The independent voter, if he wants to support the President as he did two years ago, will have to examine closely the type and commitments of the individual congressional candidates to find who are most likely to back most of the Eisenhower program, regardless of party. Since the Eisenhower Republican forces are making little headway toward nominating pro-Eisenhower Republican candidates, the outlook is that they will have a hard time electing them.

DREW PEARSON

One Oppenheimer Judge Found Government More Tolerant

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

WHEN Tom Morgan, head of the Sperry Corp., sat in judgment on J. Robert Oppenheimer, builder of the atom bomb, he may not have remembered an occasion when the Government dealt more tolerantly with Tom Morgan.

Sept. 1, 1943, ten months after Pearl Harbor, the Justice Department dropped a proposed prosecution of Tom Morgan's firm for exchanging priceless secrets with the Germans, the Japanese and Fascist Italy. The Justice Department agreed to a consent decree.

When the three-man loyalty board sat on the case of Dr. Oppenheimer, they found him loyal, but a poor security risk; they said he had not given away any secrets, but they feared he might.

In the case of Tom Morgan, his company had already given vital information to countries which later became enemies of the United States.

Sperry Gyroscope was making some of the most delicate instruments the United States Army and Navy used; such as automatic pilots, directional gyroscopes, and particularly the artificial horizon which indicates the climb and glide of airplanes away from the horizontal. Most of these, Sperry claimed, it had developed, though the Army and Navy had helped, in part by experimentation, in part by supplying substantial orders.

Through the pre-war years, Sperry signed contracts with Askania - Werke - Aktiengesellschaft of Germany; with Mitsui Bussan Kaisha in Japan, with La Filoteenica, Societa Anonima in Italy, and others to set up a world monopoly to control these highly critical instruments.

The first agreement with Japan was signed in 1931, the year the Japanese war lords first invaded Manchuria, and a time when Henry L. Stimson, then Secretary of State, warned the world of impending Japanese conquest and rallied the peace machinery of the League of Nations to try to stop the war lords.

The agreement with the Italians was written in 1937 and 1938, well after Mussolini had shown his disregard for world peace by trampling Ethiopia.

The agreement with Germany remained in effect through the years when Hitler was assembling his military might for war.

And it was the head of this company who, sitting in judgment, ruled that Dr. Oppenheimer was a security risk.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

What of Private Schools?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am the mother of one private school student and one public school student in the area. I have been watching the papers daily for some statement of policy to come from the private schools concerning the recent decision on education from the Supreme Court. So far, there has been none, and it would seem to me that there has been time.

The Nursery School for young children, and some Catholic schools, have interracial education in this area. To my knowledge, no other private school here has Negro students.

To me this seems a loss to the white students as well as to the colored. There is a richness and appreciation to be gained from the mingling of races which can never come from segregation, however high the quality of the student body. I know of several of these private schools which have principals who say that they "would like" to accept Negro students, and that they are "leaning" in that direction, but the acid fact remains that merely "leaning" doesn't get much of the world's work done.

I realize that private schools have the ever-present problem of funds to think of, and that trustees and school boards are frequently less progressive than school faculties and principals. But now the situation is such that if private schools sincerely wish to take advantage of the assets which Negro students would bring to their student groups, honestly wish to work out whatever problems are involved, truly wish to prepare their students for a world where segregation is more of a detriment than an asset to world harmony, these schools may take advantage of the weight of the Supreme Court's decision.

Several times during the last several weeks, I have heard parents say that rather than have their children go to school with colored pupils they will send them to private schools. It distresses me to think that the private schools are being thought of as an escape, as a way of avoiding a court decision, maintaining an island of segregation.

* * *

The private schools have always been strong leaders in the St. Louis area. But unless a statement of policy on this situation is forthcoming from them, they will find themselves in the rear guard of a great national step in education.

Perhaps at this moment there are joint meetings going on on this subject among the private schools in this area. I hope so.

It would seem to be merely a technicality for the private schools to assume that the decision of the Supreme Court appplies only to public education. RUTH J. MEFFERD.
Webster Groves.

Migration to Rhode Island

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May I suggest that Senator McCarthy has not gone far enough with his suggestion regarding lie detector tests for all participants in the current investigation.

I believe that every American should take a lie detector test. Those who fail to meet the Senator's requirements should leave the country.

The remaining "loyal" subjects should migrate to Rhode Island where they might be within seeing distance of each other!!
GENE SACKS.

A View of Francis Carr

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have just read your criticism of Senators Mundt, Dirksen, Potter and Dworshak for their stand on the dismissal of Francis Carr and Mr. Hensel, and I object.

Sometimes, after reading your editorials, I wonder whether you and I are watching the same proceedings. I feel that you are giving your readers an untrue, unjust picture. Inadvertently, I hope.

After watching all televised proceedings, I agree with Senator Mundt that there was no evidence against Mr. Carr. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Adams admitted under oath that Mr. Carr had not been guilty of asking for preferential treatment for Pvt. Schine. Is this not vindication?
MRS. L. SCHWARZ.

They take another view.

With good will and brotherhood.

Picnics on the Lawn

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I wonder what an out-of-town visitor must have thought of St. Louis upon driving through Forest Park on the afternoon of Memorial day?

There are areas restricted for golfing; for horseback riding; for baseball playing, etc. Why are not picnics required to be held on the picnic grounds as was customary in the past? Instead groups were untidily (to put it mild) eating anywhere they chose, even on the Art Museum lawn. FAIR PLAY.

Why Wait?

Members of the St. Louis Board of Education will meet Tuesday in the wake of a most important decision by their opposite numbers on the Baltimore School Board.

In Baltimore, the largest city in the United States with a segregated school system (St. Louis is second), the School board has voted unanimously to open the schools on a non-segregated basis next September. This is certainly encouraging news.

Twenty-four hours after the Baltimore board acted, the Catholic schools in that city also acted. Although they are under no compulsion to do so these parochial schools also will abide by the United States Supreme Court decision outlawing segregation in public education. In this respect, at least, Baltimore will be catching up with St. Louis. White and Negro pupils have been integrated in St. Louis Catholic Schools for the last seven years.

But the important question here is what the St. Louis School Board intends doing. Missouri and Maryland are among the 17 states in which segregation in public education was mandatory. If the largest city in Maryland now decides that it can integrate its public school system next fall, what is holding back the largest city in Missouri from doing the same thing?

In our opinion, there is no need whatever for St. Louis or any other community to wait on the further arguments that the Supreme Court has ordered for October. That procedure is merely to allow more time for those areas which believe themselves to have a special problem of adjustment.

As Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair pointed out in Jefferson City, "The Missouri constitutional and statutory provisions setting up segregation become a mere shambles under the decision of the high court, and school districts are legally within their rights to go ahead and integrate now."

Integration is basically a problem for local school boards to work out for themselves. And in working it out, the first step is for the local board to decide how quickly the system can accommodate itself to the Supreme Court's mandate. In St. Louis that is the question which is now squarely before the 12 members of the board.

Superintendent of Instruction Hickey has said that the system is prepared to effect integration this fall if the board so orders. In anticipation of the court's ruling, for example, the Instruction Department drew up some time ago a redistricting plan on the basis of the entire student population, regardless of color.

Mr. Hickey and his assistants deserve the community's thanks for their foresight in this matter. That previous preparation plus the time that will be available in the summer months for perfecting details of a single system will work to the community's advantage.

A segregated school system does great violence to the democratic concept. The St. Louis School Board would not be out of order if it moved firmly ahead and declared the end of segregation effective with the opening of schools next fall. Why wait?

$119,146 Worth of Campaign Mail

A terrific record for abuse of the mail franking privilege under which Congressmen can send out free mail apparently has been set by Representative Yorty (Dem.), who hopes California will elect him to the Senate this fall.

According to the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, Yorty has mailed 4,108,500 copies of a speech which he had inserted in the Congressional Record of May 12. The previous record is said to have been around 2,000,000 copies of a Congressional Record insert. Mailing of Yorty's insert is estimated to have cost the taxpayers $119,146.

A reading of the speech, entitled "Let's Build a Better America," reveals it is pretty much of a routine chamber of commerce speech. It denounces dictatorships and demagogues and advocates more hospitals and better roads. It declares that "education is the very foundation of democracy" and points out that "the air age has reduced the relative size of our spinning globe." And, of course, it gets around to taxes: "True taxes are a staggering burden but they are high mainly because of defense costs."

The outstanding thought brought to mind by this speech is that those "staggering" taxes are not likely to get much lighter with fellows like Representative Yorty spending $119,146 of the taxpayers' money to tell his constituents what he told them in that speech.

Split on AEC Powers

The Atomic Energy Commission and the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy are each split on proposed legislation to give more authority to the chairman of the five-man commission. Lewis L. Strauss, the chairman since last July, already can be said to occupy one of the most important public offices in the United States. This able administrator, who made his name as a Wall Street financier and as a naval reserve admiral, also is atomic energy adviser to President Eisenhower. He attends the very secret meetings of the National Security Council, the country's top defense group, as a consultant.

While nobody can question Adm. Strauss's patriotism, perspicacity and energy, there are persons who raise the question as to whether he is not overly ambitious for power. Roland Sawyer writes in the New Republic that "Mr. Strauss is getting what is called in Washington a bad press, and it is reliably believed that he is distressed." Joseph and Stewart Alsop, the columnists, wrote on May 24 that he had "persuaded Representative W. Sterling Cole to give him the instruments of unchallengeable personal power" in the Cole-Hickenlooper bill to amend the Atomic Energy Act of 1946.

Cole is now arguing that the bill makes no real change in the distribution of power but merely recognizes the present position of the chairman as "first among equals." If the bill makes no real change, then it may well be asked why it should even be under consideration. But the bill apparently is a bill with a real purpose for Adm. Strauss made it plain that he seeks more power. Adm. Strauss told the committee last week "that it is not possible to operate a large business enterprise by committee."

This philosophy is underscored by the contention of three of the commissioners that under the Truman Administration all five of the commissioners went to the White House to report on matters but since the new Administration they—with the exception of their chairman—have been received only once, in New York City.

Thus far there has been no cogent reason advanced as to why Adm. Strauss should become something approaching Mr. Atomic Energy while his four fellow commissioners become figureheads. He himself did very well as a commissioner in the minority before he became chairman last July. He convinced President Truman that the H-bomb should be made and he won a singlehanded fight against sending certain nuclear material to a Norwegian military research unit.

No evidence has been produced thus far proving that he needs more power than David Lilienthal and Gordon Dean had as chairmen of the AEC.

Stuart Symington Stays Put

Senator McCarthy was simply heading for another derail by demanding that Senator Symington of Missouri quit the Army-McCarthy hearings. Mr. Symington rightly decided to stay where he is.

The subcommittee had heard transcripts of a telephone conversation between Mr. Symington and Secretary of the Army Stevens. These disclosed that the Missouri Senator suggested legal help for the Army in opposing McCarthy's attempt to subpena members of the Army loyalty board. Senator Symington also urged Stevens to "forget those Marquis of Queensberry rules."

Upon hearing this Senator McCarthy charged that the phone calls "blew up" the Army's case. He accused Mr. Symington of favoritism toward the Army and demanded that he step down as "judge" at the hearings.

In the midst of the uproar, several things could have been said in defense of Senator Symington. The first is that he certainly gave the Army some good advice: namely, to fight back against the McCarthy invasion.

But Mr. Symington could only give that advice because the Army had not then determined to fight. In fact, the present hearings had not even been proposed.

As a member of McCarthy's own subcommittee who was not in the confidence of the chairman and as former Air Force Secretary, Senator Symington had a perfectly natural right to be concerned about the chairman's attack on the Army. And the Senator could not have known then that he would later be called to help hear the accusations which resulted.

Such a prior interest might disqualify a judge from hearing a case in court, but the Senate subcommittee is a prairie mile from being a court. For one thing, it is hearing a case involving its own chairman. And its Republican members have shown distinct favoritism toward the case of their Republican colleague from Wisconsin, even going so far as to dismiss the charges against his chief of staff, Francis P. Carr.

About all the charges and counter-charges of favoritism show is that the Senate subcommittee was not the proper committee to hear the case. But that is where the hearings began and where they must end, with whatever embarrassment to either side. It is too late for a defendant to try to change the judges.

Building up the Sheriff

St. Louis county is considering a plan to replace the sheriff system with a modern county police force, yet the County Council has voted tentatively to add 10 more deputies to the sheriff's staff. What kind of timing is that?

Sheriff Arthur C. Mosley had ambitions for 20 more deputies. The council voted 6 to 1 to perfect a bill giving him 10, with Councilman James A. Singer opposed.

Even if the sheriff needs more help, the present bill ought to provide stricter standards for selecting new deputies. The sheriff's office is a political office. The selection methods used there can be judged by such events as the notorious shooting and celebration at the sheriff's staff party.

But the time to give the sheriff more help is when and if county voters decide to keep him. The Citizens' Commission on Law Enforcement has proposed a non-political police force as a substitute for the outmoded sheriff system. A charter amendment to establish the police is being prepared for the council, and should be passed on to the voters.

Ten more deputies for the sheriff now could mean ten more campaigners against the police plan. And if the plan is adopted, these deputies would probably be frozen into the new police force. Obviously building up the sheriff's office just as the county has a chance to replace it is not going to do the police plan any good. The Council ought to put the police project first.

One of the Best of Men

Dean Isidor Loeb never was elected to the Board of Aldermen or the Missouri Legislature or to a seat in Congress. Yet he served his city, his state and his nation more effectively than a vast host of those who hold elective office. He illuminated politics. He applied the methods and skills of the scientist to the study and presentation of practical political problems such as taxation, labor relations and price controls. Few scholars were his peer in state government and constitutional law.

And he had infinite patience and good cheer. In 1907 he wrote a pamphlet, "The Necessity for a New Constitution in Missouri." When he saw Missouri catch up some 40 years later with the new Constitution of 1945 he welcomed the achievement belated though it was. His colleagues gave him the highest post in their command, the presidency of the American Political Science Association, which such men as Woodrow Wilson and Lord Bryce distinguished. Yet he was the most approachable, kindly of men, always at the call of his students.

The University of Missouri and Washington University shared him in his long career and Gown shared him generously with Town. It had to be that way with Isidor Loeb.

A Change of Roles

Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is reported to have told Winston Churchill's cabinet over the weekend that a solution to the Indochina tangle can be found at Geneva if he is given sufficient time.

In Washington, on the other hand, Senator Knowland of California, the Republican majority leader, is taking the position that the Geneva conference is a waste of time, and urging the Eisenhower Administration to end the "dangerous stalemate" there. And he is asking the American people to "face up to the fact" that they may have to fight in Indochina.

It is a strange turn of events when the chances for peace or war in the Far East appear to depend upon strenuous efforts by others, but not by the United States, to reach a diplomatic solution of the Indochina problem. Britain, the historic colonial "warmonger," is now cast in the role of peacemaker, and the United States, traditionally inclined to stay out of distant quarrels as long as possible, is placed in quite a different light.

Quite apart from the major question of peace or war, has anybody in Washington thought about what this role does to our propaganda position in Asia? How many friends do we win there by appearing to seek only military solutions for Indochina?

THE, SCHOOL OF HARD KNOCKS IS NEXT

Supermen of the Supermarket

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Schwegmann Bros. of New Orleans cut prices and get mobbed; do $15,000,000 a year business in one of three huge stores; defiance of "fair trade" price-fixing laws makes them most-sued people in country; stores are drab, give little service.

Harlan S. Byrne in The Wall Street Journal

On a sultry August day eight years ago a throng of shoppers tore down the front door shoving their way into a new supermarket in New Orleans.

Ever since that rowdy opening, Schwegmann Bros. has shown remarkably little desire to quell customer-buying riots. Yet it has miraculously been spared further loss of property, all the while holding prices generally 10 to 50 per cent below those of competitors.

Schwegmann Bros. outgrew that 16,000-square-foot supermarket the first day. But it wasn't until four years ago that the store partners faced facts and put up supermarket No. 2. Over four times roomier than the first and tops in size nationally, it disgorges thousands of items from lettuce to lingerie to lawnmowers. Now on the planning board is a third store in the Schwegmann "chain." It'll be twice as big as the second but not quite large enough to cover four football fields.

John Schwegmann

Men of Distinction

In a few short years Schwegmann Bros. has rocketed out of obscurity to become a national symbol of retail price slashing. Its running five-year legal duel with defenders of "fair trade" laws permitting manufacturers to fix minimum retail prices has been spotlighted across the land. It's a widely-publicized fact that drug and liquor companies have hung on the defiant Schwegmanns a distinction as the most-sued people in the country.

For the 1954 fiscal year ending in June the estimated combined net sales will easily hurdle the $20,000,000 mark. The previous year the two stores did business of $17,000,000. The big No. 2 store, located just off Airline Highway on the west side of the city, alone will go above $15,000,000 in the current year, John G. Schwegmann Jr. predicts. That's something like a record for a single supermarket anywhere.

Schwegmann merchandise is priced on the thinnest markup that will let the partners hold onto their shirts, he declares. Another helpful hint: Whittle operating costs and overhead down to rock-bottom minimums and nail them there. Mr. Schwegmann frankly admits: "We give little or no service."

Low-Cost Construction

Besides staple groceries, this Willow Run of the supermarket peddles liquor, hardware, toiletries, cosmetics, sporting goods, jewelry, luggage, drugs, toys, clothing and appliances.

Also jammed in are a four-chair barbershop, snack bar, shoe and watch repair shops, flower shop, and key-making concession.

Schwegmann's third store will go several steps further. Plans aren't final yet, but Mr. Schwegmann is toying with these ideas: A pet shop, beauty shop, musical instrument and phonograph record department, launderette, savings bank, finance company, and a concession for writing auto insurance.

He also cites an initial advantage in low cost of construction. The Airline store was built for $2.50 a square foot, which Mr. Schwegmann estimates was less than half what a fancier, conventional supermarket would have cost.

At a glance the big Airline Highway store could be mistaken for three airplane hangars set side by side. Its outside shell is corrugated sheet steel, painted a drab gray. There are side walls of whitewashed concrete. This framework is laced together inside by exposed steel columns, beams and struts. The floors are concrete. Merchandise is piled high on counters. The store has had canned goods displays of as many as 500 cases of a single item at one time.

The Schwegmanns get a flying start by making close to 75 per cent of their purchases directly from producers rather than distributors. Few independently-owned supermarkets can match that feat. Recently Mr. Schwegmann has been dickering with Borden, Kellogg and Campbell Soup for purchases in carload lots.

'Fair Traders' Look Other Way

In "fair trade" tussles Schwegmann Bros. has been chopped off from direct-buying sources of a lot of non-food items, especially drugs. But the champions of price cutting are not to be denied easily. They find a lot of manufacturers who profess to be "fair traders" frankly look the other way as their merchandise is moved by retailers below "minimum retail prices."

Markups vary quite a bit. Soap, breakfast foods and beer are sold on a markup as little as 6 per cent because they're strictly self-service items moved in tremendous volume. Hardware ordinarily carries a 20 per cent markup; it's often susceptible to breakage. Fresh meats take a similar high markup. They involve refrigeration and butcher service. The average markup is 10 per cent, compared to 15 per cent or so for competitors, according to Mr. Schwegmann.

Saddled with as many as 40 injunctions at one time, Schwegmann has been hamstrung on a number of items. But in every instance warnings from manufacturers have been ignored.

Despite "fair traders," the Airline store is still doing a thriving prescription business—perhaps the biggest in town for any one store. "We're saving our customers at least 50 per cent on the average prescription," contends Mr. Schwegmann.

Price-Paring Brings Profits

Despite price-paring the Schwegmanns do fairly well for themselves in the profit column. Gross profit has worked out to an average margin of only about 10 per cent annually. Mr. Schwegmann says competitors depend on 12 per cent or more to keep going.

The partners come out with a 2 per cent net profit before taxes, or about $350,000 in fiscal 1953. That may look pretty skinny, but financial statements of big food supermarket chains indicate the figure is fairly well in line with average net income before taxes.

Schwegmann Bros. swings the cost ax heartily at advertising, a big expense item for most supermarkets. In the 1953 fiscal year it spent only 0.1¢ per cent of gross sales on advertising. Mr. Schwegmann observes supermarkets usually lay out about 1 per cent of their gross sales for advertising. Mr. Schwegmann frankly notes, however, that publicity received from the "fair trade" fight has been excellent free advertising.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE.

From the Knoxville News-Sentinel.

The Army has invented a new electronic thermometer which will take a man's temperature in five to seven seconds. Now for a good, fast public-pulse counter. With a master gadget like that in Washington, it might serve to keep Congressmen's minds off adjournment.

Between Book Ends

Exemplar of Treason

TRAITOROUS HERO, by Willard M. Wallace. (Harper, 394 pgs., $3.)

One somewhat archaic definition of the word apology runs as follows; "An explanation of the grounds for a given course of action." In a word this is the perfect description of Willard M. Wallace's "Traitorous Hero." His book is in no sense a justification; it is rather the painstaking exposition of a personality and its motives. Through Wallace's work Benedict Arnold becomes neither sub- nor super-human, but a man, with a certain bent of character, whose actions can be understood when the circumstances surrounding his life become clear.

Benedict Arnold

Here is a man who could have been great. He had the kind of natural leadership which drew men to him, and he knew it. As Arnold himself said, "If I am without command, I will fight in the ranks, but the soldiers, God bless them, will follow my lead." But greatness to be lasting must reach in more than one direction, and must carry with it a certain willingness to be adaptable and to step aside gracefully. These, the Arnold here pictured could not do. It was apparently a case of "play my way, or I won't play," for once frustrated, the temperamental little general seems to have begun a chain of bitterness and rebellion never to be broken throughout his lifetime.

In one sense this book is a biography; in another, it is a great deal more, including much deep historical insight not ordinarily found in straight biography. In short, this is in many ways a study of the Revolution. As such, since its main emphases are personalities and motivations of many of that war's chief military figures, Wallace has provided what amounts to a new window onto the Revolution, giving it more vitality than the usual historical treatise. In spite of a heavy reliance on personal episodes, Mr. Wallace has maintained a remarkable level of authenticity, his entire study being so carefully documented and supplemented as to be extremely useful as an accurate source book.

As to the treason which makes Benedict Arnold the logical center for such a study, Wallace lights up his study in a way that helps it to become, if not excusable, at least understandable. With this revelation, the reader comes to feel the intense bitterness the General must have felt when he wrote, "I daily discover so much baseness and ingratitude among mankind that I almost blush at being of the same species."

Here the reader watches the souring of ambition to a point where respect becomes no more than respect for those in power; where being a turncoat is only the path to self-realization; and where treason becomes glorious as the culmination of personal ambition.

With Benedict Arnold as its pivot point, Willard M. Wallace has given his readers a blow by blow description of a country in the throes of learning what it means to be a democracy.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Accommodation to a Climate

WASHINGTON.

DECISIONS OF GROUPS in our society involving government and the relationships of human beings under or in government are affected necessarily by the atmosphere and climate of the times. That embraces what we call politics. Such influences are not always consciously recognized.

Not even the Supreme Court operates in a vacuum, nor should it. Certainly its recent series of decisions, banning segregration in our public schools and other areas of our society, reflected an appreciation of a changed climate and atmosphere which had occurred over a long period. The Supreme Court merely was accepting this. It was aware, however, that this was not just a temporary atmosphere, but a slowly shifting attitude that is part of a historical process.

Gordon Gray

This was hardly so, on the other hand, in a more recent decision by another group, the special personnel security board of the Atomic Energy Commission, in the case of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, the nuclear physicist most responsible for creation of the atomic bomb.

A Temporary Climate.

With no disparagement whatever intended for any of the board of very distinguished men, it is suggested that the majority decision represented an accommodation to a temporary climate or atmosphere peculiar periodically to politics. By "temporary" let us mean a span of years, perhaps; for the current emotional disturbance probably is not to pass quickly. But we cannot accept it as permanent.

The majority decision of the board—made by Gordon Gray, president of the University of North Carolina, and Thomas A. Morgan, former president of Sperry Corporation—was, as we know, to remove security clearance from Dr. Oppenheimer, and thus to deny him hereafter access to atomic secrets, many of which, as is pointed out by the Federation of American Scientists, he had "a major role in producing." At the same time, the board unanimously found the scientist to be completely loyal to his country.

Fear of McCarthy.

This strange compromise has every appearance, to the outside observer, of a concession to the spirit of the times, a gesture to what we call "McCarthyism," and thus fits itself into the political framework of this frustrated era.

The three members of the board surely were conscious, since they are very intelligent and perceptive individuals, that if Dr. Oppenheimer were given complete clearance, Senator Joe McCarthy would seize this to go on another rampage. As a matter of fact, the case was first brought to public attention, and the board quickly appointed, when it was learned that Senator McCarthy expected shortly to spring it—and to use it to offset the case which the Army had brought against him and which now is being aired at the Capitol.

The majority opinion of the special board shows evidence that its two sponsors were very conscious of the political climate and its pressing humidity—shows it in the torture that cries from some of the sentences in which they seek to explain their position, and in the occasional inconsistencies. Among the latter, there is the diagnosis of Dr. Oppenheimer as susceptible to influence and, in the next breath, mention of his "high degree of discretion reflecting an unusual ability to keep to himself vital secrets."

Contrast in Style.

The clanking and dragging of the mental chains in the majority report contrasts with the directness and openness of the dissenting report by the third board member, Ward V. Evans, professor of chemistry at Loyola University of Chicago, who was for security clearance for the scientist. The majority decision contrasts, too, with the easy and unfettered course of the Supreme Court in the segregation cases.

But the court—and also Prof. Evans—was moving with the stream of history. The board's majority report was trying to rationalize a pause in our forward progress in another, though related area—or even a backward step. For its troubled justification of its position hardly seems in accord with the forward movement of our freedoms, at least as defined so eloquently by President Eisenhower in his Columbia University speech this week. Having said that, we must recognize and respect the ordeal which the board faced.

'I Cannot Do It.'

In our system the human being is paramount, or at least that is what we say so insistently when we compare our democracy with totalitarian systems, of which Soviet Russia now offers the outstanding example. Prof. Evans spoke for the human being when he cried out, "To damn him now and ruin his career and his service, I cannot do it." Concluding his dissent, he said, "This is my opinion as a citizen of a free country."

But ours is a government of laws, not men, we also like to say. And so the majority opinion resorted to the letter of our security laws, which have been tightened up since Dr. Oppenheimer first was cleared for the job to perform that "loyal and magnificent service"—as the Gray-Morgan majority decision put it—for which, they added, the nation owes him "a great debt of gratitude."

OUTDOOR SCULPTURE EXHIBIT OPENS HERE

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

The third annual sculpture show of the People's Art Center, Community Chest agency at 3657 Grandel square, opened yesterday in the center's herb garden, with 14 exhibitors contributing a total of 24 hours work in varied kinds of wood, metal, stone and plaster. In both quality and diversity, the collection seems an improvement over its predecessors.

Reno Gastaldi, Yale-trained sculptor represented in the series for the first time, has on view two naturalistic and voluptuous wall hangings in cast stone, "Dancers" and "Adam and Eve."

Zale Stratmeyer, another newcomer, is showing a recent expressionist "Mother and Children," marked by warmth of feeling, as well as an earlier, less successful head. Among versatile exhibitors are Marie Taylor, working in lignum vitae and Javanese soapstone, and William Severson, in plaster, copper and lead.

There are fountain sculptures by Ray Grimm and Isabella Burns, mobiles by Fred Dreher and characteristic pieces by Ann Scott, Elizabeth Phelan, Robert Walker, Hillis Arnold, Rudolph Torrini and Jere Meisel. The show will close Saturday.

"Art for the Home," an exhibition of 30 paintings and four enamels by 18 members of the St. Louis chapter of Artists' Equity Association, has opened at the Equity Gallery, 5201 Delmar boulevard. Despite its title, the show looks much like any other by the same group.

E. Oscar Thalinger's "Decoration for a Child's Room," fresh and bright semi-abstraction of toys, alphabet and numbers, is unusual in carrying out the display's theme. So is ben Henschen's playfoul "Big Felix and Little Felix." Many another resorts to an eccentric frame job, which in the case of Fred James Carpenter's exotic portrait, "Magda," is quite effective.

Oddly framed, too, are the enamels, all by Alexandra Korsakoff Galston, who also sent five pictures, some of them reminiscent of Van Gogh. The great Dutch pioneer modern's St. Louis premiere seems to have lent emotional strength to "Pirates' Alley" and "Fruit Trees," both by Carmen Bahr Kress.

Working veins they have exploited earlier are Belle Cramer, John Saporita, Ganz Propper, Philip Gronemeyer, Blanche Skrainka and Virginia M berly Schlueter. The show will continue through June 21.

WALTER LIPPMANN

A Verdict Its Makers Reject

WASHINGTON.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER deciding that they "do not recommend reinstatement of clearance" of Dr. Oppenheimer, Mr. Gray and Mr. Morgan did an extraordinary thing.

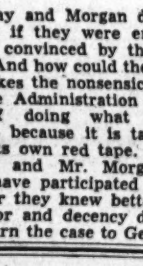
"It seemed to us that an alternative recommendation would be possible, if we were allowed to exercise mature practical judgment without the rigid circumscription of regulations and criteria established for us."

So much did they doubt and distrust their own recommendations that they asked the Atomic Energy Commission whether they had to override their own mature practical judgment. The answer they got from the commission was, they tell us, that they did have to stay within these rigid rules.



Lippmann

Their mature practical judgment, the good sense of this case, was that "Dr. Oppenheimer simply not be used as a consultant." The Administration had as much right to cease to use Dr. Oppenheimer as a consultant as it had to replace the chiefs of staff.

A Better Alternative.

Had the Administration taken this simple decision, there would, say Messrs. Gray and Morgan, "exist no need for a categorical answer to the difficult question posed by the regulations, since there would be no need for access to classified material" by Dr. Oppenheimer.

What prevented them from doing what they would have "preferred" to do? The Atomic Energy Commission, presumably speaking through Gen. Nichols, told them that, "without the positive act of withdrawal of access," Dr. Oppenheimer "would continue to receive classified reports on atomic energy activities as a consultant, even though his services were not specifically and currently engaged."

Moreover, other agencies of the Government would have gone on giving him classified information, and he might have been used by the atomic energy contractors.

Why Not Speak Out?

Messrs. Gray and Morgan do not sound as if they were enthusiastically convinced by this explanation. And how could they be? For it takes the nonsensical view that the Administration is incapable of doing what it wishes to do because it is tangled up in its own red tape.

Mr. Gray and Mr. Morgan should not have participated in the mess, for they knew better. Why in honor and decency did they not return the case to Gen. Nichols with a statement of what they really believed?

They were a distinguished board, selected from the outside to deal with a momentous and delicate issue involving in more senses than one the security, the dignity, and the good repute of the country. Why did they feel compelled to behave like timid little bureaucrats in the face of the regulations?

Dr. Oppenheimer's loyalty had been questioned. They investigated that charge and came to the conclusion that there is "no evidence of disloyalty." Since he was loyal, the next question was whether he is a security risk.

The Only Red Doubt.

What is a security risk? It is a man who, though loyal, might give away secrets because he is a loose talker or because he is subject to blackmail or blandishment.

The board found that "it must be said that Dr. Oppenheimer seems to have had a high degree of discretion reflecting an unusual ability to keep to himself vital secrets." A man with a high degree of discretion, who is loyal, is not a security risk.

There is doubt about the soundness of his judgment in the affairs of this world, as he himself has testified with such poignancy and grace. There is, or so at least it has seemed to me, doubt about his political judgment in such matters as the control of atomic weapons and the strategic implications of atomic warfare.

Judgment on Trial.

It is not then his loyalty and his security which are in question but his judgment. That is a relevant consideration in the choice of a consultant at the top level. It is not, however, a matter that can be tested by a trial.

A strong government of adult men would have known how to use a man of Dr. Oppenheimer's genius, discounting his political advice.

A weak government, not trusting its own judgment but distrusting his judgment, and fearing the impact of his brilliance, would be justified in terminating his services.

As Messrs. Gray and Morgan say so apprehensively and so plaintively at the beginning, "In a very real sense this case put the security system of the United States on trial both as to procedure and as to substance."

Stanky's Strategy Fizzles; Moon Cut Down Stealing Home

WRAY'S COLUMN

Santee Meets Olympic Champion Next Friday.

THAT Jayhawker mile runner Wesley Santee almost caught up with Roger Bannister's less-than-four-minutes mile record last week. . . . He missed equalling the Briton's great time by only 1.2 seconds and did it without benefit of guinea pigs or laboratory training.

Santee had the uplift of fast running pacers who just fell short in ability to keep Santee traveling as fast as he wanted to. . . . His time was 4:00.6. . . . Had he been running against Bannister the day the British athlete set his record, Santee would have been beaten by about 22 feet, or something like three strides. . . . That's close enough to make it almost certain that in the near future Wes will equal or surpass his rival's "miracle" mile.

* * *

The "near future" mentioned is very near. . . . According to our Pacific Coast observer Marquard Schwarz, Wesley's next effort to pass Bannister in the race for mile running supremacy will take place next Friday when at Los Angeles Coliseum, he will meet a great international miler and Olympic champion in the "metric" mile at Helsinki — Joseph Barthel of Luxembourg. . . . The event will feature the L. A. District A.A.U. championship meet.

Barthel, incidentally, will be a standout attraction at the National A.A.U. championships here, June 18. . . . It was Barthel who furnished the big surprise of the Olympic 1500 meter event, by setting a new Olympic record of 3:54.2, beating Bob McMillen of United States and a great international field. His meeting with Santee next Friday should see Bannister's time approached or even surpassed.

* * *

No Laboratory Tests Are Needed by Santee.

SANTEE is a natural runner. . . . He is said to have the physical equipment and the competitive spirit, plus a "kick" at the finish of his races. . . . He can approximate the world record for a half-mile (has done it as anchor man in a relay race) and is also planning to attack the two-mile time.

Perhaps he's attempting too much. . . . Some think he should concentrate on one event. His recent mile efforts have shown steady improvement, and if he keeps trying while he's hot—let's hope one of his efforts may be here in St. Louis—he could conceivably surpass the present world mark of 3:59.4.

* * *

Bannister's preparatory training for his miracle mile was a different type from that of Santee. . . . He spent weeks, even months in his build-up. . . . It was a truly scientific approach to the job of running a mile under four minutes. . . . He used himself as a guinea pig, so to speak, testing oxygen, food, sleep and physical chemistry values to enable him to attain his peak energy and running powers. . . . The laboratory part of his training was a masterpiece of careful planning and self denial and really deserved success.

* * *

Bannister Loses, Santee Wins, in Half-Mile Runs.

INTERESTING to note is that in England last Saturday, Bannister was beaten by two countrymen, while Santee was winning Saturday, at Stockton, California, both events being at one-half mile. . . . Santee accomplished the rather amazing feat of defeating Mal Whitfield in 1:50 flat, time much slower than Whitfield's world mark. . . . On the other hand, Bannister lost in a race won in slower time than Santee's effort.

* * *

Maybe Bannister had lost some of his sharpness in attempting the half mile. . . . Or perhaps that isn't his best distance. . . . It could mean that Santee is improving while Bannister is static. . . . Or, it could mean nothing much. . . . Just a bad afternoon.

* * *

It seems to point to one thing—that Santee wasn't just a loose talker when he declared some time ago that he would go after the half-mile and the two-mile championships soon.

* * *

The comeback of Bill Bangert, great athlete of a decade ago, has been remarkable. . . . Eight or nine years back Bangert won the national shotput championship twice in succession, with efforts under 53 feet. . . . In practice recently he reached 55 feet four times and 57 feet once. . . . Last Saturday, at the Fort Leonard Wood meet, Bangert again put the shot 57 feet, which is top level weight shoving in any athlete's life.

Bill's recent performances are almost enough to give him a chance to finish in the money during the championships in St. Louis this month, with Parry O'Brien showing the way in a fine field, and aiming at a new world record of 62 feet.

* * *

St. Louis sponsored the third revival of the Olympic Games in 1904 but nobody says much now about that No. 1 athletic event in the city's history. . . . Still less has been done. . . . The wonderful films of the Helsinki Olympics of 1952, now being shown several times each week at various local clubs and luncheons, have done much to revive interest here not only in Olympic Games but in athletics generally.

The donor, Marquard Schwarz, himself a former Olympic team member from St. Louis, rates a bow for his efforts to help bring back track and field interest here.

Wally Sent In With 3 On, 2 Out

By Dent McSkimming

In case you were wondering what got into Wally Moon in the sixth inning of yesterday's game with the Phillies when he failed in a dash from third base to the plate, you can stop wondering.

With the score tied at 6-6, two out and the bases filled with Cardinals (Moon at third, Red Schoendienst at second and Stan Musial at first), Ray Jablonski was the batter. There were visions of one, two or a half dozen runs coming over the plate because at that moment Jablonski, batting .383, was close to being the National League's leading batter.

It's a solid betting proposition that not one of the 19,208 spectators in Busch Stadium anticipated the next play. Maybe that's just why Stanky ordered Moon to steal home. If a steal is expected it's dead as a dodo. Wally was off with the pitch by Bob Miller. The ball reached the plate low and outside. Seeing that his teammate was trapped, Jablonski reached half-heartedly across the plate, hoping, perhaps, to foul the ball away. He missed but Catcher Smokey Burgess didn't. Moon was out and so were the Cardinals.

By the time the Redbirds made good on their next scoring opportunity, in the ninth inning, the Phillies had scored five more runs. So, in the end, it was Philadelphia 11, Cardinals 8.

Stanky Takes Blame.

In answer to a request for comment on the unhappy steal, Stanky said:

"I am responsible for things that go wrong on this club. I gave the sign for that steal."

Since it failed and the Cardinals lost, a considerable number of watchers will insist that it was the wrong move. Nothing flops so flat as failure.

At the very start, the young Negro righthander, Bill Greason, couldn't get the side out. In fact, he couldn't get a batter out. Willie Jones hit him for a home run and Greason walked the next two batters. Stanky then switched to Southpaw Royce Lint who, although he walked one batter and was tagged for a home run by Bobby Morgan, should have gotten out of the inning without a run charged to him. He had fanned Del Ennis and Smokey Burgess when Musial, playing first base, kicked a grounder by Johnny Wyrostek that should have been the third out. A runner scored on the play and Morgan's grand slam homer followed.

Six runs behind, the Cards fought a brave uphill battle. Facing a frequently baffling southpaw, Curt Simmons, Red Schoendienst poled a first-inning home run and Musial singled and then came another disheartening turn.

Jablonski hit a hard smash at Shortstop Morgan. Morgan snapped the ball to Granny Hamner, on second, in a try for a forceout of Musial but as Hamner received the ball, shoulder high and to his right, he seemed to lose his grip and the ball popped into the air.

Stanky Clears Own Bench.

Umpire Artie Gore surprised the Cardinals by ruling Musial out, contending that Hamner had momentarily held the ball but had lost it as he drew his right hand back for a throw to first base. There was a lively row at second base and then, as the players started for their positions and Manager Stanky walked toward the third base coaching box, Gore waved toward the bench and ordered Del Rice to the clubhouse.

Then Stanky walked to the dugout and told all his players who were not actually engaged in the game to clear the bench and go to the clubhouse. That's a maneuver sometimes resorted to by umpires who otherwise fail in their efforts to establish peace and quiet, but never before had the fans here seen a manager clear his own bench.

Of course, all but Rice were still eligible to take part in the game when recalled by messenger.

"I cleared my bench for the good of the ball club," explained Stanky. "I'm not going to let any red-necked umpire rob us of a chance to win a ball game."

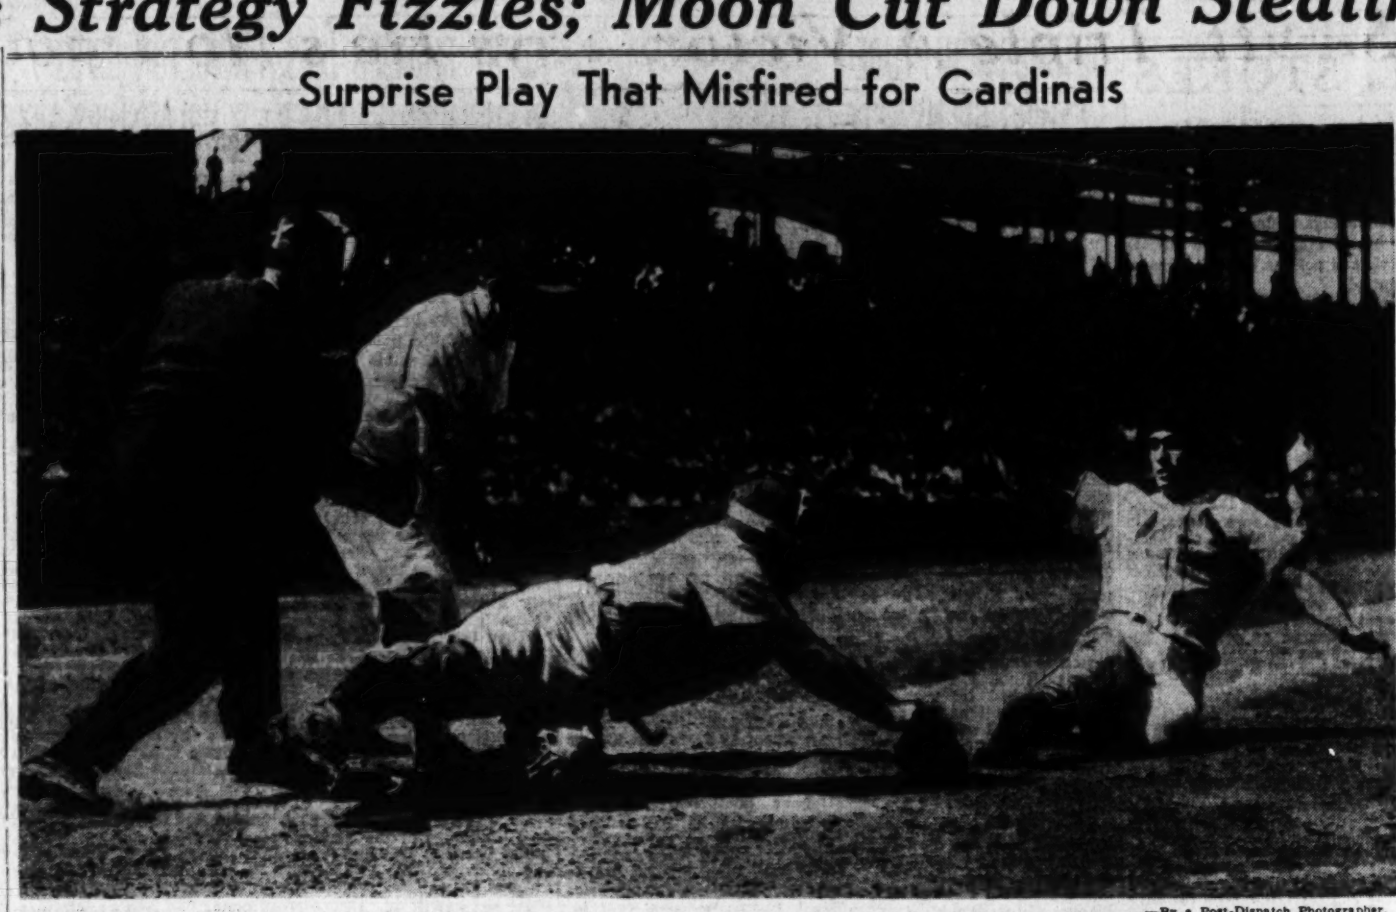
Without adding a supporting phrase, he obviously meant that he feared Gore might go right on pointing the finger at others. And any so chased would be out for the day.

Bill Sarni, Alex Grammas and Moon combined singles to score a run in the second and Rip Repulski's double and Sarni's double tallied one in the third.

Simmons was knocked out of the box in the fifth when the Cards tied the score with three runs. Here Schoendienst, Musial and Jablonski singled, Repulski drove in a run on an infield out and Sarni brought in one on a long fly.

But Bob Miller, who relieved Simmons, became a terrific stopper. In four innings he allowed only three hits. Meanwhile the Phils kayoed Lint and his successor, Joe Presko, in a five-run seventh inning. That's why the Cardinals' ninth-inning attack, scoring two runs, was just a dying gasp. Sarni homered in that rally, Repulski and Solly Hemus doubled and Tom Alston singled.

Surprise Play That Misfired for Cardinals



—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

Richard Hobbs and Wife Win Golf Event

Two couples tied for second place and will play it off next Saturday. They are Tom Hansen and wife and Lee Flood and wife. Each team had 159.

Dodgers Here Tonight; Robinson And Musial in Batting Duel

A duel of great batters is in prospect here tonight when Stan Musial and Jackie Robinson swing for the Cardinals and Dodgers in the opening game of a four-game series at Busch Stadium.

Robinson has eased into the National League lead with an average of .388; Musial is second with .385 and Ray Jablonski third with .384. Brooklyn, leading the league, is on a nine-game winning streak.

Musial will be batting against a cagey lefthander in ex-Cardinal Preacher Roe; Robinson against a sometimes great righthander, Gerry Staley. Game time is 8 o'clock.

Manager Stanky said Royce Lint admitted he was tiring in the seventh inning of yesterday's game. He had pitched brilliantly from the first to the seventh, allowing four hits in six innings.

The rookie, Greason, on the other hand, was just over eager. . . . Peanuts Lowrey, who fanned as a pinch batter in the ninth to end the game, has gone 17 times without a hit. . . . And Tom Burgess 16 times for zero.

The paid attendance for the Sunday game was 18,547, increasing the 26-game at-home total to 304,910.

Although the Redbirds hammered both Philadelphia pitching stars Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons out of the box, the Phillies took two out of three games here. . . . Now the Redbirds trail the league-leading Dodgers by 5½ games.

Jim Hemric, 18-year-old pitching ace at Ronda (N.C.) High School, has signed a contract with the Cardinals. Hemric, who was graduated recently, was ordered to report to Johnson City, Tenn., in the Appalachian State League.

Minoso in Running for Loop's Most Valuable Player Award

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—Orestes (Minnie) Minoso, called by Ted Williams "potentially the greatest player in the American League," has thrust himself boldly into the running for the most coveted honor the junior circuit has to offer—the most valuable player award.

Largely because of the all-around brilliance of this fleet-footed son of Matanza, Cuba, the Chicago White Sox have been able to keep within striking distance of the league-leading Cleveland Indians.

No player—and that includes Williams, Al Rosen and Yogi Berra—has done more for his club than has Minoso. As the season comes to the one-third mark, the 30-year-old outfielder leads the circuit in runs batted in, runs scored, triples and stolen bases. He is second in hits, third in home runs and doubles and fourth in batting. His team value is reflected in his ability to do a workmanlike job at third base as well as anywhere in the outfield.

Minoso was Chicago's big gun again yesterday as the White Sox swept a doubleheader from Washington, 5-3 and 6-0, to run their winning streak to five straight and remain within eight percentage points of first place. He smashed his tenth home run with a man on base to provide the winning margin in the opener. He collected three singles, drove in his fiftieth and fifty-first runs, scored his forty-sixth run and stole his seventh base in the nightcap. He is hitting .333.

Indians Win Pair.

Cleveland protected its first-place margin, sweeping a doubleheader from the Athletics in Philadelphia, 2-1 and 7-5, while Brooklyn boosted its National League lead to two games, thrashing the Chicago Cubs, 6-4, for its ninth straight.

The Baltimore Orioles held New York to a split in their twin bill to drop the third-place Yankees three and a half games behind the pace. Veteran Joe Coleman, continuing his fine comeback, beat the Yankees, 7-4, for his sixth victory, but the Yankees won the second game, 5-2, as Allie Reynolds outpitched Don Larsen.

Boston's Red Sox went on a home run binge to defeat Detroit, 7-4. Homers by Ted Lepcio, Milt Bolling, Harry Agganis and Jackie Jensen accounted for all of Boston's runs as Willard Nixon turned in his fourth triumph.

The Giants and Cincinnati Redlegs exchanged 3-2 decisions. The Giants won the first game on Monte Irvin's tenth homer of the season in the eighth. The Reds took the nightcap in the ninth when Bob Borkowski singled to score Chuck Harmon from second.

Pittsburgh overcame a grand slam homer by Milwaukee's Eddie Mathews to win the second game, 6-4, after Jim Wilson had pitched the Braves to a 4-0 opening game victory. The veteran righthander permitted only four hits in his first start of the season. Four successive Pirate pinch-hitters came through in the seventh inning of the nightcap to put Pittsburgh in front.

A trio of triples paved the way for Cleveland's pair of victories over Philadelphia. Two of them came in the second inning of the first game and helped Bob Feller record the 251st victory of his career. They were hit by Dave Philley and George Strickland. Each scored on a sacrifice fly. The third triple was hit by rookie catcher Hal Naragon with the bases full in the fourth inning to provide the margin of victory in the second game.

Two Homers for Rivera.

Minoso surrendered first game batting honors to teammate Jim Rivera. The White Sox outfielder slammed a pair of homers, doubled and scored three runs to extend his hitting streak through 14 games. Rookie southpaw Jack Harshman turned in a seven-hit shutout in the nightcap.

Bob Kennedy's two-run double highlighted a four-run seventh that gave the Orioles an uphill victory over the Yankees. Reynolds allowed only five hits and fanned eight to record his sixth triumph against one defeat in the second game. Mickey Mantle's tenth homer with a man on clinched the Yankee victory.

Four straight singles by Peewee Reese, Duke Snider, Jackie Robinson and Gil Hodges after two were out in the tenth snapped a 4-4 tie and enabled the Dodgers to sweep their four-game series. Robinson, with four hits including a home run, took over the National League batting lead with .388.

Ross Picks Ez To Stop Rocky

The now gray Ross watched from ringside as Marciano, who defends his title against Charles at Yankee Stadium in New York June 17, boxed five rounds.

"I watched Rocky work two weeks ago," Ross said, "and I said then Rocky was 'head hunting' entirely too much. I mean he concentrates on swinging at his opponent's head and neglects to soften him up by not going for the stomach.

"Remember what happened when Rocky fought Roland Lastarza? He kept trying for a knockout with one punch to the head and it took him 11 rounds to catch up to La Starza. Charles is a much better all-round fighter. He'll feint and jab Rocky silly, then knock him out."

With that idea in view he boxed four rounds, two against Chubby Wright and one each against Gene Jones and Al Smith. In the workout yesterday he used a left jab and left hook almost exclusively. Charles now has boxed a total of 124 rounds. He weighed 192 pounds.

Patterson and Archie Moore In TV Fights

NEW YORK, June 7 (UP)—Floyd Patterson, youngest light-heavyweight contender, and Archie Moore, 38-year-old world champion, will receive important tests tonight in two television fights.

Unbeaten Patterson of Brooklyn, 19, meets ex-champion Joey Maxim of Cleveland at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway Arena in the richest and most significant eight-round bout ever staged. Second-ranking contender Maxim, 32, receives $12,500. Fifth-ranking Floyd gets $7000 for the ABC TV fight. Betting was even.

Moore is king of the 175-pounders; but he now has difficulty paring down to the light-heavy limit, and he craves a shot at the heavyweight crown. Accordingly, ancient Archie will meet heavyweight Bert Whitehurst of Baltimore in a (DuMont) TV 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena. The champ was a 3-1 favorite.

(The Patterson-Maxim fight will be televised by KSTM-TV starting at 9 o'clock, while the Moore bout will be on WTVI at the same time.)

Whitehurst, 24, is unranked; but last year he outpointed Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson, and never could entice the fifth-ranking aspirant into a return bout.

Moore's crown is sought by Patterson, former Olympic middleweight champion. The speedy, explosive young Negro should demonstrate in the Maxim fight if he will soon or ever become Moore's successor. Youthful Floyd will be seeking his fourteenth straight professional victory and ninth knockout against a tough, crafty veteran who fought formidable middleweights, light-heavies and heavies in 105 bouts during 13 years and was stopped but once—by Curtis Sheppard in 1943. He won 90. In this year's only start; Maxim tried to recapture the title from Moore but failed, losing a 15-round decision at Miami.

Savitt, Triple A Victor, Says He's No Davis Cup Candidate

DOWN THE STRETCH

by Herman Wecke

Sanabria Gains in Jockey Title Race.

RAFAEL SANABRIA, the Cuban rider, who before the Fairmount meeting opened said, "I'll get going even though I have a very bad season at Hot Springs," is living up to his prediction. . . . Sanabria now has 15 firsts to his credit and trails Tommy Osment, the leader, by only six wins. . . . Osment has been the busiest rider at the track, having had 109 mounts. . . . Sanabria has had 78.

Carl Daigrepont, who began the meeting with five wins in the first two nights, is third with 12, while Wayne Stevens has 10 to his credit. . . . With the largest jockey colony in the history of the track, only 10 riders have seven or more victories to their credit.

The first 10:

	Mts.	W.	P.	S.
Osment	109	21	15	17
Sanabria	78	15	10	11
Daigrepont	84	12	17	10
Stevens	61	10	6	4

Competition.

COMPETITION is bobbing up for Tom Pruett and Don Kerrone in the race for trainer honors. . . . Each of the two leaders has saddled nine firsts. . . . Latest to get into the race are E. G. Mahoney and E. B. Shipp. . . . Mahoney is tied for third with Fred Roenigke, with seven, while Shipp, after a late start, has six firsts to his credit, the same as owned by L. Forsyth. . . .

Mahoney handles a public stable without handicap stars. . . . Thus his horses have earned only $8000 for their owners. . . . Top prize won by any of his winners is $850, which means the equines have competed in events with a $1200 value. . . . Wild Peter has scored two wins for Mahoney, while Sooner Time, Florida Belle, Call Willie, Sir Dakota and Opening Day have each been in the winner's circle on one occasion. . . . Wild Peter, $1700, is the top winner. . . .

Four horses have given Shipp, a regular visitor at Fairmount some years ago, his six firsts. . . . Seventh Tribe, which took first in last Saturday's feature, has won twice for R. Weckwerth, for $2975 earnings. . . . The other three are in the string of Rita Cue. . . . Papa Charlie has won twice and Scarlet Time and Floral Parade one each. . . . The Cue horses have earned $3820, making a total of $6795 for the quartet. . . .

For the first 24 days of the 60 day and night Fairmount meeting, a total of 126 owners have seen their colors in the winner's circle. . . .

HOOFBEATS: Apparently Fairmount fans want more than five horses to bet on in a race, even though the event is billed as a $2500 handicap. . . . That was shown Saturday night, when only $37,685 was wagered on the feature, making the handle smaller than in each of the fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth races. . . . The other races each had eight or more entrants. . . . The Saturday night total was $361,907. . . .

Among the horses that have won for two owners are Ritas Flyer for the Tripletts and B. Fanning and Beeston, which has landed the long end of the purse for W. E. Waldron and F. V. Smith. . . . Two jockeys which rode here earlier are now at Thistledown. . . . They are Ralph Borgemenke and Eddie Plesa. . . . Borgemenke departed while under suspension and did not return. . . .

According to the latest word, construction work is about to begin on the clubhouse at the new Cahokia Downs track. . . . This will be a three-level affair. . . . The entire second floor will be devoted to the dining room which will have boxes the full length from which fans will be able to view the races. . . . According to officials, the second floor will be air-conditioned. . . . The third floor will accommodate some 3000 fans and will have mutuel windows for the bettors' convenience. . . . The grand stand and clubhouse at the new course will cover practically the entire stretch of the three-quarter mile oval.

LATE SATURDAY RESULTS.
Seventh race: Seventh Tribe ($6.80) won; Lucky Lable, second; Harry Lou, third.
Eighth: Big Hope ($16.60) won; Merry Minx, second; Brezno, third.
Ninth: Gay Gallant ($44.20) won; Coquinet, second; Rosean Ritz, third.
Attendance 10,075; Mutuel handle $361,907.

Richardson Is Trounced By 6-0, 6-2

By Harold Flachsbart

Dick Savitt, who has all the equipment to be one of the world's greatest tennis players, had two more trophies today in his collection at his Houston (Tex.) home, but he keeps insisting that he is not a Davis Cup candidate.

The tennis railbirds say it's a matter of temperament with Savitt, who won the Wimbledon and Australian titles in 1951. Dick was the No. 4 player in the nation as recently as '52, then quit playing the major tournaments in 1953.

Savitt lost his temper only one or two times in the final day's play of the Triple A invitational tournament yesterday as he smothered Ham Richardson, Tulane student who has been a member of the last two Davis Cup squads, 6-0, 6-2, in the title matches.

Savitt Ever Pressing.

Then the Texas oil man, a 27-year-old stroker who makes few mistakes with an ever-pressing, forceful tennis game, teamed with Frank Thompson of St. Louis to defeat Richardson and St. Louis's Benny Bishop, on leave from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, 6-2, 7-5, in the doubles final.

Richardson, sixth ranking player in the nation, was close in some of his attempted passing shots but was no match for Savitt, who kept pressing constantly and never gave the collegian a chance for a second breath.

Savitt won't lose many matches with that June 6 form. He powdered the ball, constantly moved up for vicious drives and matched Richardson at the best part of Ham's game, his backhand.

Sally Rielley Loses.

Women's honors went to Mrs. Lucile Davidson of Kansas City, the top-ranking player in the Missouri Valley. She defeated Sally Rielley of Kansas City, 6-2, 6-3, tenth-ranking junior player in the nation.

Mrs. Davidson was upset by Bev Tolan, 16-year-old Maplewood High student, in the recent Washington University tourney, but in this one Mrs. Davidson was the boss girl. She and Miss Rielley were defeated in the women's doubles final by Sara Turber and Louise Owens of Evansville, Ind., 6-2, 7-5.

Mangrum Defeats Kroll in Play-Off for Western Title

CINCINNATI, June 7 (AP)—Tournament-wise Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., finally made the winner's circle in a 1954 golf tournament here yesterday but he had to go overtime to do it.

Mangrum, turning in a blazing finish of 66, five under par, took down the $2400 top prize in the Western Open Golf Tournament by nosing out Ted Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Mangrum, a former National Open champion and winner of the Western Open two years ago, hadn't won a tournament this year and then he did it the hard way.

He came from four strokes behind on the last round to overtake and pass Roberto de Vicenzo of Buenos Aires, Argentina; Bob Rosburg of San Francisco and Chicago, and Jackie Burke of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y. His 66 gave him a 277 total and a tie with Kroll who had headed Mangrum by a stroke going into the final round.

Because many of the Western Open competitors are entered in the National Open qualifier here today at the Cincinnati Country Club, it was decided the playoff would be a sudden-death affair.

Kroll sliced his drive into the rough at the right on the first extra hole and took a par four. Mangrum, right down the middle, laid his second shot eight feet from the pin and dropped the putt for a birdie and the top money.

De Vicenzo, the darling of the galleries, stayed even with par with a 71 for 278 and the third money of $1400. Kroll picked up a check for $1800.

A crowd estimated at 9000 was packed around the eighteenth green when Kroll came in to tie Mangrum. Kroll, playing in the last threesome, birdied the par four seventeenth to move into the tie with Mangrum. He dropped a 15-foot putt on that hole for his birdie.

The prize blowup was that of Rosburg. The young 23-year-old pro went into the final round tied with De Vicenzo and two strokes ahead of the field. He shot 77, six over par, for 284, even par for 72 holes. It made his check only $320.

Midget Team's 47-Game Win Streak Broken

Missouri Roofing, a Khoury midget division team which had won 47 straight games over two seasons, finally was beaten yesterday. Waterson Blue Sox stopped M.R., 10-3, in a S.A.Y. League game at Marquette Park.

Harry Ohlendorf pitched a six-hitter for the victors and teammate Leroy Buback helped out with a grand slam home run in the third inning.

The teams are now tied for first place with 4-1 records.

Right-hander Duane Harbin of the H. A. Dailey club in the St. Louis Intermediate League pitched a no-hitter against the Brats A.C., winning 21-0. He fanned eight, walked seven.

Waterson remained one game ahead of Yellow Cab in the U. City Senior League by beating Wellston First National, 6-4, while Yellow Cab was defeating St. Ann, 11-0.

There were two juvenile no-hitters. Lefty George Clement of Brentwood Kiwanis hurled one against Rotary, 15-0, walking one and striking out nine. In the Haven Club loop, Ronnie Zatcher of J. C. Roberts pitched hitless ball to beat Automatic, 17-0. He fanned 12.

Hogan Will Have to Get Down Into 50s To Win in Tourney

Bantam Ben will shoot his round for national golf day—in which the duffers of the country match their handicap scores against his—at Baltusrol on Saturday and he'll have his work cut out for him.

Unless he can get down in the 50's—and even Ben can't do that—Molly Reilly of Soonoma, Calif., has him beat. Molly shot a 130-74—56 last Saturday in the annual day, sponsored jointly by the P.G.A. and Life Magazine.

Vice President Nixon had a 94-22—72; 5-year-old Frankie Dye of San Francisco had a 137-69—68 and Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado had a 73-2—71.

The best gross score reported among the estimated 125,000 golfers who took part was a 62-1—61, turned in by Charles Dudley, Southern amateur champion, at the Greenville (N.C.) Country Club.

Oh the Score!

DUBLIN, Ga., June 7 (AP)—Sandersville and Dublin of the Class D Georgia State League staged a scoring orgy yesterday to satisfy the most run-minded baseball fan. Dublin won 34-17.

Biggest inning for the winners was the fifth when they piled up 10 tallies. They scored eight in the second and seven in the third.

Dublin had 29 hits and made five errors. Sandersville made seven fielding miscues and collected 13 hits.

Ed Furgol Leads Open Qualifying With a Par 72

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, June 7 — Ed Furgol, Westwood, and Eddie Held, Hel golf tee, led the field in the U.S. Open Qualifying round here today after 27 holes. Held had a 35 on the third nine, Furgol 37.

By Robert Morrison

WESTWOOD COUNTRY CLUB, June 7—Ed Furgol of Westwood shot a par 72 to lead after the first of two 18-hole rounds today in the National Open qualifying trial. He shot a 37 going out and a 35 on the back nine.

Four golfers turned in 73s for the first round: Virgil Bernsen, Triple A; Ted Neist and Bob Solomon, both of St. Louis Country Club, and Gene Webb, Lakeside. All except Bernsen are pros.

Going out, Furgol had a bogey on No. 8, on which a light rain caught him. He missed a putt of about six inches, the shortest he ever missed in his life, he said. It was some more of the putting trouble which he has been having the last two weeks and which bothered him in the Colonial Invitation tourney at Dallas.

Coming back, Furgol got birdies on the thirteenth and fourteenth holes. On the thirteenth he had to make a putt of two feet to make the birdie. On the fourteenth he reached the green in two and took two to get down.

On the fifteenth, Furgol bogeyed his second time in the round. He missed the green with his approach shot, and took a bogey 5.

He had 36 putts for the round, which is more than he needs when he is in his best form.

Of a field of 30 originally scheduled to compete, 21 started and two of these later withdrew.

The National Open will be played June 17-19 at Baltusrol, Springfield, N. J.

Houston Ties For Fourth in Texas League

HOUSTON, Tex., June 7 (UP)—The red hot Houston Buffs, with flames still licking about them, have leaped from the cellar to a tie for fourth place in the Texas League pennant race.

Winning the ninth of their past 10 games, a 6 to 0 victory over Dallas yesterday, the Buffs jumped into a tie with Shreveport, five and a half games from the top. The loss sent the Eagles, 1953 Dixie series champions, to the bottom of the standings.

Pace-setting San Antonio dropped a tight 7 to 5 decision to Fort Worth in 12 innings and Shreveport breezed past Tulsa, 4 to 1. Oklahoma City split a double-header with Beaumont, the Exporters taking the opener, 9 to 5, and the Indians the nightcap, 5 to 2.

Veteran Hugh Sooter turned the trick for Houston, holding Dallas to eight hits. Pat Scantlebury, who yielded only seven hits, matched Sooter until the third when the Buffs combined four hits with a walk to count four runs.

Clift Weaver doubled in two men in the top of the twelfth to send Fort Worth past San Antonio. Caroll Beringer, relieving in the seventh, got his second victory.

A three-run homer by Harry Heslet, his eleventh, gave Shreveport the nod over Tulsa. Arnie Atkins, who got the victory, walked in the Oiler's run.

Dave Hillman allowed Oklahoma City seven hits, one a ninth-inning homer by Earl York, in the first game. Beaumont scored six runs in the fifth inning, chasing starter and loser Ernie Groth.

Meramecs and Kutis Win in Soccer Meet

Next Sunday at 3 o'clock, Kutis and Meramecs play with C.S.M.C. drawing a bye.

Three Teams Remain Unbeaten in Muny Leagues; Kutis North Loses

By Neal Russo

The unbeaten group in Muny senior baseball shrank to three yesterday when the Kelly Shamrocks bounced Kutis North, 8-3, in the North Side I League at Fairground Park.

However, Carondelet Advertisers, Carondelet Sunday Morning Club and Cupples—the "Three C's"—all extended their perfect records.

Another perfect mark was extended by John Walsh, left-handed ace for Borbein-Youngs in North Side II. Yielding only two hits, both singles by Bill Malon, the Trojans' pint-sized hurler, Walsh pitched six shutout innings, then left the game because of a chest cold. His team was far in front by then, winning 22-4 with an 11-run rally in the ninth.

In 34 innings of Muny ball, Walsh has given up no runs, only seven hits. He struck out 12 yesterday.

Manager Rudy Peterson's Advertisers ran their record to 6-0 by beating Hoffmeisters, defending Muny champions, for the second time in the Heine Meine League. Three runs in the ninth gave the Advertisers a 9-7 triumph. Hoffmeisters now have a 2-3 record. In a morning contest, the Advertisers squeaked past McNearys, 5-4.

Manager Monte Gummels and Coach Mark Christman, the ex-Brownie, had their headaches at Carondelet Park where their Sunday Morning Club made it four straight, beating Boys Club, 12-8. Each team drew 10 bases on balls. Vic Struharik starred in relief of Stan Turek, a wild lefty, for Carondelet and Gene Moore helped with three hits. Time limit reduced the game to six innings.

In the Harold H. Hummel circuit at Sherman Park, Cupples made its record 3-0 with an easy 9-3 victory over Craig Two. The losers' ace hurler, Dick Bogdan, has been out with an appendicitis attack.

In North Side II, Ron Schuttenberg kept the Polish Falcons in a first-place tie with Borbeins (5-1 records) with a 13-0 victory over the Meteors. Schuttenberg got his shutout the hard way as he yielded eight hits, walked six, stranded 12 runners and fanned 13. He had three hits himself. Cal Brittan whacked two doubles, a triple and a single for Borbeins.

To move into a tie with Kutis for the North Side I lead (4-1 records), Kellys struck early, taking a 5-0 lead the first two innings with the help of some wind-blown hits. Pitcher Elmer Sexauer checked slugging Kutis which had routed Kellys, 14-4, earlier. Vernon Stout had two doubles and two singles in four times up for Kutis, and Ken Dickhens slammed a homer for Kellys.

Craig One piled up seven runs in the ninth to flatten Union Printers, 15-6, as Boots Llewellyn led the way with four hits. Ray Henderson hit a long homer for Craigs and Pitcher Charley Cepicky got one for the Printers.

Jim Kovarik for the Advertisers and Bob Boehlow for Hoffmeisters went the distance. Four walks and a steal of home helped the Advertisers to a 5-0 first-inning lead but Hoffmeisters finally pulled ahead, 6-5 and 7-6. Then came the three-run ninth for the Advertisers.

Colavito Hits 20th Homer; Indianapolis Beats Redbirds Twice

INDIANAPOLIS, June 7 (INS)—The league-leading Indianapolis Indians continued to make it a runaway race in the American Association by turning back the Columbus Redbirds twice, 9 to 7, and 4 to 2.

Rocco Colavito hit his twentieth homer of the year for the Indians in the fourth inning of the nightcap with credit for the game going to Herb Score who scattered four hits. Billy Joe Davidson won the first game for Indianapolis, his sixth victory of the season.

In the only single game of the day, Charleston scored one run in the ninth to edge Kansas City, 3 to 2, and move into seventh place. Dick Fowler was the winning pitcher.

The Minneapolis Millers moved into second place by winning a doubleheader from the Louisville Colonels, 2 to 1, and 8 to 4. The twin defeats dropped the Colonels into a third-place tie with the St. Paul Saints who scored a double victory over the Toledo Sox. The Sox were dropped into last place. The Saints won the first game, 5 to 4, with the aid of home runs by Bert Hamric, Don Zimmer and Ted Bartz. Then the Saints pounded Toledo's Murray Wall for nine hits and a 4-to-0 victory in the second game.

Black's Two-Hitter Wins for Montreal

TORONTO, June 7 (UP) — Toronto clung to a slim lead in the International League today but Rochester appeared ready to move into first place the moment the Maple Leafs falter.

Both Toronto and Rochester swept doubleheaders yesterday and the results kept the Maple Leafs 19 percentage points ahead of the Red Wings although the two teams were tied in games.

Joe Black pitched a two-hitter for Montreal to beat Havana, 4-1 in the second game of a double-header after little Emilio Cueche had out-dueled Eddie Roebuck to capture the opener for Havana, 2-1.

Archie Wilson's three-run homer helped Toronto to a 7-4 decision over Syracuse in the opener while Rudy Minarcin outpitched Duke Markell to give the Leafs a four-hit 5-1 triumph in the nightcap.

Niles Jordan was credited with Rochester's 4-3 first game victory over Buffalo. Bill Connelly, who relieved Harry Hoitsma in the fifth inning of the second bame, was the winner for the Wings in the 4-2 final.

Home runs by Marv Rackely and Joe Lutz aided Richmond to a 9-8 victory over Ottawa in the first of two games but Ottawa pounded four Richmond hurlers for 13 hits to take the nightcap, 15-10.

Stevenson Winner in 100-Mile Auto Race

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 7 (UP) — Former Milwaukeean Chuck Stevenson's 97.5 mile per hour speed won him $25,550 first place money and set a new record at the 100-mile A.A.A. national championship big car race here yesterday.

Bill Vukovich, twice winner of the Indianapolis classic, had qualified at 35.720 seconds or 100.7 miles per hour to win pole position in the race. Vukovich was forced out in the seventy-seventh lap because of steering trouble.

Patty Berg Is Plus 73 to Win In Round Robin

HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 7 (UP)—Patty Berg, the dean of women's golf, made the last round her best in the Triangle Round-Robin tournament as she shot a two-under-par 72 to win the $1500 first money with a plus score of 73 points.

Miss Berg, the pudgy St. Andrews, Ill., star who has been playing top-notch golf since 1935, finished 51 points ahead of her nearest rival as the 90-hole grind ended yesterday. Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., won second place and $1000 with plus 23 points.

Betty Dodd of San Antonio, Tex., was third with plus 19, followed by Betsy Rawls of Spartansburg, S. C., with plus 18. Betty Hicks of Durham, N. C., finished fifth with plus eight. Betty Mackinon of Dallas, Tex., had plus seven and Babe Zaharias of Tampa, Fla., was seventh with plus six.

Miss Berg picked up 22 points in the final round at the expense of Mrs. Zaharias, Louise Suggs of Atlanta, Ga., and Jackie Pung of Honolulu. Mrs. Zaharias was second after Saturday's round but soared to an 83 for the final 18 while Miss Berg tamed the 6400-yard cascade course.

Miss Berg is noted for grabing the lead in the opening round and holding it until they pass out the prizes. That's what happened in the "plus and minus" triangle. Patty was in front all the way and posted the best medal score, a 372 that was two strokes over women's par — a good showing because several rounds were played in cold, windy weather.

Marlene Bauer of Sarasota, Fla., plus four; Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., plus three; and Alice Bauer Hagge of Sarasota, Fla., plus two, rounded out the top 10 finishers.

Betty Jameson, San Antonio, Tex., plus 23, $1000.
Betty Dodd, San Antonio, plus 19, $750.
Betty Hicks, Durham, N.C., plus eight, $500.
Betty MacKinnon, Dallas, plus seven, $450.
Mildred Zaharias, Tampa, Fla., plus six, $400.
Marlene Bauer, Sarasota, Fla., plus four, $350.
Beverly Hanson, Indio, Calif., plus three, $325.
Alice Bauer Hagge, Sarasota, Fla., plus two, $3000.

Neri No. 1 Is Victor; Triple Play by No. 2

St. Philip Neri One still shared first place with St. Engelbert in the C.Y.C. Bishop Cody senior baseball league, but the club isn't likely to forget its Sunday scare by St. Philip Two.

Because so much talent, including many returned servicemen, was available, the St. Philip parish entered two teams, with the No. 2 squad consisting of the younger players.

No. 2 pulled a triple play and battled No. 1 all the way before losing, 4-3.

With Earl Meyer on third, Leo Sobaczak on second and Don Schmidt on first in the second inning, Pitcher Bill Kennedy of No. 1 bounced to rival Pitcher Dick Reiter whose throw to Catcher Ray Bauer forcer Meyer at home. Bauer relayed to First Baseman Tom Bell, getting Kennedy, and Bell's return throw to Bauer caught Sobaczak trying to get home from second base.

Bobby Kehoe starred in relief for No. 1 and started an important double play by spearing a hot smash near the mound. St. Philip No. 1 meets St. Engelbert for the lead next Sunday. Both are 3-0.

In the Bishop Winkelmann loop, St. George (4-0) routed St. Margaret, 14-4, Lou Hoerner, Al Wendel and John Jung getting three hits apiece for the winners. Nick Rallo of St. John hurled a five-inning 14-0 no-hitter against St. Luke.

After Resurrection topped St. Raphael, 10-9, and St. Pius beat Our Lady of Sorrows, 6-2, the well-balanced Cardinal Glennon league shaped up this way: Resurrection 2-1, O.L.S. 2-2 St. Raphael 2-2, St. Pius 2-3.

MIXED STOCK PICTURE AFTER FIRM PERIOD

Price Changes Held to Point or Less — Lighter Trade Volume for Day.

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—The stock market closed mixed today in a quiet session that started a little higher.

Price changes were held to a point or less in most instances in either direction.

The market was 27 issues broader than Friday at 1174 issues. There were 505 lower at close, 359 higher, 310 unchanged. There were 60 new 1954 highs and 7 new lows.

(The United Press said that "traders moved cautiously despite a sizable list of favorable market items headed by approval of the Senate Finance Committee of the easing of double taxation on dividends. The market had been hit on Friday when this was in doubt. Steel operations made their best showing since February and this helped strengthen the steel issues.")

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed .33 of a point higher at 327.96; 20 rails .17 lower at 110.07, and 15 utilities .08 lower at 58.08.)

The pace of trading was slow both during the early rise and the later fall. Business aggregate 1,520,000 shares, one of the slower days this year.

Steels and aircrafts were among the best of the major groups early in the day, but they backed down to a mixed position as the remainder of the market receded gradually.

Decision of the Supreme Court that sales of natural gas by Phillips Petroleum to interstate pipe line companies is subject to federal regulation brought on some selling.

Phillips and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line were down between 1 and 2 points shortly after the decision was made public.

An increase in estimated steel operations to 73 per cent from 70.2 per cent last week brought no appreciable change in the position of the steel stocks.

Textron gained and American Woolen lost on the report that Textron now owns about 45 per cent of the common stock of American Woolen.

Stocks retreating included Republic Steel, General Motors, Douglas Aircraft, Commonwealth Edison, Union Carbide, International Paper, and Southern Railway.

Higher were Burlington Mills, United Fruit, Penn-Texas Corp., Canadian Pacific, American Telephone, Goodyear, and United Aircraft.

Distillers Corp. was lower after the company reported profits for the quarter ended April 30 equal to 48 cents a share as against 75 cents a year ago.

United Fruit displayed improvement on the news that it had reached an agreement with Costa Rica on a new contract. Derby Oil was active and higher after starting on 1800 shares, up 1¾ at 21. Diamond "T" Motor Car opened on 1500 shares, up ⅝ at 15⅝.

Business World

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP)—The nation's steel industry has scheduled operations this week at 73 per cent of rated capacity, the highest level since February, the American Iron & Steel Institute said. The schedule calls for production of 1,740,000 net tons of steel and ingots for castings. Actual output last week amounted to 1,674,000 tons, which was 70.2 per cent of capacity.

* * *

Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Ltd., reported profits for three months ended April 30 declined to $4,203,098 equal to 48 cents a common share, compared with $6,532,658 or 75 cents a share in the same quarter a year ago.

* * *

Butler Brothers reported sales of $45,655,900 for the first five months of this year, a decline of 2.8 per cent from the $46,985,071 in the like period last year. Sales in May amounted to $8,496,034, down 4.4 per cent from sales of $8,890,688 in May 1953.

* * *

The Interstate Commerce Commission authorized Pennsylvania Railroad Co. to amend its lease contracts with 18 smaller affiliated lines so as to save about $1,900,000 a year in federal income taxes. Pennsylvania owns or controls the smaller companies through stock holdings. It proposes the simplify the operating relationship by discontinuing those portions of Pennsylvania's rental payments which would be returned to it by the affiliated companies as dividends, thus balancing off the books without actually exchanging cash. The change will not affect dividend payments by the affiliates to stockholders other than the Pennsylvania.

GRAINS CLOSE DOWN ON CHICAGO BOARD

WINNIPEG, June 7 (AP)—The Canadian wheat board Monday slashed the price of export wheat, both on international wheat agreement and other sales, by 10¼ cents a bushel on the three top grades. Price changes on other grades varied.

CHICAGO, June 7 (AP)—Grains had a slightly easier trend on the Board of Trade today with wheat off most. Lard was quite weak.

Prices slipped early, rallied around midday and then backed down again toward the close. Dealing never became very active. Wheat was subjected to a little hedging pressure as harvesting of the new crop expanded.

Lard's weakness was tied in with a drop in loose lard prices, reflecting fairly large arrivals of hogs at livestock markets.

Pro Bill Jones Is Public Links Victor With 68

An unattached professional, Bill Jones, came through with a two-under-par 68 to win the top $50 prize in the fifth annual St. Louis Public Links Open golf championship yesterday over Forest Park's 18-hole course. Jones, a pressure inspector for a gas company, has been playing golf for 20 years and his previous tourney victory came in the Centralia (Ill.) Open four years ago.

Jones played fairly steady golf to win the St. Louis tourney, in which nine of the field of 78 withdrew by the time they reached the score board near No. 18 green. Jones had two 12-foot putts and one 10-footer among the 23 he took for the round.

Second place went to Cecil Fryman, also an unattached pro, who had an even par 70 to receive $40. The 1953 titleholder, Ted Rhodes of Chicago, was next in line in the pro division with a 74 to earn $30. Don Clarkson of Glen Echo and Frank Moore of Southmoor tied for fourth place with 75s and were given $15 each.

Joe Evans of Forest Park was No. 1 among the amateurs with a 70. He received a $50 merchandise certificate. Other top amateurs were Glen Hagen, Forest Park, 72; Harry LeBeau of Indian Meadows, Are Jennemann of Indian Meadows and Frank Bredall of Crystal Lake, 74 each.

Cards of the three low players:

OUT, par	— —	433	553	445—36
W. Jones	— —	533	453	446—36
Evans	— —	433	544	426—35

Evans	— —	354	444	335—35—70
Fryman	— —	353	554	434—36—70

Fryman, playing in the Rhodes foursome, holed out a 115-yard approach shot on No. 7 for an eagle two and then one of his playing mates, Evans, tallied a deuce on No. 8 for another eagle. Clarence O'Hare, tourney chairman, and Bill Mathews of Creve Coeur registered an eagle each on No. 15.

H. E. Hanbaum of Alton was the only golfer in the field to obtain a birdie three on No. 1. Lu Saffa of St. Ann scored the only birdie two on No. 3. Two golfers, Walter Calvey, last year's amateur winner, and Jack Sommers were the only birdie shooters on No. 18.

Jones received a leg on the Slattery-Switzer Trophy.

Protest by Quincy Club Is Disallowed

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., June 7 (AP)—Hal Totten, president of the Three-I League, yesterday denied a protest by Quincy in its fog-shrouded loss at Keokuk May 16.

The game had been halted by fog in the ninth inning after Quincy had taken a 3-2 lead and had the bases full.

Totten originally ordered the game suspended pending an opinion on an interpretation of the rules. He later said the game should be terminated at the end of the eighth inning, giving Keokuk a 2-1 victory.

Quincy based its protest on whether the umpire-in-chief waited the required 30 minutes before calling the game. Totten said his study of events showed the umpire had waited long enough.

Texts of Monitored Calls Read Into Record

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP). Here are the texts of telephone calls monitored by the Army and read into the record today at the McCarthy-Army hearings:

(John R. Lucas Jr., appointment clerk to Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens; Mrs. Jane R. Pike, Stevens's secretary, and Theodore R. Rhode, aid in Stevens's office, took shorthand notes and transcribed them, testifying as to their authenticity under oath.)

(Text of a call monitored by Rhode Feb. 20, 1954, at 9:55 a.m., from Stevens to Senator John L. McClellan (Dem.), Arkansas, a member of the subcommittee):

Stevens: I appreciated your time yesterday afternoon and I will tell you why I called this morning. When I found out what Senator McCarthy's address was, which I didn't find out until this morning—it happened to be the Ten Eyck hotel in Albany—I telephoned him a few minutes ago, because I thought it was the fair and proper thing, that I should tell him that I had been up on the Hill and talked with you and other members of the committee yesterday afternoon and just what I said, and, of course, Senator McCarthy didn't like that at all and he hopped on me pretty hard, and I told him I was not going to let Gen. Zwicker appear at that public hearing up there on Tuesday morning; maybe eventually we would have to produce him, but I was not going to let him go through again what he had gone through before.

McClellan: I wonder if he denied that statement?

(Rhode testified he "presumed" the reference was to a statement of Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker, commanding officer at Camp Kilmer, N.J.)

Stevens: I have understood, John—I don't know whether this would tie in with your information—that it has all been stricken from the record.

Stevens: I think you are going to find that out, but I have a statement on my desk this morning from Gen. Zwicker, which covers all those statements and, as I told you, I think his captain, a medical man, was with him and I can produce him.

McClellan: I tell you what we will do; we will find out the name of the reporter that took that and I will call him for an accurate transcript of what happened and what was stricken.

Stevens: I think that is very important.

McClellan: I don't know the name of the reporter, but I will find out who and I will call on him for an accurate transcript.

Stevens: Now, the Senator was—maybe to use the word 'abusive' would be a little strong—he was very rough with me on the telephone and he said, 'you mean, you are going to continue to cover up Communists and not let these officers appear?' And I said, 'You know, Joe, I wouldn't cover up a Communist any more than you would.' I am interested in preserving the morale of our professional officer corps and I feel that is a duty I took on under my oath of office. He asked me if I would accept a subpena for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and I said, 'I will take that under advisement.' He said, 'Are you refusing the subpena?' I said, I am not refusing it, I am not accepting it. I will take it under advisement.' Then he hung up the phone. He wouldn't go beyond that. He really batted me pretty hard and said I would learn that you couldn't operate that way, or something of that kind. As it stands now, John, he says that I am subpenaed for 10 o'clock Tuesday morning and, as I say, I have taken it under advisement. I want to talk to not only my counsel, but also various members of the committee to see what the best thing to do now is.

McClellan: I thought you were going to request appearance?

Stevens: I was in due time. I don't even know what committee it is. I presume it is the subcommittee, although he didn't say so. I am perfectly willing and delighted to appear before the committee, whatever is the appropriate time. I want to satisfy myself that Tuesday morning is theappropriate time.

McClellan: I would let it rest for the moment. You don't have the subpena?

Stevens: I don't have it now.

McClellan: If you get one that is all right. To get ahead of the thing now, I would announce to the press that I portunity to request the opportunityto appear.

Stevens: I think that is a good suggestion.

McClellan: Talk to your attorney about it. Say you are requesting to appear or the opportunity to appear.

Stevens: I think there is a lot of merit to that.

McClellan: Beat him to the punch. Talk to your counsel about that. Just announce that you definitely have requested the opportunity to appear.

Stevens: I think that has got a lot of medit.

McClellan: Just beat him to the punch.

(Feb. 21, 5 p.m., Stevens to McClellan, monitored by Mrs. Pike):

Stevens: Wanted to bring you up to date. You saw the publicity. I thought it was time to make a statement and tied to my name. I am issuing this afternoon a short statement telling the people I have told Zwicker not to appear and why. I go on to say if the permanent subcommittee calls upon me to appear before it, I will be glad to do so. Thus far I have not received it; I will be glad to do so. Thus far I have not received any formal notification, which is a fact. Only thing I know is that McCarthy as he hung up on the phone said—you can consider yourself supenaed—and before I could ask where (he was in New York) he hung up. So I consider I have no formal notification. Put it in the public statement that I am not seeking or asking committee to appear, but if they desire me to appear I will be only too glad to comply. On basis of some stuff in paper did not want it to appear I was asking to be heard. . . . I am willing to be heard if called mut I certainly appreciate the way you and Stu (Symington of Missouri) and Senator Jackson (of Washington) have viewed this thing and the last thing I want to do is to muddy the waters like volunteering to appear when you gentlemen might have an idea of having this hearing deferred.

"This will make unmistakably clear to everyone in the paper tomorrow morning that I am not asking to be heard but am available and willing to come at any time committee asks me to. Imagine this release which is getting into the hands of the press about now will bring forth some comment from Senator McCarthy, but just what that will be remains to be seen. One point I make in the release is that I say—(read portions of release about thus far not been called, if called. . . .)"

And then he read portions of release, "but thus far not being called, and if called," quoting from the press statement.

Because of the importance of this subject, hearing be open to press . . . think it a matter of great importance and should be made public. . . .

(The second call from Stevens to McClellan at 5 p.m., Feb. 21 was monitored by Mrs. Pike. That call quoted Stevens as saying he was issuing a short statement "telling the people I have told Zwicker not to appear and why." Stevens expressed appreciation for the way Democrats McClellan, Symington and Jackson "have viewed this thing." Stevens said the last thing he wanted to do was "muddy the waters like volunteering to appear" before the committee "when you gentlemen might have an idea of having this hearing deferred." Stevens said "Mundt was highly distressed . . . but non-committal."

(The third call from McClellan to Stevens at 3:05 p.m., March 1, was monitored by Lucas. McClellan referred to a meeting Stevens had held with Republican members of the subcommittee and told Stevens: "I never was so surprised when you got off over there in that gang without anybody with you." That was a meeting at which a memorandum of understanding was agreed to and was interpreted by some as a Stevens surrender to McCarthy on the Zwicker matter. McClellan told Stevens the Democratic members were left out and "I just had to take the position it was a Republican quarrel.

(Questioning Lucas about the subject matter of the call, McClellan said the purpose was to discuss an ROTC unit for a college in Arkansas. Lucas said he recalled McClellan had called on that and Stevens brought up the subject of the McCarthy-Zwicker matter.)

(Three telephone calls between McCarthy and Stevens then were read into the record.

(In the first one, McCarthy called Stevens Nov. 7, 1953 with Lucas monitoring. McCarthy was quoted as telling Stevens: "For God's sake, don't put Dave (Schine) in service and assign him back to my committee." As one reason McCarthy was quoted as telling Stevens, "The left-wingers . . . don't like this cooperation between the committee and the Army" and so far "they have not been able to beat your (Stevens') brains out."

(McCarthy told Stevens that "he (Cohn) thinks Dave should be a general and work from the penthouse of the Waldorf." Stevens told McCarthy that was "where my problem has come from, right from the start," that McCarthy hadn't done anything with regard to Schine "other than take a friendly interest."

(McCarthy told Stevens if Schine were put "into service to work with the committee all 'the devil' would break loose, and the President would be calling you not to play favorites because anyone is on a committee . . ."

(The next call, McCarthy returned one from Stevens at 2:43 p.m., Jan. 14, 1954, and the conversation dealt with plans for an afternoon meeting to "have refreshments together."

STEVENS, SCHINE TELEPHONE TEXT

WASHINGTON, June 7 (AP). Following is the text of an Oct. 21, 1953 telephone conversation between Secretary of the Army Robert T. B. Stevens and G. David Schine;

SCHINE: I am sorry I missed you yesterday.

Stevens: I thought you were coming down.

Schine: I was all set to go and the pilot told me at the last minute that the fog wouldn't permit the plane to take off.

Stevens: In New York?

Schine: Yes. They told me a fog sets in over Governors Island practically every day, and sometimes it clears, and sometimes it doesn't.

Stevens: While it was a little hazy in Monmouth, it was perfectly all right for the flight. I would rather have talked with you in person than to have called you on the phone, but since I didn't get you in person, and I am about to leave on a quick trip to California, I wanted to call you and tell you I have reviewed this whole situation with Mr. Wilson and it adds up to this: Neither he nor I can see an appropriate way to avoid the basic training. We feel that is almost a must, in the situation as it now stands, and after going over the situation three times now, in so far as you are concerned, it is Mr. Wilson's and my conviction that that is the wise thing to do, Dave, and that having done that, then I think there is an excellent chance that we can pick you up and use you in a way that would be useful to the country and to yourself. Just what that would be I don't know. I can't define it now because I haven't gotten to that point, but there is something on my mind and one that I would make every effort to carry out. I personally would like to arrange it in such a way that you would come into this Army or military establishment in such a way that you could use the knowledge and ability you have in certain fields. But I won't discuss it over the phone. But that is the net of it. I had a good visit with Mr. Wilson. We discussed it at considerable length, and we both felt that it would be a big mistake to attempt in any way to do anything until you had taken the basic training. Then we feel our hands are free to make some kind of a plan that would work out satisfactorily for you and for the Government and for everybody.

Schine: I am certainly happy to know you have talked it over with Mr. Wilson, and that you are both thinking about it.

Stevens: We are.

Schine: Now you are going to California?

Stevens: I will be back here on Monday.

Schine: Where are you going to in California?

Stevens: I will be all over the place. I am going first to talk to the National Guard Association in San Diego, tomorrow morning, and then I am going probably to San Francisco tomorrow afternoon. I would put it this way: If you would like to get hold of me, if you call this office they will be able to tell you just how to do it.

Schine: Probably Col. Belieu?

Stevens: Col. Belieu will be here, and he will know exactly how to get hold of me, and I will be delighted to hear from you at any time.

Schine: You are not going to Los Angeles?

Stevens: No, I am going to San Diego and I am going to overflight Los Angeles.

Schine: I hope you will have a nice trip and we will probably have to talk this over at greater length some time.

Stevens: If you come down, I will be delighted to see you.

Schine: Probably the hearings will be shaping up in such a way that you will want to sit in on some of them.

Stevens: Possibly so. I will either come up there or if you are down here we will talk it over further.

Schine: I will maybe talk to you when you get back from the West.

JOE MUST GO CLUB FAILS IN DRIVE FOR RECALL PETITIONS

SAUK CITY, Wis., June 7 (AP)—The Joe Must Go Club announced today it failed to obtain enough signatures on petitions to recall Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin.

The club issued a statement signed by its officers declaring the drive to secure signatures, which ended at midnight Saturday, did not reach the 403,904 signatures required by law. The club did not report on the number of signatures it did obtain.

Officers of the club, who last week indicated they felt the movement would not succeed, repeated they would not give up their efforts to unseat McCarthy and would investigate and study the possibility of a future recall movement, possibly after the November election.

The statement said the group felt certain that "the effort produced results which proved beyond doubt that the anti-McCarthy sentiment would see him defeated in an election today, and the effort was so successful as to compel consideration of a future recall campaign."

The statement was signed by Leroy Gore, Sauk City weekly newspaper editor, executive secretary of the club and its founder, and others.

Even if the number of signatures had been sufficient there was no certainty of a recall election.

What's Under the Hood or Behind a Name?
Most people can't see under the hood of a used car, but they can tell what lies behind a dealer's name. As cars have become more complicated, used car buyers have found it's important to buy from a dealer with a reliable reputation. We make our name mean reliability to our customers, and since so many people must buy on the dealer's reputation, we've found this is just plain good business.

'53 MERCURY
Here's a good reason why this model has been called "America's best used car buy." This custom 2-door sports a sleek gray finish with gleaming bright work set off by immaculate interior; long range radio, plus comfort assuring ventilating system and gas-saving overdrive are just a few of the many accessories that will give you untold comfort and convenience. This 10,000-mile beauty is yours for $1995; make sure, COME IN NOW.

Indochinese Have Been Fighting Someone for Last 22 Centuries

They Have Battled Chinese, Spaniards, Frenchmen and One Another — Country Is Rich Prize.

By ALFRED E. PROWITT

CHICAGO, June 7—For 22 centuries, as far back as the records go, the people of Indochina have been fighting somebody. They have fought the Chinese, the French and the Spaniards. When there was a shortage of foreigners to fight, they have fought one another.

Now the Communist Vietminh forces are battling to end all French domination. They are being supported by Red China.

No one really believes that the Chinese Reds now aiding French Indochina's home-grown Reds are acting in a sudden spirit of friendship. Immediate prizes can be the country's rich rice fields, its coffee, tea, rubber, corn, tobacco, sugar cane, spices, lumber, tin, zinc and tungsten. More importantly, the land itself could be used as a springboard for Red leaps into Malaya, Thailand and, eventually, India.

Larger Than France.

French Indochina has an area of 286,000 square miles—a little larger than Texas and about half again the size of France. The population totals 27,000,000, which includes 43,000 French and 600,000 other foreigners.

Most of the natives are Annamites, Mongolian in origin, but from prehistoric times racially mixed with Khmers, Malays, Chinese and other peoples.

The brown-skinned Annamites are small, less robust than neighboring races and walk with a peculiar swagger because of an odd hip conformation and a separation of the big toe from the other toes.

The Annamites claim as their ancestors the ancient tribe of the Giao-Chi, who dwelt along the southern limits of China and in what now is northern Annam, a part of the three-state Vietnam.

The Chinese invaded Annam in force in 214 B.C. and held it for seven centuries. Then, in 968, the Annamites under Dinh Bo lanh succeeded in ousting the Chinese and set up the dynasty of Dinh. The Chinese again overran Annam in 1407, but in 1428 an Annamite general subdued the Chinese and founded a dynasty that lasted until the end of the eighteenth century.

King Overthrown.

The French appeared in the country in 1787. At the time, Nguyen Phua Anh, "king" of Cochin-China, had been overthrown by rebels. Cochin-China was then a principality in Southern Annam; today it is South Vietnam.

French missionary, Pigneau de Behaine, bishop of Adran, saw a chance to make a deal whereby French could extend their influence. The bishop negotiated a treaty between the "king" and the Paris government whereby the French promised military aid in return for privileges. The alliance proved successful and by 1801 Gia-Long, a member of the Nguyen, acquired sway over all of Annam, Cochin-China and Tonkin. Tonkin, then a free state, now is the northernmost division of Vietnam.

The successors of Gia-Long hated the French. Scores of European missionaries were slain along with thousands of Annamites who had embraced the Christian religion.

France and Spain intervened jointly with force of arms in 1858, Spain because some of the missionaries killed were Spanish. After four years of bloodshed, France took over most of Cochin-China as a protestorate in 1862.

French Conquer Tonkin.

In 1873, French forces conquered Tonkin, whose emperor, Tu-Duc, signed a protectorate treaty, but at the same time played a double game by promising "obedience" to China.

Annam was put under French administration in 1886, but Annam united with China in a war against France. The French were victorious and signed treaties with Annam and China which clearly defined the boundaries between French Indochina and China. The Chinese, however, kept up attacks along the frontier. The Annamites, too, began to develop a nationalist movement, and revolts broke out frequently.

Laos, another territory to the west, formerly "Land of the Millions of Elephants," was put under French administration in 1893 when a French explorer claimed it for his country.

Things drifted along, under French administration, until World War II. Then the Japanese evicted the French and instigated the Vietminh revolutionists to seize power. The Vietminh, under Moscow-trained Ho Chi-minh, proclaimed a republic called Vietnam, which included Tonkin, Annam and Cochin-China, with Hanoi as the capital.

The French shoved themselves back into Cochin-China later in 1945. Playing a diplomatic game, they signed an agreement with Ho whereby the independence of Vietnam, for the states of Tonkin and Annam, within the French Union was recognized. The status of Cochin-China was to bedecided by a popular vote there.

But Ho wanted the rice-rich province of Cochin-China. Suddenly, in 1946, the Vietminh opened hostilities against the French and the French-backed local governments. The fighting has been going on ever since.

ITHACA, IN UPPER NEW YORK, ONCE MOVIE MAKING CENTER

The city's film past is recalled in a course on motion picture history taught by Cornell University Prof. Walter H. Stainton. To illustrate his lectures, he uses films shot in Ithaca when the industry was at its height, 1914-20.

CIVIL WAR WIDOW GETS EISENHOWER GREETING

"Please accept my sincere congratulations upon your birthday," the President's message said. "May good health be yours through many more happy years."

NEW AUTOMATIC LIFE BELT

SYDNEY, Australia (UP)—A "self-lifesaver" designed for surfers and rock fishermen caught in treacherous currents, has been designed in Australia.

Dick Charles, president of Sydney's Underwater Spearfishermen's Association, has made a plastic safety belt which can be inflated automatically by a carbon-dioxide cartridge or blown up like a balloon. It weighs only a pound, and carries a packet of blue powder which, when released keeps sharks at a respectful distance.

Television in Review

A Try at Reviving Art of Conversation

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, June 7.

ANY program dedicated to the proposition that conversation is not a lost art faces the possibility of proving that it still is an art. We can't make stained glass any more. And it's just possible we have lost the ability to converse which requires lots of time, a reasonable facility at putting a sentence together on the spur of the moment, a fairly adequate store of knowledge, opinion, and anecdote and a lively curiosity about someone else's knowledge, opinion and anecdote. (I have never known a good conversationalist who was not also a good listener).

JOHN CROSBY

To try and put all that in front of the television cameras is a tall order and I'm happy WNBT, in association with Louis G. Cowan, has made an attempt. I'm not at all sure they've succeeded but, in a program called "Conversation" which goes on WNBT midnight Saturdays, they are making a spirited try.

★ ★ ★

TO FULLY UNDERSTAND the art of conversation one must first fully understand what it is not. What it is not is an argument, a debate, or an harangue. (There are plenty of those on the air now, some of them stimulating, but in any case, not conversation). A good conversation should leave you feeling mellow and fulfilled. There should be disagreement—there has to be—but not quarrels. You should contribute and have been contributed to.

And when it is good conversation, I know of nothing—not movies, not theater, not music, not books, not anything—that is more rewarding.

"CONVERSATION" DOES NOT fulfill all these high-minded goals but it tries. One of the conversation programs brought together a group consisting of Bennett and Phyllis Cerf, Alfred Kazin, Comdr. Edward Whitehead (the bearded Schweppes man), and Ben Grauer, the regular moderator, who brooded aloud about the state of literature, past and present.

Cerf, a great anecdote man, told a few idiosyncrasies of William Faulkner. The Nobel Prize winner, he related, was rather thoroughly ttken apart in a two-part profile in Life and Cerf, somewhat timidly, had asked Faulkner what he thought about the article. Faulkner hadn't bothered to read it. Faulkner, a man after my own heart, also doesn't read his mail. "When you send me a letter," he told Cerf, "I flutter it around and if no check falls out, I don't even read it."

★ ★ ★

THE GROUP PROGRESSED on to deeper thoughts.

"I think one of the great troubles of writers today is that they don't know when to stop. They keep on writing long after they haven't anything to say," from Cerf. And again from Cerf (in answer to query from Kazin as to why foreign correspondents and political writers were taking so much of the play away from fiction-writers), "Novelists can't compete with life any more."

From Kazin, at various points: "It's got a little too easy to create pseudo-literature." "Criticism today is almost unreadable." (Why, Mr. Kazin!) "In the eternal war between author and publisher, I'm always on the side of the writer."

IN THE TWO "Conversation" pieces I heard, one on books and one on popular music, two themes ran through both. Money, it will come as a surprise to nobody, is terribly important to both author and composer. Money has a lot to do with the sort of books he writes, or songs he composes—and no amount of sentimentality or idealism is going to change that. The other thread was a thin note of lament that in the good old days things were different and somehow better.

The popular music discussion verged dangerously close to argument at times between David Broekman, composer, and Mitch Miller, the bearded head of Columbia Records popular music department, and that, of course, should be avoided. On "Conversation," incidentally, the watches are taken from the conversationalists and the red light on the cameras are turned off. The participants never quite know when they're on the air or when they're off and never know even when they're on camera. That's a great idea and maybe one that's applicable to Senatorial hearings.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A PERNICKETY character named Albermarle Purdy, whose home bordered the Mississippi river near Natchez, announced one night that he had a mind to row his boat clear up to Minneapolis. His wife sniffed his breath, tied his boat to the dock, and went to bed without protest. Al got into the boat and rowed his head off all night. Next morning the Missus banged on her dishpan and called out, "Come out of that fool boat now, and eat your breakfast." Al scratched his head and ruminated 'Now ain't this somethin'? Who in thunder knows my name up here in Minneapolis?"

The Dancers

By Stan Delaplane

SEVILLE, Spain.

THE BEST PLACE to stay in Seville is at the Andalucia Palace. A true palace that belonged to Alfonso XIII. But at night you go across the street to see flamenco dancing in the Hotel Maria Cristina's Bodega room.

STAN DELAPLANE

I caught this stamping, castanet dance in the evening. And next afternoon I went down to the rehearsal. The dancing maestro is Enrique Gimenez. "El Cojo," the Lame. A little over five feet. A fat butterball of a man with one short leg.

The pretty Sevillana girls wore white, unpressed rehearsal dresses and were busy stretching each other's legs. They would hang on the bar rail. Two other girls would seize a leg and pull it straight up in the air.

"The Sevillanas have the aristicratic spirit," said El Cojo. "It is manifested in the soul of the city and in the dance. Muy poetico."

★ ★ ★

THE PIANO AND GUITAR started up and a girl named Margarita de Mayo came out and began to dance. The flamenco dance is from the Moors who held Seville for 500 years. It is danced with the flounced, swirling skirt.

"It is my inspiration; Alegria en la calle. Happiness in the street. I listen to the music and I see the dance," said El Cojo.

He got up and began to correct the dancer. He danced with the girl following him. It was absolutely great. All the limp dropped away. You didn't see the unpressed pants or the fat man. Only the light, graceful dance.

IN THE NORTH, they say the people of Seville have three occupations: to dance, fight bulls and go to church.

The city is loaded with churches. Holy Week in Seville is one long procession through the streets. The carved wooden Virgins and Christs are paraded in great floats and followed by members of trade guilds dressed in the pointed hoods and covered faces of penitentes.

The Church treasures are famous. The Virgins are dressed in jewels and robes threaded with gold. The Virgin of the Macarena district—the bullfighters' Virgin—inherits the costumes of the most famous bullfighters. The capes of Manolete and Belmonte and Joselito, still stained with the blood of the kill.

THERE ARE THREE bullfight schools on the outskirts of town. Among them is the school of Sydney Franklin, the bullfighter from Brooklyn. You can go out to the miniature ring and watch the students "run the horns."

The bull horns are mounted on a sort of wheelbarrow. The wheel is a bicycle wheel. One student runs the horns at another who makes the passes or places the banderillas in a wooden block set where the bull's shoulders would be. A bullfighter learns first to be the bull. Then he learns how to fight the bull. Day after day, until he is ready to enter the big arena and he stands alone on the sand before a half a ton of animal bred only to fight.

EL COJO SAID he had been teaching for 18 years. He had taught so many he could not remember them all. All the girls he teaches now are studying to be professionals. They get a little money from the Hotel Maria Cristina where they dance in the evening. It is a tremendous bargain for the hotel because this is really about the only place you can see it in Seville. Oddly enough, there is very little outlet once a girl has learned to dance.

"Then they must get a contract and go away," said El Cojo. "Here in Seville there is no place to dance except for one's self."

The girls in the white rehearsal dresses went on stretching each other's legs as though a whole future depended on it.

A Second Chance for Cinderella

Former Teen-Age Star Lillian Roth Sings a Song of Sobriety in Comeback

By William Glover

NEW YORK, June 7 (AP). IN the jargon of show business, one of the "hottest" items on this year's entertainment scene is an elfin-eyed songstress with a story that beats Cinderella's yarn a mile.

The label is trade language for performers in big demand. And for the label, singer Lillian Roth is happily grateful.

It's her second chance at the Cinderella slipper of fame. The first time was more than 20 years ago when films made her a teen-age star. Then she smashed the slipper during what she now recalls as "my horrible alcoholic past."

Today, big show spots all the way to Las Vegas keep her busy, a nice two-year recording contract is in the safe, one of the big booking agencies has her under its wing, and her autobiography is newly in the bookstalls. Currently she is playing a return engagement at the New York supper club, La Vien en Rose, and is the headliner of the Palace Theater's fifth vaudeville anniversary program.

She talks of her past and present with tumbling, vivacious candor. She's a person who frankly looks at her past mistakes, is wistfully pleased at current attention, and makes religious faith a working part of everyday life.

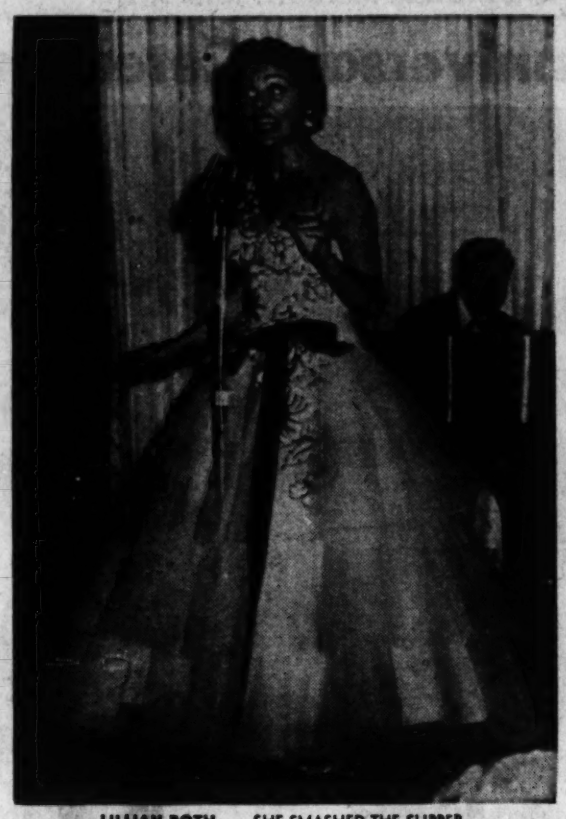
"I tell my husband (they married when both were members of Alcoholics Anonymous) that we've had our seven lean years, maybe now we'll have seven good years."

About a year ago, well after physical and mental rehabilitation had been onerously worked out, Lillian got the first touch of spotlight in a long, long time when Ralph Edwards did his "This Is Your Life" TV show about her.

That led to brief engagements in supper clubs, then an extended Miami Beach stand that re-launched her in the entertainment world she first entered at the age of 5.

Born in Boston in 1910, Lillian Rutstein had stage-struck parents who were hopeful she and sister Ann, born two years later, would be actresses. The family moved to a cold-water tenement in New York and the name was changed to Roth—to look better in lights.

The youngsters played movie bits at the old studios in Fort Lee, N. J., then sang and danced in vaudeville.



LILLIAN ROTH . . . SHE SMASHED THE SLIPPER.

The sister, who later left the show world, is today the mother of a lad of 8. For Lillian, however, there were Texas Guinan and Billy Rose night club stints, then the "Vanities," Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolics" and finally talking pictures.

★ ★ ★

IRONICALLY, Miss Roth recalls, she never indulged in the uplifted glass during those frenetic days. It was only when the personal tragedy of the death of her fiance shattered long plans that she turned to alcohol "for its knockout effects."

The world she had planned with her intended ("I was going to leave show business, keep house and have babies") splintered swiftly. Inward despondency and fear filled her waking hours.

"Oddly — and I know she meant well," says Miss Roth, "it was a nurse who first suggested that I take a drink at night for its sedative effect, because I was unable to sleep."

Soon she said it suppressed unhappy realities. Then the single drink was replaced by doubles, and on and on. In the twisted, disconnected years that followed Lillian Roth's path led nightmarishly downward.

Her reputation preceded her now and regular work gave place to occasional bit engagements here and there.

"I was the kind of performer they hoped wouldn't show up, but I always somehow managed to," she says. During this time, and afterward, her vocal ability somehow never broke, she recalls.

Eventually the girl who had once been brightly climbing found herself on the West Coast, without funds, ill, her sleeping as well as walking hours a phantastamagoria of faces and voices.

For some reason which she is unable now to explain, Lillian Roth recalled out of her past the name of a New York psychiatrist she had known years before. With the name came a conviction if she could get to him, he would help her.

★ ★ ★

A WOMAN friend, whose name Miss Roth keeps to herself, supplied funds to return East, on a solemn compact the patient would do everything the doctor ordered.

What followed was voluntary commitment to a sanitarium. Within a few months physical recovery was complete. She was released. The rest was up to her.

For several weeks she avoided any new alcholic temptation.

"Then I thought I could have just one drink," she ruefully remembers. The dreadful storm engulfed her anew.

From somewhere she was able to summon the will to try for escape. Finally, the tortuous struggle to redeem herself led to Alcholics Anonymous.

Here she met T. Burt McGuire, a man who had fallen from comfortable social station down the 90-proof path.

"He was sort of an AA sophomore when I arrived as a freshman," Miss Roth says, "and he always was near to lend a hand and show me the ropes."

It became a mutual enterprise, boosting each other along the road back. Within a year they married. Their home is now in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Although she was physically recovered and had the erstwhile craving firmly suppressed, Miss Roth had yet to face what she calls her hardest battle—"to regain personal dignity and to be unafraid."

The couple decided starting anew far from past associations would be good therapy, so they went to Australia where "they still have vaudeville." She went on a singing tour. The trip, she concedes, had a partial role in restoring her personality. But Lillian says religion gave her the strength she craved.

"Doctors can only go so far," she explains. "The rest is up to God."

Guide to Good Grouping

By Elizabeth Hillyer

A TABLE and a pair of chairs against a wall can be just that, or it can be the beginning of a charming decorative arrangement. It's chances like this that sharpen decorating skills, and do so much to change the room from being merely furnished—to being handsomely designed.

The grouping sketched might be a guide to a similar success at your house, with different, but similarly proportioned elements arranged in the same way. The important thing is to remember that furniture, accessories on the table and pictures and sconces on the wall all are part of a single unified design.

How can you be sure of the exactly right placing of everything? First set the furniture and table top arrangement in place. Make paper patterns of the pictures and sconces and try them on the wall. Attach the patterns with scotch tape to painted walls, with pins to papered walls and move them about experimentally.

Move the furniture, too, if the grouping seems to need improvement. When everything seems right make faint pencil marks on the wall where nails should go.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"TO SKIN THE CAT"—An Americanism.

IN a book dealing with American folklore, published in 1893, a description of what is meant by "skinning the cat" is followed by this remark: "Boys commonly 'skin the cat' both forwards and backwards."

The phrase is an Americanism, alluding specifically to a gymnastic exercise of a rather extreme kind. It has long been a favorite with small boys, for whom the branch of a tree has served perhaps more often than not as a bar in the gym. The boy hangs from the bar by his hands, then draws up his feet between his arms and over the bar, so raising himself to a seat on the bar! This is "skinning the cat."

The logic of the expression must be left to the reader's imagination. All we have regarding its origin is a history of usage in American speech, a record dating in black and white from the middle of the last century. The earliest appearance in print to which it can be traced back is in Sylvester Judd's "Margaret," published in 1845, in the following context:

"The boys were snapping-the-whip, skinning the cat, racing round the Meeting-house, or what not."

Rayon Summer Dress

Crease-resistant rayon that looks like linen appears in a pretty turquoise and black design for a summer dress with a flattering bodice. This bodice has low rounded neckline finished with a petal-like collar. Elongated shoulders take the place of brief sleeves. A shaped and draped girdle of black velvet ribbon contributes to the festive emphasis of this dress, which has a flaring skirt.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

SOCIOLOGIST W. T. THOMAS says that couples want and need: 1. the recognition by each other of their worth and interests; 2. response in sex and love; 3. security in the other's affection; and 4. challenging new experiences—variety, recreation, excursions, adventures. Otherwise marriage becomes a dull routine—a mere duty.

Answer to Question 2.

Yes, office work. Becker and Lawrence say, in their book, "Success and Satisfaction in Your Office Job," office work opens all kinds of doors to any active, qualified woman. No matter in what line she begins, she can open 25 other doors for increasing her usefullness and earning more. No better book for office workers and managers, too.

Answer to Question 3.

False in this extreme form. You can't think without facts to think with. Education should teach how to find facts for themselves, how to organize facts, what to do with facts, and how to guide their thought and conduct with facts. Organized knowledge of facts alone, is power. You can't think in a "vacuum."

Long-Haired Fabrics

Long-haired fabrics cut generously to give a "big look" to the entire silhouette are heralded as among the most important coat fashions for next fall. These coats usually are cut with straight boxy lines although the sash-tied coat is liked by several designers. Pockets are large and there is a continued trend toward the big, cape-like collar.

Traits of Alcoholic

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

ALCOHOLISM is one of the most serious health problems in America. Just what does alcoholism mean and what are its causes? Many people drink. Which are alcoholics?

There is one trait common to all alcoholics. One drink inevitably goes on to an alcoholic bout. This does not mean that an alcoholic always gets drunk the same day he takes that first drink. Not at all. He or she may take a month to get drunk. The first drink is followed by another, usually a larger one, within 24 hours, with more the next day.

Nor do you have to get wringing drunk to be an alcoholic. Some never appear intoxicated. They rarely are entirely sober, either.

An alcoholic may abstain for years but, after one single drink, will go on a prolonged bout. If one drink usually leads to excessive drinking, then that person is an alcoholic. This is true whether he drinks alone or with others, whether he drinks on arising or at noon or only after 5 o'clock.

★ ★ ★

THE SECOND THING that identifies an alcoholic, though more often to his family and friends than to himself, is that the drinking interferes with his work, his married life or his social life.

What are the causes of alcoholism? Are there any personality traits that set the stage?

No one knows why some people become alcoholics and others do not. Some scientists working on the problem think that body metabolism offers a clue—that the bodies of alcoholics just can't handle the stuff normally and yet crave it. Perhaps this is related in some way to food deficiencies. This work is highly experimental and controversial.

There is more definite knowledge about the personality of alcoholics and those prone to this disease. Most of them feel unsure of themselves, more self-conscious than average. A drink or two increases their self-confidence.

★ ★ ★

ALCOHOLICS MAY BE quite bright mentally but expect too much of themselves. They feel frustrated if they're not doing as well as they expected or if advancement isn't rapid enough. Drinks relieve their self-resentment.

The alcoholic may be so nervous when he has to go out with others that he literally shakes—a shy guy trying to conceal it. He finds that a drink or two eliminates the shakes or tremor and allows him to feel easier with others.

The alcoholic may be painfully shy, reticent, and self-conscious. Yet he's much more considerate and generous than average. He may be plagued with doubts about his own abilities.

Such are the usual personality traits of the person who is or may become an alcoholic. If you have such traits to a marked degree and haven't yet taken your first drink, then don't. You'll avoid a lot of trouble.

A person with such a personality is all primed to become an alcoholic. He or she is a potential one before ever taking that first drink.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I AM desperately in need of advice. Ten years ago my husband became interested in another woman and since that time something within me died. Sometimes I feel I would welcome death just to get away from this feeling.

I don't mean I sit and brood or feel sorry for myself, but the truth is I don't love him and can't bring myself to tell him. He provides well for us. I also work at a part time job trying to occupy my mind. My youngest child is 16. I am sure I would be happier alone even if I didn't have the necessities of life. I want to feel that I have given this a fair chance but surely after 10 years my mind should be made up one way or another. He tells me every day that he loves me and I know he does. Yet I can't say to him that I love him too. I want to do what is right for all concerned.

WORRIED.

It isn't easy to live a masquerade but you're being so terribly unfair not only to your husband and your children but to yourself to let this poison your whole life. Granted, he made a serious mistake. But apparently, he has repented and is trying to prove how much he loves you. Give him a chance, the same chance you would want if the situation were reversed. I don't say you can forget it. But you can make up your mind right now that it is over and done with and that a mistake that happened 10 years ago hasn't the power to ruin your life. Part-time jobs, activities, friends will divert your attention for the time being, but this is a problem that has to be solved in your own thinking, not in a search for something to take your mind off your troubles. Please believe that it isn't from a lack of sympathy that I write like this. It's just that I know each of us has a far greater capacity to withstand hurt than we give ourselves credit for. Your pastor can help you recognize that and build a happier existence for yourself and your family.

Dear Martha:

PLEASE TELL ME WHAT TO DO. I am 27 years old and live with my father as my mother is dead and my older sister is married and has her own home. Dad has started going out with a woman who, I believe, is a very fine person, and although I don't know that he is thinking of marriage, would be a good wife for him. But my sister who lives out of town is certain that she is after Dad's money—what little he has—and insists that I break up the romance. She has even threatened to come here herself and talk to him if I refuse to interfere. I think he certainly has the right to lead his own life. Please help me. SISTER.

I agree with you. As long as you know the woman is of good character, why in the world shouldn't he have a right to her friendship? Your sister has her home. She would have screamed to high heaven if your dad had tried to interfere with her marriage. Tell her frankly that you have no intention of interfering and that you don't want her coming down to make your dad miserable by demanding that he stop seeing the woman.

Successful Study

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.
Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"HE could do better if only he would!" teachers are constantly saying of their less successful pupils. Parents too often make this remark about their children.

Our version of this comment puts the phrase in reverse. We are more inclined to say, "He would if he could."

Take the first-grader who disturbs the class—and himself—with his antics. We don't necessarily consider that he is just being "bad." We often feel that his disturbing behavior is an indication that he is not mature enough to be in first grade.

Similarly when people tell us of a certain teen-ager that he has the ability to do his work and get better grades if he would only concentrate, we consider that, in general, ability to concentrate may be part of the total needed "ability to do the work." Some seem to have it; some don't. It is not a commodity that anyone can turn on if he only will. Some have it eventually when they can choose what they wish to concentrate on. But this may be delayed until adult life.

★ ★ ★

IT IS DIFFICULT, though not impossible, to help students improve their concentrating ability. One of the best helps we have run into recently is Norris Ely Orchard's "Study Successfully: 18 Keys to Better Work" (Whittlesey House, McGraw-Hill).

This is a brief (80-page), inexpensive ($1.50) book which, in our opinion, will for many students be well worth the buying and reading. (Even at the student's own expense and in his own valuable "spare time"!)

"Are you getting the best grades you are capable of?" asks the author provocatively. If not, he suggests that, whereas reading "Study Successfully" will not guarantee that your name will appear on the honor roll, if you follow its advice honesty, you will be closer to honor roll than you have ever been before.

★ ★ ★

THE BOOK CONTAINS no startling revelations—it suggests no easy road to straight A's. You still have to do the work yourself.

But if you are one to whom study seems like a hopeless, endless drudgery, if examinations fill you with horror, and if, for instance, the "examples in arithmetic seem like so many separate, unconnected tortures," this book contains some useful clues.

To the good student, many of these suggestions may seem obvious. Many of the rules you may already be following. But if you—or your teachers or parents—feel that there is room for improvement in the way you do your schoolwork and carry out your assignments—we believe that you will really profit from reading this book.

Social Problems

Vacationing Is Big--and Costly--Business

Tourists Advised to Take Realistic Look at Expenses Before They Start—Advice on Packing

By Phyllis Rosenteur

THIS summer about 60 million of us are going to take vacations in automobiles. If my oracle is accurate, we may pile up as many as 70 billion miles among us, making use of approximately 20 million automobiles.

We'll turn into 45,000 motor courts or sleep at 16,000 hotels, ranging from weird to wonderful. We'll eat enough grilled hotdogs en route to girdle the earth.

Most families will be drawn closer by the intimacy of auto travel; inevitably some new feuds will crop up among old friends.

And while all of this is going on, we'll get rid of more than eight billion dollars based on expenditures in the past.

The "big business" aspect of our national wanderlust will come as a shock to those poor souls who think they can just git-up-and-go. Those days are gone forever. More than a few of my acquaintances who blithely set out for "a couple of weeks" have come coasting home five days later on the last gurgle of gas . . . all their money having mysteriously disappeared.

How about you? Do you have a realistic idea of the cost of car operation? Based on an average of 100 miles every three hours — and warning that 300 miles a day is the maximum advised for enjoyment and safety — you can count on spending $9 daily on this item alone.

Use three cents a mile as a handy gauge. Since tires have been known to blow, and other apparatus to bust, you'd better have a small nest egg in reserve.

Most of us scuttle the budget by under-figuring on food. Experts advise us to allow 75 cents each for breakfast and lunch—minimum—and at least $1.50 for dinner. One night out of two, however, you'll eat up twice that much at a conservative estimate.

After all, it's a heck of a holiday that has you skipping southern fried chicken in Chattanooga, clams on Cape Cod or regional cookery wherever you roam.

If you're planning on half-portions for kids, get hep. The same child who can chase two peas around a plate all night at home will tuck away half a steer on the road.

★ ★ ★

JUST to prove a little theory of my own, I kept a careful record on a recent trip. While not conclusive, you may find it interesting to know how much I spent on a typical day:

Breakfast (7:30 a.m.) 60 cents. . . . Coffee and Danish (10:45 a.m.) 25 cents. . . . Lunch (1:15 p.m. 90 cents. . . . Coke (3:10 p.m.) 10 cents. . . . Dinner (6:50 p.m.) $1.85. . . . Something called a "Tallahassee Time Bomb" (11:13 p.m. and forever engraved in my memory) 85 cents. Total: $4.55, plus 70 cents in tips. . . . Motel room $5.00. . . . Total $10.25.

If you think I stuffed myself, you should see the other guys! Get set to shell out for brunch, afternoon breaks and after dinner snacks, in addition to the three squares you already know about.

Have you budgeted anything for incidentals? You'll want to see an occasional movie, stuff a jukebox, take in a traveling carnival, treat the kids to a pony ride, tour monuments, shrines, caverns, peaks and similar scenic attractions. Many of the latter charge fees, individually small but adding up to substantial sums.

Someone is bound to leave behind an important article of apparel and have to replace it. All of you will want souvenirs to send and keep yourselves. Count on having your pocket picked for postal cards, stamps, camera film, sun glasses, and so on.

Overnight accommodations, while varying greatly, can be safely budgeted at $5 to $6 for one or a couple, and around $8 for mom, pop and a pair of kids who can fit on cots.

The AAA breaks down the motor vacationist's dollar thusly: Meals, 29 cents; transportation, 21 cents; lodgings, 20 cents; retail purchases, 18 cents; theaters and other amusements, 7 cents; and admission to travel attractions, 5 cents.

Children are an important part of our summer exodus, so let's talk about them. Kids can keep you on the qui vive or be more pestiferous than Jersey's B-17 mosquitoes . . . depending mostly on the kind of manners they learned from you . . . and the amount of thought you give to their needs on a long auto trip.

YOUR MONEY, SOMEHOW, SEEMS TO DISAPPEAR, MYSTERIOUSLY.

For the smaller fry, arrange adequate space for naps. See to it that they at least lie quietly at regular intervals, before they become overtired and impossible. Shop the dime store and pack some surprises, unveiling one a day.

Since everyone will howl for a certain seat, make a ceremony of rotating places every couple of hours . . . like the changing of the guard. Give each sprout a legitimate job to do and he'll feel a real part of the expedition. Properly detailed, the offspring can be of honest aid.

An older child can keep a mileage log. Let another supervise the loading and unloading of luggage. Even the smallest can remind Mom to refill the thermos bottles at every stop. (Pause while we offer up a short prayer for the inventor of the vacuum bottle.)

Just one more reminder which may save you some embarrassment. Be sure you know something about everything you're going to see. A car is a rolling classroom in history, geography, biology, zoology . . . and you're the faculty in toto. A normal youngster can get at least 50 questions to your gallon of gas, so find out a few of the answers ahead of time.

How many times have you heard someone say — or said yourself—"After my vacation, I needed a vacation!"?

It's a wryly humorous remark, but the fact itself is far from funny. When you've worked like a Siberian serf for 50 weeks and finally earned 14 days off for good behavior, you're entitled to a holiday that leaves you physically healthy, pshychologically stimulated and financially afloat.

Why, then, do so many of us limp home, figuratively licking our wounds? For the most part because we picked places completely wrong for our personalities. Or we packed nagging little nuisances with our luggage. Or we tried to do too much in too little time.

★ ★ ★

LET'S have a look at some holiday hurdles. How often have you slammed on the brakes 60 miles from home with a horrible feeling that an upstairs faucet is still on? Or do you spend every hour of the two weeks worrying whether or not you shut the cellar windows?

Take 10 minutes now to think and you can leave with a clear mind. Make yourself a "Do Before Departure" list, and post it prominently. Above the sink is good for the females among us, since there you'll see it at least three times a day. You'll want to change and amplify, but here are the main points of my prevacation schedule:

Stop all deliveries. (Milk, paper, diaper service, etc.)

Pay utility bills. (I once came home to Stygian gloom and a deathly 'ush. No gas, electricity, telephone . . . and it took three days to get them on again.)

Arrange to farm out house plants, unless you have a cactus collection. (There was that other time I arrived back just as the last leaf fell off the last sere, dead, dry, desiccated philodendron.)

Ditto pets. (Make sure of facilities well in advance or you'll worry yourself sick. Don't take anyone's word about a boarding kennel . . . go see it yourself.)

Make sure that one person knows where you can be reached at any given moment in case of emergency.

If you think you need a lot of money—and can get it—invest in traveler's checks. Tote plenty of identification to aid you in cashing personal checks. (I always leave some extra cash with a friend in case I run out en route . . . at which point I wire an S.O.S.)

Since everyone, including your second cousin's in-laws, will expect a picture post card, get the names and addresses together now, instead of guessing or forgetting later.

The tag line of my "Do Before Departure" chart reads, "See Packing List." My friends claim that my "Permanent Packing Plan" (patent applied for) will be my one and only lasting contribution to the world. Here's how it evolved eight years ago:

I sat down, pen and pad to hand, and thought of everything I did in the course of a normal day, starting with the moment I opened my eyes in the a.m. Each item encountered (alarm clock, pajamas, slippers) went on the agenda. Out of bed into the bathroom (toothbrush, hairbrush, washcloth, etc.) and out of the bathroom into the dressing room (stockings, underthings, etc.) Well, you get the idea.

By the time I wound up "My Day" (bobby pins, cold cream) everything essential to health hygiene, chic and decency was safely committed to black and white.

★ ★ ★

I MADE several copies and scotch-taped one in every piece of luggage I own. Now, when it's time to pack, I just check off each object as I load it in while I look at the list on the inside lid of the luggage. Saves times and no end of aggravation on the other end.

Of course, my necessity may be your nonsense, so go on to your own compilation. Done once, it's done for practically all time.

One warning: Keep the "maybe's" to a minimum. ("Maybe I ought to take this just in case . . . ") I carted an orange beaded blouse at least 8000 miles over a period of years on the extremely off chance that I might someday want to wear it.

Your mode of travel and final destination will dictate the number and kind of clothes you'll need. Don't be shy about asking advice of a travel agent or of the resort itself when you're booking reservations.

In your own auto, you make the rules. Otherwise you'll embark—both sexes—in the indispensable suit. Both men and women will load up with life-saving nylon, orlon and dacron accessories and underwear. They pack in a thimble, dry in a flash, and never need the touch of an iron.

Buy some spill-proof and unbreakable plastic bottles for perfumes, lotions and all such, and provide a plastic drawstring bag for anything you may have to pack damp. Mittens for your shoes will keep your clothes clean, or you can use sheets of aluminum foil.

Remember that the tighter you pack your suitcase, the fewer wrinkles you'll have on arrival . . . and the fewer suitcases you have, the less lugging you'll do. Porters are not always present.

Lock the front door. You're off!

THE END.

Secrets of Charm

Exercise in Gardening

TO keep your muscles in tone and your proportions in trim, it isn't always necessary to schedule exercise into your daily morning or evening plans. Other activities can be made to work towards the perfection of your figure.

In an office, let the up-and-down of file cabinet chores be an easy knee bend routine. While performing household duties, stretch and squat to loosen the muscles of arms and legs.

Then too, there's nothing more beautifying to you (and to the landscape!) than gardening. If you've regarded those outdoor tasks of planting and clean-up as nothing but a means to aching muscles, it's time to adopt a new outlook. The bend and stoop of planting posies can be the way to give your own figure a more stemlike line.

★ ★ ★

WHEN SOWING SEEDS and imbedding bulbs in the earth this spring, did you make a point of really getting down to the ground—or was your bend awkward and uncomfortable? The planting season may be past, but the weed season is at hand so you'll have opportunity to practice the deep knee bend that's excellent for toning hips and thighs, and improving your balance.

GARDENING IS A WONDERFUL WAY TO IMPROVE YOUR MEASUREMENTS, FOR IT'S ALL-OVER EXERCISE.

You will get down easily and gracefully if you stand with your feet slightly astride, toes pointing just off center. Squat deeply, with knees spread apart. This position lessens the strain on your legs and prevents all your weight from being thrown over your arches.

Instead of hunching along the ground as you proceed along the rows, always rise to a full standing position before squatting again. You'll do your figure a world of good—and you'll be able to garden longer—because there's a rest in each stretch. As the weeds disappear, so will the kinks in your lazy muscles.

★ ★ ★

OUTDOOR TASKS are most rewarding when you're figure conscious. Raking is an excellent all-purpose exercise if done this way: One foot a little ahead of the other, bend the knees slightly. Lean forward from the hip joint, abdomen pulled in, hips tucked under. With each stroke of the rake straighten your body from the hips. As you extend the rake to collect the next hillock of grass, lean forward again.

It isn't how deeply you bend, but how rhythmically that makes this such good exercise. Every part of your body participates in the see-saw movement that gives play to all your muscles.

Paint for Wicker

A spray gun can be an aid in recoating wicker furniture. If you use a brush, see that the enamel does not collect at the intersections. To preserve the wicker's natural color, use a clear varnish.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE play by declarer which featured the hand below would have been ridiculous at rubber bridge, but under the actual match-point duplicate conditions it was excellent.

South, dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	♠AJ52 ♥KJ104 ♦642 ♣74
	♠K64 ♥AQ972 ♦J10 ♣AK3

Almost every North-South pair reached the logical and comfortable contract of four hearts and made five-odd.

One master South, however, decided to open the auction with a rather fancy no-trump bid, and when North properly raised to three no-trump, South stood fast. Thus, the heart suit was not even mentioned!

West opened the spade ten, and when dummy's jack was not covered by East, declarer realized that every other North-South pair in the room would undoubtedly score 450 points at heart contracts. This, against the mere 10 tricks, worth 430 points, that South could see at no-trump.

So a very bad board was clearly in store for South unless he could "do something."

South DID do something—at Trick 2 he coolly led a diamond from the table! He did not catch East napping—that defender put up the diamond queen and led another round of the suit, but West was gullible. He took the third trick with the diamond ace—and shifted back to spades!

Now South went to work. He won with the spade king and cashed the five hearts, discarding a club from the board. West's first discard was the seven of diamonds, and that forced East to stand guard over the diamond six in dummy. Then a double squeeze automatically developed. West had to keep two spades, hence could not guard clubs; and East had to keep the diamond. When South finally led to the spade ace, East had to relinquish his club stopper, and that gave South three club tricks, for an "absolute top."

Early June Visitors in New York

By Frances Conant Richards

NEW YORK, June 7.

MR. AND MRS. WILLARD VAN B. KING were in town Tuesday for graduation exercises at Columbia. Fauvette and Van came east to see his father, Willard Vinton King, of Morristown, N.J., receive an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree at the afternoon ceremony. Fauvette and Van were in their places—folding chairs on the campus—at 2 o'clock and were still there at 5 as the handing out of degrees and diplomas continued throughout the summery afternoon. They returned to St. Louis Wednesday.

Mrs. George Bass, the former Medora Steedman of St. Louis, came up from Ardmore Pa., for two days last week. She has been taking a college course this past year and was just out from under her final exams. Two days of shopping in New York seemed the correct antidote. Mr. and Mrs. Bass and their children will be off shortly to Northeast Harbor, Me., and their waterfront cottage to spend the summer. Her mother, Mrs. George Fox Steedman, will come east later from her year-around home in Santa Barbara, Calif., for a long summer visit with Mr. and Mrs. Bass.

* * *

OTHER ST. LOUISANS in and around town last week were Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Wilson. They landed Tuesday after a three-month trip abroad —mostly Spain, Paris and England. Mrs. Wilson is the former Emily Milliken. The Wilsons stayed in New York two nights then headed south to their home in Rectortown, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hitchcock were in town Thursday for the briefest possible stay. Their New York visit could hardly be called even a stopover. They motored east, spent Wednesday night west of town somewhere along the New Jersey Turnpike. Thursday they were on the road by 5:30 and had paid a call in Rye, N.Y., by 8:30. They drove through New York because of necessity, stopping only for traffic lights. They did pause briefly in Rye for a promised visit with Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Plant McCaw. Mrs. McCaw is the former Louise Goddard of St. Louis. The Hitchcocks and McCaws have a common bond of interest this spring. Lou and Plant have just recently moved into their own built-to-order house, and the Hitchcocks are in the midst of building their house in Cotuit, on the cape.

"MY HEART" was the name of one of the selections sung at the Pop Concert in Carnegie Hall last Thursday for the benefit of the Heart Fund. The program note identified the composers as Harkness-Camp. The Harkness referred to was Mrs. William Hale Harkness, formerly Betty West of St. Louis, who composed the music for "My Heart." Emil Cote led his 16-member Glee Club through the song, and the audience gave its approval with rounds of applause.

Kathryn Cravens, sister of Mrs. Maury Hill, is surely a Grade A airline customer. She flies in and out of New York on missions, parties, visits, press junkets and assignments. Last Saturday she flew to Washington for Perle Mesta's dinner—a little gathering for 700 in the Continental room at the Sheraton Park. Earlier in the afternoon Kathryn gave a tea for the "Hostess with the Mostest" in her suite at the Sheraton. Besides Mrs. Mesta, guests included Mrs. Mesta's sister, Mrs. George Tyson; Celeste Holm, and the English musical comedy star, Billie Worth. There was some delay in getting tea sandwiches sent up via room service, due, said the waiter, to big preparations going on in the kitchen for Mrs. Mesta's dinner. When Miss Cravens said Mrs. Mesta herself was upstairs waiting for a sandwich, a platterful arrived pronto. Kathryn Cravens will fly to Texas this summer for a short family visit then head for Istanbul by plane for the opening of Conrad Hilton's hotel on the Bosporus.

Marriage at Church For Barbara Clark, Dr. T. L. Tombridge

A BRIDE of Saturday was Miss Barbara Ann Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Clark, 2323 Brown road, Overland, whose marriage to Dr. Thomas Leo Tombridge took place at Our Lady of Presentation Church. The Rev. Jeremiah Callahan officiated.

The bride wore an alencon lace and tulle gown over taffeta and a tulle veil held by a pearl-studded crown. She carried a prayer book marked with a white orchid and lilies of the valley.

Miss Rose Mary Schmidt served as maid of honor and Miss Marilyn Sheridan, Miss Carol Bellm, Miss Lois Fewell, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Marguerite Jean Schauer, a niece of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. Flower girl was Carol Beth Clark, a cousin of the bride. They wore pale green organdy gowns trimmed in a deeper shade and held nosegays of white pompons.

Dr. Tombridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tombridge, 3906 Hartford street, had his brother, Frank Tombridge, as best man. Ushers were Thomas Holden, Richard Bogdon, Donald and Karl Keller and the bride's brothers, Richard and Roger Clark.

After a wedding breakfast at Medart's Restaurant, the bride and bridegroom departed for a wedding trip to Florida. They will live here. Sixtieth Anniversary For Henry F. Hafners

MR. AND MRS. HENRY F. HAFNER, 24 Windermere place, were guests of honor Saturday afternoon at a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Knight, their son-in-law and daughter, 360 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves. The occasion was a party in celebration of the Hafners' sixtieth wedding anniversary, which was attended by most of their six children, 12 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The Hafners are the parents of Mrs. James Harnett, Mrs. Carl Otto and Henry F. Hafner Jr., all of St. Louis, and Richard Hafner of Orinda, Calif., and Mrs. Parke Kooser of Santa Barbara, Calif. They were in California recently to visit their daughter and son who were unable to attend the anniversary.

Miss Ruth Hilton Becomes Bride Of D. J. Simon

MISS RUTH MARGARET HILTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Walter Hilton, 5368 Queens avenue, and Donald Joseph Simon were married Saturday morning at St. Philip Neri Church. The pastor, the Rev. Joseph P. Kennedy, performed the ceremony at the nuptial mass.

Mr. Hilton escorted his daughter down a candlelighted aisle and gave her in marriage. White spring flowers were massed at the bases of tiers of candles in the sanctuary and were arranged in bouquets on the candlelighted altar.

Miss Alice Hilton was her sister's maid of honor and another sister, Mrs. Raymond C. Weissgerber; Miss Gene Sheridan, and Miss Gloria Ebling were bridesmaids. Mr. Simon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Simon, 339 Larkhill, Webster Groves, had Thomas Dresner as best man. The bride's brother, Raymond W. Hilton; Charles Dresner, John Kostor, George Bulwerk and Mr. Weissgerber were ushers.

The bride chose a white Italian silk gown, the short sleeves and scalloped bateau neckline embroidered with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. She wore a fingertip illusion veil attached to a crown of pearls and held a bouquet of stephanotis. Her attendants were in pale green silk shantung dresses, the low necklines trimmed with pale pink organdy flowers. Ballerina skirts were set on in fine pleats. They wore shell pink face veils and held pink butterfly carnations and ivy.

After the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Hilton gave a family breakfast at Missouri Athletic Club.

Mr. Simon and his bride went to Gulf coast resorts for their honeymoon and on returning to St. Louis will live at 6647 Devonshire avenue, St. Louis Hills.

My Day

Dutch Award In Memory of U.S. Newsmen

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

I WENT to Philadelphia on Thursday for a few hours, and drove back over the new turnpike which makes it almost as quick to reach Philadelphia by car as by train.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Perhaps in heavy traffic it would be exasperating, but in the middle of the night it was a wonderful way to come home. I was very grateful to Sam Kenin for arranging the trip in his car.

* * *

A NEW press award committee, called "The William the Silent Award Committee," has sent me information about this year's awards. This is a Dutch award, as the name implies, and is given to Americans writing on foreign affairs.

The money for it was raised in Holland by popular donation as a tribute to the American press after 14 American journalists died in a plane crash on July 3, 1949, while returning from a fact-finding trip in Indonesia.

First prize this year went to Stuart Noyes, foreign correspondent of the Washington (D.C.) Star. The remaining prize money was evenly divided between Rodney L. Odell of the Passaic (N.J.) News and Wade Jones of the NEA service, Oberlin, O.

The opening address by the chairman of the executive committee, Albert Balink, contained several observations which seemed to me most significant. "No bombs explode by themselves," said Balink. "They must first explode in someone's mind." He then went on to show that the essential requirement to stop these explosions is knowledge about each other, and real understanding. Newspaper correspondents all over the world, he noted, are carrying a great responsibility to achieve a broadening of our interest and of our understanding.

"The press of the Western world, in which the American press so ably assumes a major responsibility," he concludes, "is one of humanity's best defenses against atomic fear. Plato once declared: 'Democracy passes into despotism.' But today, wherever the free press can penetrate, despotism passes into democracy."

We should be very grateful to The Netherlands for having a conception of the value of this interchange of ideas and for doing its generous share to encourage it.

THE SUMMER is upon us and people will soon be traveling by car in many parts of the country. I have just received a book which I think will be invaluable to the motor tourist. It is called "The Handbook of Auto Camping and Motorists Guide to Public Campgrounds," by George and Iris Wells, and contains information about every part of our great country. If you like to camp, this should be an excellent addition to your library.

Cranberry-Glazed Cottage Ham

Ingredients: One 2-pound smoked boneless pork shoulder butt, whole cloves, one fourth cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, one-sixteenth teaspoon cinnamon, three-fourth cup canned whole cranberry sauce.

Method: Cover pork shoulder butt with water; bring to a boil; simmer 1½ hours or until tender in center when tested with a fork. Drain well. Insert whole cloves, about one inch apart, all over ham. Mix brown sugar and cinnamon; break up cranberry sauce in can with fork before measuring, then add. Mix well. Spoon cranberry mixture over ham placed in ovenproof platter or in shallow baking dish. Bake in moderate (375 degree) oven 10 minutes; baste with glaze; bake 10 minutes more. Remove from oven. Spoon cranberry glaze over ham while it stands for about five minutes. Serve at once. Makes six servings.

International Designer's Pattern

THE Italian accent in fashion is getting more pronounced with each season's collections. The names of Italy's couturiers are fast becoming bywords in smart circles here and abroad with Biki's name popping up more and more often. A relative newcomer to the world of design, she is already known for her great sense of the original combined with distinction and simplicity, all three points being admirably demonstrated in her cape ensemble pattern. By itself, the dress has enormous charm with a bodice detailed for bosom emphasis and waist non-emphasis. The little bit of shoulder covering is the pretty look so important and so wanted by most women this year, but notice how the straps extend in back to a low squared off finish. The self-lined cape has a contrasting collar (velvet ribbon will do the trick) and is buttoned onto the bodice. Don't let the bound buttonholes disturb you. The pattern includes very easy instructions on how to make them professionally but simply. Originally, the dress was shown in a brilliant turquoise printed silk, but is also wonderful in cottons, shantung, linen, pique, faille or any of the novelty 48-inch materials.

This pattern is cut in DESIGNER sizes.

Bust.	Waist.	Hips.		Size.
34	24	35	inches	10
35	25	36	"	12
36½	26½	37½	"	14
38	28	39	"	16
40	30	41	"	18

Pattern S-22. Size 12 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material for dress and cape, ⅜-yard of 39-inch material for contrast, and 1⅜ yards of 39-inch material for lining.

To order a pattern, address International Designer's Patterns, care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, P.O. Box 993, Dept. SX-17, G.P.O., New York 1, N.Y. State size. Send $1. Add four cents for handling, if paid by check or money order. Air mail handling, 25 cents extra.

Graham Cracker Cake

Ingredients: Two-thirds cup sifted flour, three-fourths cup sugar, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one and two-thirds cups finely rolled graham cracker crumbs, one-half cup shortening, three-fourth cup milk, one teaspoon vanilla, two eggs.

Method: Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt; mix with graham cracker crumbs. Place shortening in a bowl. Add dry ingredients, milk and vanilla; mix until dry ingredients are dampened. Beat two minutes in electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand. Add eggs and beat one minute in mixer or 150 strokes by hand. Pour into two greased paper-lined eight-inch layer cake pans. Bake in moderate (375 degrees Fahrenheit) oven about 25 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Turn out on cooling rack; remove waxed paper at once. When cold, fill and frost.

Storage Tip

Fish, soup and dishes containing milk or cream—in addition to meat—should be stored in the coldest section of your refrigerator, usually just beneath the freezing compartment.

Cottage Cheese Drop Cookies

Ingredients: One and one-half cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon baking soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half cup margarine, one-fourth cup cream-style cottage cheese, one cup sugar, one egg, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-fourth teaspoon lemon flavoring, one-half cup chopped candied pineapple, confectioner's sugar frosting, extra pieces of candied pineapple and sliced candied cherries.

Method: Sift together flour, baking soda and salt. Cream margarine until fluffy; blend in cottage cheese. Beat in sugar gradually and well. Beat in egg thoroughly, vanilla and lemon flavoring. Add sifted flour mixture to creamed ingredients, about one-fourth at a time, mixing smooth after each addition. Stir in one-half cup candied pineapple. Drop by teaspoonsful, about two inches apart, on greased baking sheets. Bake in moderate (375 degrees Fahrenheit) oven 10 to 12 minutes. Remove to cookie racks and serve warm "as is." Or cool and decorate with confectioner's sugar frosting and extra pieces of candied pineapple and sliced candied cherries. Makes about three dozen cookies.

If your scalp is uncomfortable and you're bothered with flaky dandruff you can just bet that your scalp is not in a healthy condition and that your hair does not have a chance to grow. That's the time for you to see a Thomas expert for free hair examination.

For 33 years The Thomas' have specialized in providing precise, hygienic care for the hair and scalp. Embedded dandruff scurf is quickly removed—and soon your scalp glows with a fresh, new, healthy feeling. Your hair looks more alive and virile—and your scalp feels wide-awake and ready to "go." So—NOW, while there is still time to do something about it—consult a Thomas hair specialist. Remember—no charge for consultation or advice (in private) at any time.

THE TRULY GREAT SAVING...
Our de Forest-Sanabria Display Models

Merchandising decorum requires that whenever one of our really fine Lineless sets has servd a short period as a display model, we cannot sell it as a new set.

These perfect, display models are available from time to time at the huge savings indicated on this page. Drastic economy can be effected for those who are quick to take advantage whenever these sets are put in sale.

They all carry a new-set guarantee and are up to new-set inspection requirements. In some cases the extra tune-up of the technicians in charge has provided above-average performance.

These are, in truth, a TV man's TV—the saving is pure plunder! There are not many, so come early and be sure.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

ANYONE who crosses the Atlantic or the Pacific is likely to exclaim, "The big ocean!"

The waters of the Atlantic spread over an area which is larger than Africa, North America, South America and Australia combined. The Pacific Ocean is larger than all the continents together.

At beaches, people sometimes swim in ocean water which is only a few feet deep. A mile from shore, a swimmer might be in water 5000 feet deep, or even more.

★ ★ ★

SURVEYS OF THE OCEAN have led to an estimate that the average depth is about two and one-third miles. The deepest places ever found are in the Pacific. One of these is known as the Emden Deep, because the German cruiser "Emden" took a sounding there 27 years ago. The depth was reported to be six and seven-tenths miles.

Eighteen years later, men aboard an American war vessel took a sounding 40 miles north of Emden Deep. At this place, which is near the island of Mindanao in the Philippine group, the depth is more than six and one-half miles. The place is known as the Cape Johnson Deep.

★ ★ ★

IN THE ATLANTIC OCEAN, north of Puerto Rico, the water is almost five and four-fifths miles deep. A sounding was taken there by the U.S.S. Milwaukee. It marks the deepest place found so far in the Atlantic.

TINY OBJECTS IN THE OOZE AT BOTTOM OF THE OCEAN. (HIGHLY MAGNIFIED.)

Judging by the deep places, we may rank the Pacific as the deepest ocean, the Atlantic as the second deepest. After them come the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic Oceans.

fight for LOVE

by Rob Eden

CHAPTER 15.

THE rule at the training camp called for lights out at 9. Consequently, Vi awoke early in the morning, but Milly's bed was unoccupied. Vi dressed hurriedly, and found Milly in the kitchen, helping the cook.

Milly was singing gaily. "This is wonderful here in the country," she told Vi. "I never knew what it was like. I love it here."

Ava didn't appear for breakfast, and Buck told Vi she usually slept until noon. Jed seemed in better spirits after breakfast, and Vi told him she wanted to talk to him, alone.

They walked out into the woods and Vi lost no time in coming to the point. "Jed," she said seriously, "You're letting me down. I pawned some mighty fine diamonds, to keep this camp going. Now you're fussing about one thing or another, and keeping Buck worried.

"You've got to train for this fight, and forget everything else. What's the matter now, is it Ava or what?"

"Well, yes, she makes trouble all the time," the young fighter admitted. "I wish she'd go back to town."

"She will. Leave that to me," Vi assured him. "What next?"

"Oh yes, she is, happier than she has been in years. Jed, you're hunting for something to worry about. You're working yourself into a frenzy without any cause. There's just one thing I want you to worry about. Beating Maybro. Nothing else matters. I kept your contract in spite of everyone else. They all wanted me to sell. Now it's up to you to back up my judgment. Don't let me down."

Jed looked away from her. "I guess I'm just a heel," he said.

"No. I didn't say that. I said you were worrying about nothing. I want you to stop it, and get down to work. Get your timing back."

"All right," Jed said emphatically, "I'll quit worrying. I'll get down to work. Nothing else will matter."

"That's what I wanted to hear," Vi told him. "Let me do the worrying. I'll take care of Ava, too. Who does she think she is, crashing my training camp?"

"Women don't belong in training camps," Jed agreed.

"All right. We'll take care of that. Now let's get back to the grind. You're due for road work this morning, aren't you?"

"Yes. I'll go back and change."

★ ★ ★

THEY returned to the camp to find Buck pacing back and forth impatiently. "Let's go. Let's go," he shouted to Jed. "This joint's getting to be a social center. We got work to do."

"I detained Jed. Take it out on me," Vi told him. "Maybe you're contributing to Jed's nervousness, Buck. I hadn't thought of that."

"I'm sorry," Buck apologized. "I'm a little on edge myself. Sorry, Jed," he added. "Let's get rolling."

Cliff Craine drove in shortly after Jed and Buck had left camp. He parked his car and hurried over to Vi and Milly, who were sitting on the porch of the farmhouse.

"How's the arm?" he asked.

"What arm?" Vi asked.

He looked at her curiously. "What did I do, spill the beans?" Cliff asked. "Didn't Buck or Jed tell you?"

"What are you talking about?"

Cliff sat down, took off his hat and mopped his brow. "Well, I guess I opened my big mouth. I thought, of course, you knew. I'll let Buck tell you."

"You'll tell me yourself," Vi said firmly. "Evidently Buck doesn't take me into his confidence."

Cliff tried to evade the issue, but Vi insisted that he tell her what he meant when he asked about "the arm."

"Well, Jed sprained his arm working out with a medicine ball," Cliff explained. "It's been hurting him, and he dropped his guard in sparring practice and the lug working with him almost knocked him out. Buck was burned up. It's all over town, and it's affected the odds on the fight."

Vi was furious. "That's what all the mystery was about," she said. "I thought something was going on, everybody was so stuffy. How badly is he hurt?"

"Buck shouldn't hold out on you, no matter how bad the news," Cliff said. "That's no way to do. I guess he thought the arm would respond to treatment, and he wouldn't have to worry you about it."

"But I want to be worried. I want to know what's going on. If that arm doesn't get better we'll cancel the fight. I'll not send Jed into the ring until he's ready."

★ ★ ★

CLIFF smiled. "There's a lot of politics involved in postponing a championship go, unless you can show the commission your boy can't make a recovery. It isn't so easy, Vi. That's another reason why you're a little over your head in this game."

"Milly, take a walk," Vi ordered. "I want to talk to Cliff. That's a good girl." Milly, who hadn't said a word during the conversation between Cliff and Vi, walked away from them.

"Now, tell me what to do," Vi said to Cliff. "I'll take your advice. I feel like a sap, having everybody and his brother know about this, and not know it myself. After all, I hold Jed's contract. I can't fire Buck now, but I'll sure make him keep me informed hereafter. You can bet on that."

Cliff thought for a moment. "Get Buck alone and read him the riot act. Of course, he'll be sore at me for telling you. I thought you knew."

"If you were my friend, you would have told me anyway," she said softly.

"I am your friend Vi," he protested. "For Pete sake, sell Jed's contract and get out while the getting's good."

"No," he replied promptly. "I wouldn't. But I'm a gambler at heart."

"You know something?" she asked. "I'm a gambler at heart, too. I'm going to keep Jed's contract."
